Churchill Urges Showdown With Russians On Germany

FORESEES BATTLE

Wartime British Prime Minister Says Situation Assuming War Tinge

ASSERTS WORLD DOES NOT HAVE MUCH TIME TO ACT

LLANDUDNO, Wales, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Winston Churchill declared today the Berlin deadlock "may at any time precipitate a hideous world struggle." He again urged a showdown with Russia before she gets the atom bomb.

The British war-time prime minister said the United States would be "murdering human freedom and committing suicide" if it surrendered its store of atom bombs, which he described as the one asset guarding the progress of mankind.

He called for an end to the "stupidity" of war crimes trials of Nazis.

Given one of the biggest ovations of his career when he addressed the 4,000 delegates at the annual Conservative party convention here, Churchill said that if the Russians wish to see the military use of atomic energy outlawed "they must reassure the world by actions which speak louder than words."

"Let them release their grip upon the satellite states of Europe," he declared.

"Let them retire to their own country which is one-sixth of the land surface of the globe.

"Let them liberate by their departure the 11 ancient capitals of eastern Europe which they now hold in their claws. Let them go back to the Curzon line (in Poland) as was agreed upon in the days when we were fighting as comrades together.

"Let them set free the million or more German and Japanese prisoners they now hold as slaves. Let them cease to oppress, torment and exploit the immense parts of Germany and Austria which are now in their hands. * * *

"Let them cease to distract Malaya and Indonesia. Let them liberate the Communist-held portion of Korea.

95 MILLION MAY VOTE ON NOV. 2

Total Vote Will Be Approximately 53 Million, Census Bureau Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The United States will have about 95,000,000 men and women of voting age by election day, November 2, the census bureau estimated tonight.

Many of them will be ineligible to vote for various reasons and many who will be eligible won't actually vote. The census bureau made no attempt to predict the total vote, but its data worked out to this:

The vote will be 53,580,000 if ballots are cast at the 1944 (Roosevelt-Dewey) rate, or 56,525,000 if at the heavier 1940 (Roosevelt-Willkie) rate.

Many election analysts have forecast a light vote in this year's presidential election—possibly less than in 1940 despite a big growth in the population since then.

The census bureau said 56.4 per cent of the voting-age civilian population cast ballots in the 1944 race, making the total vote that year 47,976,263.

The comparative percentage for 1940 was 59.5. The total was 49,820,312 votes.

The 95,000,000 estimate for the voting age population on Nov. 2 allowed for a population increase of about 250,000 a month over the bureau's last previous estimate on July 1.

The figure included all civilians and military service personnel—including

TWO INJURED ARE REPORTED BETTER

A Fairbanks father and son, injured in an automobile accident Friday night, were reported improved last night by attendants of the St. Francis sanitarium where they were taken following the accident. They were enroute from a Monroe football game when the accident occurred and were one-quarter of a mile from their ohme when the car went out of control.

The injured were, Thomas A. Ward., 43, and his son Gayle, 16, who plays guard's position on the O. P. H. S. football team.

According to Thomas A. Davis, the car left the road and went into the ditch. He said he didn't know exactly what happened but the steering gear possibly went out of order.

Following the accident, the victims were brought to the St. Francis sanitarium, where attendants reported the father to have suffered lacerations and bruises and Gayle, the son, suffered a concussion in addition to minor lacerations and bruises.

WOOD FIRES ARE BEYOND CONTROL

Greatest Number Of Flames In History Of Organized Fire-Fighting Seen

The severity of forest fires blanketing both Ouachita and Jackson parishes in the past two days have never been equaled in the history of organized fire fighting, L. A. Roland, district fire commissioner, disclosed here last night.

The extremely dry conditions in both parishes gives us no assurance that there will be any stopping it for several days, Roland said.

Sunday is expected to be even worse as far as forest fires go, in number as well as in severity, the fire commissioner pointed out. The reason, Roland said, is that more hunters are expected to be in the forest and will invariably lend to more carelessness.

In Jackson parish, the Holly Grove blaze resumed its destructive path yesterday, spreading over an estimated 1,000 acres. The area, Commissioner Roland stated, is made up mostly of timber land.

Six fires were reported still raging in Jackson parish last night. They were located in the northeast, central and south central sections of the parish.

Company crews and state firefighters extinguished a dozen more yesterday in the parish.

Eight forest blazes are visible from the Jonesboro-Monroe highway in southwest Ouachita parish, one of which, still eating away at timber, covers roughly 300 acres and was set off late Friday afternoon.

Roland attributed the majority of forest fires in this area to carelessness and arson.

Several calls for help were received at the district headquarters from the Fairbanks area, but no definite loss in acreage was determined.

Roland, in a statement last night, termed the fire situation extremely serious, with millions of dollars at stake.

Chief of Fire Control W. C. Valentine made an aerial survey of both parishes to determine what measures should be taken in forest fire control. His suggestions were not available late last night.

TRUMAN, DEWEY HEAD TRAINS BACK INTO CRUCIAL MIDWEST

(By Associated Press)

Governor Dewey and President Truman head for the hills and prairies of the midwest again tonight (Sunday), shuttling about on their special trains three weeks ahead of the presidential election.

Each will appear in Illinois, Indiana and Minnesota, among other states. Dewey's Republican drive will take him as far southwest as Oklahoma.

Mr. Truman, after carrying his Democratic campaign through Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and upstate New York, hurried back to Washington yesterday to meet Secretary of State Marshall, who flew in from Paris in the president's own plane.

The conference was arranged to discuss ways to achieve world peace, Mr. Truman told a Buffalo, N. Y., audience before heading back to the White House.

After two meetings between Mr. Truman and his secretary of state, the president disclosed officially that he had considered sending Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson on an extraordinary mission to Moscow to explain how the American people feel about "the atomic problem." Mr. Truman said, however, that he had dropped the project on the advice of General Marshall, following a transatlantic conversation last Tuesday.

Marshall told a news conference there was "no foundation" for reports of a split between him and the president.

News of the projected Vinson mission broke Friday night, and the capital had buzzed all day with speculation about the reasons for Marshall's flight home to confer with the president.

Dewey's first major speech this week will be at Pittsburgh Monday night, after a day of back-platform appearances through Pennsylvania. On the same night Mr. Truman talks at Akron, Ohio.

Henry A. Wallace, the Progressive party nominee, was to talk in Minneapolis tonight (Sunday), flying in

RUSSIANS STUDY PROPOSALS MADE BY NEUTRAL SIX

Vishinsky Transmits Security Council's Compromise To Kremlin

ARGENTINA'S CHIEF HAS BELIEF PLAN WILL WORK

PARIS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Efforts of the security council's "neutral six" to settle the Berlin clash and dodge a veto were reported tonight under scrutiny in the Kremlin.

United Nations sources said proposals on Berlin by the six members were transmitted to Moscow by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky. Their nature was not disclosed. Earlier reports said it involved lifting the Soviet blockade while the four-power foreign ministers council attempts a German settlement.

Some sources said the need to await a Kremlin reply caused the six members to favor delaying until Tuesday or later the next council meeting on the Berlin issue.

Juan A. Bramuglia of Argentine, temporary council president for the Berlin debate, met today with representatives of the other five smaller nations—Belgium, China, Colombia, Syria, and Canada. Western power spokesmen call them neutrals on the Berlin issue.

Bramuglia, who is spearheading the search for a "no veto" formula, met secretly yesterday with Vishinsky. Bramuglia has not approached any American officials since then.

Syria's Faris El Khouri reported "some progress" by Bramuglia, the Argentine foreign minister. El Khouri said the conversations will continue over the week end.

Charles E. Bohlen, one of the U. S. state department's top advisors on Germany and Russia, cancelled plans for a trip out of Paris tomorrow. Thus he would be available here for any conversations with the six representatives.

Secretary of State Marshall was conferring in Washington with President Truman on the international situation. This conference took place amid unconfirmed reports Mr. Tru-

EDUCATORS URGE COMMITTEE END

Abolition Of House Un-American Activities Group Asked By Teachers

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. —(AP)— Three hundred educators tonight called for abolition of the house un-American activities committee and the withdrawal of the president's loyalty order.

The teachers took the action in resolution unanimously passed at a conference of academic freedom, sponsored by the national council of the arts, sciences and professions.

They also demanded abolition of "local and state counterparts" of the un-American activities committee.

Resolutions charged that the various committees, including the Tenney committee in California and the Canwell committee in Washington state, "used the press of this nation to prejudge witnesses, endangering their personal security with irresponsible smears and innuendos."

"Because of the particular nature of the activities of artists, intellectuals and educators in seeking to promote freedom of thought, these groups during the past year have been singled out for concentrated attack," a resolution charged.

O. John Rogge, former special assistant to the U. S. attorney general, and a member of the council law division, announced that legal defense committees to protect academic freedom would be set up in every state.

He said they would give legal air to teachers or students whose positions are threatened "because of association with or discussion of progressive ideas."

Dr. Kirtley P. Mather, professor of geology at Harvard University introduced several persons he described as "victims of U. S. fascism."

They included T. Barton Akeley, former professor at Olivet college in

BOYS' PLEA SAVES 'MOM' FROM JAIL

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 9.—(AP)—"Don't send my mom to jail," two boys—one 12, the other 7—cried in unison as their 52-year-old mother was led from a courtroom.

Judge Henry Ellenbogen reconsidered. He suspended, pending an investigation, a three-month prison sentence for Mrs. Nellie Thomas accused of illegally receiving public relief funds.

The woman was charged yesterday with accepting $578 in relief while employed as a $16-a-week charwoman two years ago.

FORWARD-LOOKING LABOR PLANS ARE PROMISED BY GOP

Dewey Issues Pledge After Passing Up Comment On Miners' Backing

ESSENTIAL PROTECTIONS, BENEFITS PART OF PLAN

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A "forward-looking" labor program was promised today by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as he passed up comment on the tacit endorsement from the United Mine Workers.

Preparing to set out tomorrow night on a new campaign tour, the Republican presidential nominee let it be known he would devote his first formal address to the labor issue.

In a talk broadcast (CBS) from 8:30 to 9 p. m. (EST) from Pittsburgh, Paul Lockwood, his secretary, said Dewey "will discuss the major role which labor and industry must play in a united America."

"He will outline a forward-looking program to better the conditions of the working men and women of our country," Lockwood said, adding:

"He will propose essential protections and benefits so that they can go forward in a world of peace in which human rights and human progress will flourish and increase."

Although Lockwood did not say so, there seemed little doubt that Dewey would voice support for the Taft-Hart-

STATE TO AID IN DRAINAGE PROJECT

Local Delegation Receives Pledge Of Assistance From State

Headed by Senator John F. McCormick and Representative John E. Coon, a delegation from Ouachita parish recently conferred with Director J. Lester White, state department of public works, regarding the parish-wide drainage system now under construction in Ouachita parish. During the conference Colonel White stated that though several drainage projects have now been awarded, an exact estimate as to ultimate cost of the completed system would be rather difficult at this time. It appears, however, that due to the spiraling cost of labor and materials since the initial estimate was made and further, due to extra laterals required to complete the system the raising of additional funds will be necessary. While neither the state nor the parish is responsible for added labor and material costs, the department of public works is definitely anxious that the drainage system be completed in time and in a manner that will provide the needed relief.

Following the conference with Colonel White, the delegation met with Governor Long, and the governor, in view of the needed additional laterals and unexpected increased costs, authorized Colonel White to provide state participation in meeting needed additional finances in a substantial amount over and above the usual pro-rata share.

The delegation which accompanied Colonel White to the conference with the governor, in addition to Senator McCormick and Representative Coon, was composed of A. E. Montgomery, president of police jury and member L. U. Fourmy, T. D. Tillman, F. G. Studdard and W. J. Vinson and Tom Hicks, president of the Tensas parish levee board and police juror and W. W. McBride, parish engineer.

Rep. Shady Wall was unable to attend the conference, but assured the local delegation of his wholehearted assistance.

PAINTERS DO WORK ON WRONG STEEPLE

EDWARDSVILLE, Kas., Oct. 9. —(AP)— The congregations of the Christian and Methodist Churches are not quite sure what would be the Christian thing to do.

Both have been renovating their church buildings for respective sixtieth anniversaries. The Christian congregation painted their church up to the steeple. They hired two stepplejacks from Kansas City to paint the spire. The professional painters arrived, did a fine job—on the Methodist steeple.

Now the red-faced painters wonder who will pay them.

The Methodists said they were satisfied with the job but why should they pay for someone else's mistake? The Christians, on the other hand suggest it's unfair for them to pay for a job done on another church' steeple, especially since they will still have to have their own painted.

French Are Promised Action Against Reds

Premier Says Agitation Among Workers Has Assumed Proportions Of Rebellion; Pledges Moves For Protection

PARIS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Premier Henri Queuille told the French people tonight Communist-led strike agitation was assuming the character of rebellion and the government would use all necessary means to halt it.

He spoke over the radio to a nation harassed by a six-day coal walkout and facing a general railroad strike. The mine strike has cost the nation 1,000,000 tons of coal. The Communists were believed aiming at wrecking the European recovery program and toppling the Queuille government.

Communist labor bosses were increasingly busy organizing strike votes among France's 400,000 railroad workers. Some stoppages have already occurred, but the full brunt of a rail tieup was not expected before next week.

"The right to strike is a sacred right," Queuille told the French nation. "The right of a nation to live is not less sacred. The first duty of the government is to assure the life of the nation. It is not going to fail."

The premier did not mention Communists by name, but asked if the origin of the strikes could not be found in the "political preoccupations of certain persons," he added:

"It is inadmissible that anyone should ask the workers to take part in action against the generous aid given us by the United States of America, and that the right to strike should serve to exercise on the foreign affairs of a nation an intolerable pressure."

He said the government will use "the necessary means to halt agitation which is taking on an insurrectional character."

He said the coal strike is costing France 160,000 tons of coal a day and the "stopping of coke oven fires practically means their destruction, representing a loss of 10,000,000 francs.

"The working class must understand, and will understand, I am certain, the gravity of a situation which actually is working to the impoverish-

STATES' RIGHTS ELECTORS PULLED

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 9. —(AP)— The original states' right Democratic presidential electors were withdrawn today from Louisiana's November general election ballot.

The electors were filed in behalf of Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi before Thurmond and Wright were designated as the official Democratic candidates by the party's central committee on Sept. 10.

Their withdrawal leaves four sets of presidential electors on the ballot; Louisiana's official Democratic ticket of Thurmond and Wright; the "Truman-Barkley party" for President Truman and Sen. Alben Barkley," the Republican ticket and the Progressive party ticket.

An act of the recent special session of the legislature permitted electors to be filed for Mr. Truman.

The Democratic designation, as well as the party emblem in Louisiana-the rooster, were reserved for Thurmond and Wright. Trumanites, forbidden to describe themselves as Democrats, chose the donkey for their symbol.

The withdrawal papers were filed just before the 5 p. m. deadline by District Attorney Leander Perez of

FOURTEEN MAJOR UPSETS ARE FEATURE OF SATURDAY GAMES

By Harold Claassen

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—College football tossed the script out of the window today and played strictly by ear—with these oh, me! O, my! results:

Michigan 40, Purdue 0.
Cornell 40, Harvard 6.
Missouri 20, Southern Methodist 14.
Canisius 30, Fordham 21.
Oklahoma 20, Texas 14.
Dartmouth 19, Holy Cross 6.
St. Bonaventure 7, Boston College 7.
Clemson 21, Mississippi State 7.
George Washington 20, Virginia 12.
Texas Christian 7, Indiana 6.
Iowa 14, Ohio State 7.
Colorado 19, Nebraska 6.
Santa Clara 27, Stanford 0.
Baylor 23, Arkansas 7.

Everyone of those results is an upset. Even when the collegians followed form they did it in a heart-weakening manner. Army rolled up 26 points on Illinois and had just enough strength left to put out the Big Nine team's fire after it had counted 21 points.

Michigan State led mighty Notre Dame 7 to 6 at the end of the first period, but finally lost 26 to 7. Minnesota pounded out 16 quick points before careless Northwestern awakened for a 19 to 16 victory.

It probably was the greatest day of upsets since a college dignitary described a football as a prolate spheroid filled with crazy bounces.

Michigan and Cornell were the biggest surprises. Each was no better than an even choice before the game time. Yet each garnered 40 points—Michigan against the Purdue team that Notre Dame eked out by a single tally and Cornell over a Harvard team that last week thrashed a good Columbia eleven.

Missouri and Oklahoma, a pair of underdog Big Seven machines, defeated the twin powerhouses of the southwest circuit by the identical

MARSHALL LEAVES

U. N. MEMBERS OUTLOOK MAIN OBSTACLE TO PLAN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—President Truman disclosed today that he had considered—and rejected on the advice of Secretary of State Marshall—an extraordinary mission by Chief Justice Vinson to tell Moscow how the American people feel about "the atomic problem."

Vinson was to have undertaken a personal attempt to straighten the Russian leaders out on this grave matter, Mr. Truman said in a statement.

The plan was dropped, he said, because of the general situation as reported by Marshall and because of the "possibilities of misunderstanding" which might grow out of a single-handed action by the United States.

Marshall, in a late day news conference, noted that he had seen reports of "a split between the president and the secretary of state." He added emphatically: "There is no foundation for this."

Marshall flew home from the Paris meeting of the United Nations this morning to give Mr. Truman his views; the president himself cut short his political campaigning to talk things over with his secretary of state.

They met amid published reports of a projected-and-abandoned mission to Moscow by Vinson. These reports went unconfirmed and undenied up to the late day White House statement.

Then, after two White House conferences in which Marshall and Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett sat in, the White House released Mr. Truman's explanation of what he had proposed and why he had dropped it.

The facts, said Mr. Truman, are as follows:

"On last Tuesday, when I communicated with Secretary Marshall, I told him of my continuing great desire to see peace firmly established in the world, and of my particular concern at this time over the attitude taken by the Soviet representatives regarding the atomic problem.

"I said that I was wondering whether their attitude did not reflect a misunderstanding in the minds of the Soviet leaders so serious, from the standpoint of world peace in general, that we would be remiss if we left undone anything that might conceivably serve to dispel it. I asked the secretary whether he felt that a useful purpose would be served by sending to Moscow Chief Justice Vinson, in an effort to make the Soviet leaders understand the seriousness and sincerity of the feelings of the people of the United States about these matters.

"Secretary Marshall described to me the situation which we faced in Paris, and, in the light of his report and the possibilities of misunderstanding to which any unilateral action, however desirable otherwise, could lead at present, I decided not to take this step."

International control of atomic energy has been one of the major problems of the U. N. meeting in Paris, although the Russian blockade of Berlin has provided the most serious immediate concern.

Marshall at his news conference—which was timed right after the White Statement—said that the United States stands ready to enter any negotiations with Russia in the council of foreign ministers—provided that first the Berlin blockade is lifted.

The Russians have shown an interest in the idea of talks on the foreign ministers level covering the whole problem of Germany.

As for agreement with Russia on international control of atomic energy in a way that would satisfy the western powers, Marshall said this would be highly unlikely without what he called a peaceful intent.

Marshall said he had heard from abroad that the United Nations delegations are all keyed up by the publication of the Vinson-to-Moscow proposal. Publication of this, he said, has served only to muddy the waters.

He expressed hope that Mr. Truman's statement today, explaining his idea, would calm European apprehension about a possible one-nation approach to Russia by the U. S., in contrast with the established policy of joint action with other countries.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—There were indications today a new oil field has been found about 15 miles northwest of Jennings in Jefferson Davis parish of south Louisiana.

The discovery well is Irwin and Hudson's Houssiere-LeTraille No. 1, section 6-8S-5W. It is in the Langley area about four miles southwest of the China field.

The well has been completed and is expected to produce about 75 barrels of oil per day after a heater and other special equipment is installed to separate from the oil emulsion water which flowed on a test at 8966-36 feet.

WOOD FIRES ARE BEYOND CONTROL

Greatest Number Of Flames In History Of Organized Fire-Fighting Seen

The severity of forest fires blanketing both Ouachita and Jackson parishes in the past two days have never been equaled in the history of organized fire fighting, L. A. Roland, district fire commissioner, disclosed here last night.

The extremely dry conditions in both parishes gives us no assurance that there will be any stopping it for several days, Roland said.

Sunday is expected to be even worse as far as forest fires go, in number as well as in severity, the fire commissioner pointed out. The reason, Roland said, is that more hunters are expected to be in the forest and will invariably lend to more carelessness.

In Jackson parish, the Holly Grove blaze resumed its destructive path yesterday, spreading over an estimated 1,000 acres. The area, Commissioner Roland stated, is made up mostly of timber land.

Six fires were reported still raging in Jackson parish last night. They were located in the northeast, central and south central sections of the parish.

Company crews and state firefighters extinguished a dozen more yesterday in the parish.

Eight forest blazes are visible from the Jonesboro-Monroe highway in southwest Ouachita parish, one of which, still eating away at timber, covers roughly 300 acres and was set off late Friday afternoon.

Roland attributed the majority of forest fires in this area to carelessness and arson.

Several calls for help were received at the district headquarters from the Fairbanks area, but no definite loss in acreage was determined.

Roland, in a statement last night, termed the fire situation extremely serious, with millions of dollars at stake.

Chief of Fire Control W. C. Valentine made an aerial survey of both parishes to determine what measures should be taken in forest fire control. His suggestions were not available late last night.

TRUMAN, DEWEY HEAD TRAINS BACK INTO CRUCIAL MIDWEST

(By Associated Press)

Governor Dewey and President Truman head for the hills and prairies of the midwest again tonight (Sunday), shuttling about on their special trains three weeks ahead of the presidential election.

Each will appear in Illinois, Indiana and Minnesota, among other states. Dewey's Republican drive will take him as far southwest as Oklahoma.

Mr. Truman, after carrying his Democratic campaign through Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and upstate New York, hurried back to Washington yesterday to meet Secretary of State Marshall, who flew in from Paris in the president's own plane.

The conference was arranged to discuss ways to achieve world peace, Mr. Truman told a Buffalo, N. Y., audience before heading back to the White House.

After two meetings between Mr. Truman and his secretary of state, the president disclosed officially that he had considered sending Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson on an extraordinary mission to Moscow to explain how the American people feel about "the atomic problem." Mr. Truman said, however, that he had dropped the project on the advice of General Marshall, following a transatlantic conversation last Tuesday.

Marshall told a news conference there was "no foundation" for reports of a split between him and the president.

News of the projected Vinson mission broke Friday night, and the capital had buzzed all day with speculation about the reasons for Marshall's flight home to confer with the president.

Dewey's first major speech this week will be at Pittsburgh Monday night, after a day of back-platform appearances through Pennsylvania. On the same night Mr. Truman talks at Akron, Ohio.

Henry A. Wallace, the Progressive party nominee, was to talk in Minneapolis tonight (Sunday), flying in

RUSSIANS STUDY PROPOSALS MADE BY NEUTRAL SIX

ARGENTINA'S CHIEF HAS BELIEF PLAN WILL WORK

PARIS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Efforts of the security council's "neutral six" to settle the Berlin clash and dodge a veto were reported tonight under scrutiny in the Kremlin.

United Nations sources said proposals on Berlin by the six members were transmitted to Moscow by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky. Their nature was not disclosed. Earlier reports said it involved lifting the Soviet blockade while the four-power foreign ministers council attempts a German settlement.

Some sources said the need to await a Kremlin reply caused the six members to favor delaying until Tuesday or later the next council meeting on the Berlin issue.

Juan A. Bramuglia of Argentine, temporary council president for the Berlin debate, met today with representatives of the other five smaller nations—Belgium, China, Colombia, Syria, and Canada. Western power spokesmen call them neutrals on the Berlin issue.

Bramuglia, who is spearheading the search for a "no veto" formula, met secretly yesterday with Vishinsky. Bramuglia has not approached any American officials since then.

Syria's Faris El Khouri reported "some progress" by Bramuglia, the Argentine foreign minister. El Khouri said the conversations will continue over the week end.

Charles E. Bohlen, one of the U. S. state department's top advisors on Germany and Russia, cancelled plans for a trip out of Paris tomorrow. Thus he would be available here for any conversations with the six representatives.

Secretary of State Marshall was conferring in Washington with President Truman on the international situation. This conference took place amid unconfirmed reports Mr. Tru-

EDUCATORS URGE COMMITTEE END

Abolition Of House Un-American Activities Group Asked By Teachers

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. —(AP)— Three hundred educators tonight called for abolition of the house un-American activities committee and the withdrawal of the president's loyalty order.

The teachers took the action in resolution unanimously passed at a conference of academic freedom, sponsored by the national council of the arts, sciences and professions.

They also demanded abolition of "local and state counterparts" of the un-American activities committee.

Resolutions charged that the various committees, including the Tenney committee in California and the Canwell committee in Washington state, "used the press of this nation to prejudge witnesses, endangering their personal security with irresponsible smears and innuendos."

"Because of the particular nature of the activities of artists, intellectuals and educators in seeking to promote freedom of thought, these groups during the past year have been singled out for concentrated attack," a resolution charged.

O. John Rogge, former special assistant to the U. S. attorney general, and a member of the council law division, announced that legal defense committees to protect academic freedom would be set up in every state.

He said they would give legal air to teachers or students whose positions are threatened "because of association with or discussion of progressive ideas."

Dr. Kirtley P. Mather, professor of geology at Harvard University introduced several persons he described as "victims of U. S. fascism."

They included T. Barton Akeley, former professor at Olivet college in

BOYS' PLEA SAVES 'MOM' FROM JAIL

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 9.—(AP)—"Don't send my mom to jail," two boys—one 12, the other 7—cried in unison as their 52-year-old mother was led from a courtroom.

Judge Henry Ellenbogen reconsidered. He suspended, pending an investigation, a three-month prison sentence for Mrs. Nellie Thomas accused of illegally receiving public relief funds.

The woman was charged yesterday with accepting $578 in relief while employed as a $16-a-week charwoman two years ago.

FORWARD-LOOKING LABOR PLANS ARE PROMISED BY GOP

Dewey Issues Pledge After Passing Up Comment On Miners' Backing

ESSENTIAL PROTECTIONS, BENEFITS PART OF PLAN

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A "forward-looking" labor program was promised today by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as he passed up comment on the tacit endorsement from the United Mine Workers.

Preparing to set out tomorrow night on a new campaign tour, the Republican presidential nominee let it be known he would devote his first formal address to the labor issue.

In a talk broadcast (CBS) from 8:30 to 9 p. m. (EST) from Pittsburgh, Paul Lockwood, his secretary, said Dewey "will discuss the major role which labor and industry must play in a united America."

"He will outline a forward-looking program to better the conditions of the working men and women of our country," Lockwood said, adding:

"He will propose essential protections and benefits so that they can go forward in a world of peace in which human rights and human progress will flourish and increase."

Although Lockwood did not say so, there seemed little doubt that Dewey would voice support for the Taft-Hart-

STATE TO AID IN DRAINAGE PROJECT

Local Delegation Receives Pledge Of Assistance From State

Headed by Senator John F. McCormick and Representative John E. Coon, a delegation from Ouachita parish recently conferred with Director J. Lester White, state department of public works, regarding the parish-wide drainage system now under construction in Ouachita parish. During the conference Colonel White stated that though several drainage projects have now been awarded, an exact estimate as to ultimate cost of the completed system would be rather difficult at this time. It appears, however, that due to the spiraling cost of labor and materials since the initial estimate was made and further, due to extra laterals required to complete the system the raising of additional funds will be necessary. While neither the state nor the parish is responsible for added labor and material costs, the department of public works is definitely anxious that the drainage system be completed in time and in a manner that will provide the needed relief.

Following the conference with Colonel White, the delegation met with Governor Long, and the governor, in view of the needed additional laterals and unexpected increased costs, authorized Colonel White to provide state participation in meeting needed additional finances in a substantial amount over and above the usual prorata share.

The delegation which accompanied Colonel White to the conference with the governor, in addition to Senator McCormick and Representative Coon, was composed of A. E. Montgomery, president of police jury and member L. U. Fourmy, T. D. Tillman, F. G. Studdard and W. J. Vinson and Tom Hicks, president of the Tensas parish levee board and police juror and W. W. McBride, parish engineer.

Rep. Shady Wall was unable to attend the conference, but assured the local delegation of his wholehearted assistance.

PAINTERS DO WORK ON WRONG STEEPLE

EDWARDSVILLE, Kas., Oct. 9. —(AP)— The congregations of the Christian and Methodist Churches are not quite sure what would be the Christian thing to do.

Both have been renovating their church buildings for respective sixtieth anniversaries. The Christian congregation painted their church up to the steeple. They hired two stepplejacks from Kansas City to paint the spire. The professional painters arrived, did a fine job—on the Methodist steeple.

Now the red-faced painters wonder who will pay them.

The Methodists said they were satisfied with the job but why should they pay for someone else's mistake? The Christians, on the other hand suggest it's unfair for them to pay for a job done on another church steeple, especially since they will still have to have their own painted.

French Are Promised Action Against Reds

Premier Says Agitation Among Workers Has Assumed Proportions Of Rebellion; Pledges Moves For Protection

PARIS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Premier Henri Queuille told the French people tonight Communist-led strike agitation was assuming the character of rebellion and the government would use all necessary means to halt it.

He spoke over the radio to a nation harassed by a six-day coal walkout and facing a general railroad strike. The mine strike has cost the nation 1,000,000 tons of coal. The Communists were believed aiming at wrecking the European recovery program and toppling the Queuille government.

Communist labor bosses were increasingly busy organizing strike votes among France's 400,000 railroad workers. Some stoppages have already occurred, but the full brunt of a rail tieup was not expected before next week.

"The right to strike is a sacred right," Queuille told the French nation. "The right of a nation to live is not less sacred. The first duty of the government is to assure the life of the nation. It is not going to fail."

The premier did not mention Communists by name, but asked if the origin of the strikes could not be found in the "political preoccupations of certain persons," he added:

"It is inadmissible that anyone should ask the workers to take part in action against the generous aid given us by the United States of America, and that the right to strike should serve to exercise on the foreign affairs of a nation an intolerable pressure."

He said the government will use "the necessary means to halt agitation which is taking on an insurrectional character."

He said the coal strike is costing France 160,000 tons of coal a day and the "stopping of coke oven fires practically means their destruction, representing a loss of 10,000,000 francs.

"The working class must understand, and will understand, I am certain, the gravity of a situation which actually is working to the impoverish-

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 9. —(AP)— The original states' right Democratic presidential electors were withdrawn today from Louisiana's November general election ballot.

The electors were filed in behalf of Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi before Thurmond and Wright were designated as the official Democratic candidates by the party's central committee on Sept. 10.

Their withdrawal leaves four sets of presidential electors on the ballot; Louisiana's official Democratic ticket of Thurmond and Wright; the "Truman-Barkley party" for President Truman and Sen. Alben Barkley," the Republican ticket and the Progressive party ticket.

An act of the recent special session of the legislature permitted electors to be filed for Mr. Truman.

The Democratic designation, as well as the party emblem in Louisiana-the rooster, were reserved for Thurmond and Wright. Trumanites, forbidden to describe themselves as Democrats, chose the donkey for their symbol.

The withdrawal papers were filed just before the 5 p. m. deadline by District Attorney Leander Perez of

FOURTEEN MAJOR UPSETS ARE FEATURE OF SATURDAY GAMES

By Harold Claassen

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—College football tossed the script out of the window today and played strictly by ear—with these oh, me! O, my! results:

Michigan 40, Purdue 0.
Cornell 40, Harvard 6.
Missouri 20, Southern Methodist 14.
Canisius 30, Fordham 21.
Oklahoma 20, Texas 14.
Dartmouth 19, Holy Cross 6.
St. Bonaventure 7, Boston College 7.
Clemson 21, Mississippi State 7.
George Washington 20, Virginia 12.
Texas Christian 7, Indiana 6.
Iowa 14, Ohio State 7.
Colorado 19, Nebraska 6.
Santa Clara 27, Stanford 0.
Baylor 23, Arkansas 7.

Everyone of those results is an upset. Even when the collegians followed form they did it in a heart-weakening manner. Army rolled up 26 points on Illinois and had just enough strength left to put out the Big Nine team's fire after it had counted 21 points.

Michigan State led mighty Notre Dame 7 to 6 at the end of the first period, but finally lost 26 to 7. Minnesota pounded out 16 quick points before careless Northwestern awakened for a 19 to 16 victory.

It probably was the greatest day of upsets since a college dignitary described a football as a prolate spheroid filled with crazy bounces.

Michigan and Cornell were the biggest surprises. Each was no better than an even choice before the game time. Yet each garnered 40 points—Michigan against the Purdue team that Notre Dame eked out by a single tally and Cornell over a Harvard team that last week thrashed a good Columbia eleven.

Missouri and Oklahoma, a pair of underdog Big Seven machines, defeated the twin powerhouses of the southwest circuit by the identical

MARSHALL LEAVES

U. N. MEMBERS OUTLOOK MAIN OBSTACLE TO PLAN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—President Truman disclosed today that he had considered—and rejected on the advice of Secretary of State Marshall—an extraordinary mission by Chief Justice Vinson to tell Moscow how the American people feel about "the atomic problem."

Vinson was to have undertaken a personal attempt to straighten the Russian leaders out on this grave matter, Mr. Truman said in a statement.

The plan was dropped, he said, because of the general situation as reported by Marshall and because of the "possibilities of misunderstanding" which might grow out of a single-handed action by the United States.

Marshall, in a late day news conference, noted that he had seen reports of "a split between the president and the secretary of state." He added emphatically: "There is no foundation for this."

Marshall flew home from the Paris meeting of the United Nations this morning to give Mr. Truman his views; the president himself cut short his political campaigning to talk things over with his secretary of state.

They met amid published reports of a projected-and-abandoned mission to Moscow by Vinson. These reports went unconfirmed and undenied up to the late day White House statement.

Then, after two White House conferences in which Marshall and Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett sat in, the White House released Mr. Truman's explanation of what he had proposed and why he had dropped it.

The facts, said Mr. Truman, are as follows:

"On last Tuesday, when I communicated with Secretary Marshall, I told him of my continuing great desire to see peace firmly established in the world, and of my particular concern at this time over the attitude taken by the Soviet representatives regarding the atomic problem.

"I said that I was wondering whether their attitude did not reflect a misunderstanding in the minds of the Soviet leaders so serious, from the standpoint of world peace in general, that we would be remiss if we left undone anything that might conceivably serve to dispel it. I asked the secretary whether he felt that a useful purpose would be served by sending to Moscow Chief Justice Vinson, in an effort to make the Soviet leaders understand the seriousness and sincerity of the feelings of the people of the United States about these matters.

"Secretary Marshall described to me the situation which we faced in Paris, and, in the light of his report and the possibilities of misunderstanding to which any unilateral action, however desirable otherwise, could lead at present, I decided not to take this step."

International control of atomic energy has been one of the major problems of the U. N. meeting in Paris, although the Russian blockade of Berlin has provided the most serious immediate concern.

Marshall at his news conference—which was timed right after the White Statement—said that the United States stands ready to enter any negotiations with Russia in the council of foreign ministers—provided that first the Berlin blockade is lifted.

The Russians have shown an interest in the idea of talks on the foreign ministers level covering the whole problem of Germany.

As for agreement with Russia on international control of atomic energy in a way that would satisfy the western powers, Marshall said this would be highly unlikely without what he called a peaceful intent.

Marshall said he had heard from abroad that the United Nations delegations are all keyed up by the publication of the Vinson-to-Moscow proposal. Publication of this, he said, has served only to muddy the waters.

He expressed hope that Mr. Truman's statement today, explaining his idea, would calm European apprehension about a possible one-nation approach to Russia by the U. S., in contrast with the established policy of joint action with other countries.

NEW OIL FIELD IS INDICATED IN LA.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—There were indications today a new oil field has been found about 15 miles northwest of Jennings in Jefferson Davis parish of south Louisiana.

The discovery well is Irwin and Hudson's Houssiere-LeTraille No. 1, section 6-8S-5W. It is in the Langley area about four miles southwest of the China field.

The well has been completed and is expected to produce about 75 barrels of oil per day after a heater and other special equipment is installed to separate from the oil emulsion water which flowed on a test at 8906-38 feet.

Fog Around Henry Wallace

On the day when he virtually conceded the 1948 presidential election to someone else, Henry Wallace said to his campaign manager, C. B. Baldwin, "We've got to build a party, Beanie, we've got to build a party."

The first fruits of this belated advice are exhibited in Mr. Baldwin's announcement that the third party is endorsing or withdrawing opposition from some 25 liberal Democratic candidates for congress. This adds another touch of contradiction and confusion to one of the most illogical of the serious political movements in our history.

Apparently the move is intended to provide a wedge for Mr. Wallace's re-entry into the Democratic party, or at least its non-Dixiecrat branch, in time for 1952. It is an obvious bid for the support of the Roosevelt family, the Wilson Wyatts and Chester Bowleses and Helen Douglases and others who decided, early in the game, that for all their new deal sympathies they wouldn't touch the Communist-rigged movement of ex-New Dealer Wallace.

It is also an obvious bid for the labor vote, whose leaders have stayed away from Mr. Wallace as pointedly as the rest of the big-name new dealers and millions of others who supported Franklin D. Roosevelt. Perhaps, as some have surmised, it is a concession to the more moderate elements of the Wallace party, but that is open to question.

One thing seems evident, however. Mr. Wallace has made his move too late. This latest about-face does not square with the general tone of a campaign which one political writer has aptly wrapped up in the slogan, "My Country, Always Wrong."

It is interesting to note that Mr. Baldwin, in announcing the switch, admitted that third-party endorsement of a candidate could amount to a kiss of death. In explaining why third party candidates had been withdrawn from several races, he spoke of "pressure and threats of withdrawal of financial support exerted on many Democrats if they accepted our endorsement."

In choosing the candidates that it would support, the third party used the C. I. O. yardstick for determining the liberality of congressional incumbents from their voting record. This is the same C. I. O. that Mr. Wallace has accused of many grievous errors, including working for the interests of those monsters of reaction, the steel industry.

And in choosing the party of its newly-chosen candidates, the Wallaceites picked one which, according to their standard-bearer, is indistinguishable from the Republicans in such matters as eagerness for war, control by Wall street, and the taking of candy away from babies.

So if voters were puzzled about what the third party stood for before, outside of a blanket apology for everything done by the Kremlin, they must be doubly puzzled now. They are confronted by the spectacle of Mr. Wallace still going around the country roundly condemning the party of a couple dozen candidates that his own party is trying to get elected.

About the only clear thing that emerges from this thickening political fog is the picture of the presidential candidate himself, who is looking less like a mystic reformer and misguided messiah, and more like a politician who doesn't care much what else happens so long as he can help defeat the man who embarrassed him by giving him a well-deserved boot out of the cabinet and, indirectly, prevented him from sitting in the White House today.

LITERARY FOOTNOTES

An interesting study in relativity of survival is provided by the recent death of an Irish peer, James Boswell Talbot, sixth Baron Talbot de Malahide, at Malahide Castle in County Dublin. There has descended to him the hereditary title, conferred by Edward IV upon a direct ancestor, of Lord Admiral of Mahilde and the Adjacent Seas.

Reputed to be the oldest inhabited stronghold in Ireland, the castle had been in the possession of the family for 774 years, since 1174.

To the present generation Lord Talbot was known as a horse lover and a breeder of racing champions. There is the strongest likelihood that posterity will know him principally in recurring footnotes to Johnsoniana, as the great-great-grandson of James Boswell—he was Bozzy to his familiars—who was the author of the biography of all biographies, "The Life of Samuel Johnson."

For it was in a dungeon of Malahide Castle that, in Lord Talbot's incumbency in the period from 1927 to 1937, were found diaries and letters of Boswell, the original manuscript of Boswell's "Journal of a Tour of the Hebrides with Samuel Johnson," and a diary of the Great Cham himself, the notations comprising only 84 pages, though they dealt with the period from 1765 to 1784.

It is not Johnson, the great and innovating lexicographer, or Johnson the literateur, but the greatest of all recorded conversationalists that Boswell has given us. We could wish for more, but, like Mercrutio's wound, "'t is enough, 't will serve."

'TAIN'T SO FUNNY

A Canadian official warns his countrymen against entering into correspondence with "pen pals" in Europe, especially behind the Iron Curtain, who might turn out to be spies. He says that some requests from these "pen pals" have already been received, asking for pictures of Canadian docks and harbors in return for pictures of "our beautiful cathedrals."

To some this warning might seem an almost amusing example of looking under the bed for enemy agents. But remember the little Japs who roamed this country with their little cameras in the Thirties? They were funny, too, until Dec. 7, 1941.

IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9.—Insiders at Universal-International predict that Deanna Durbin's contract will not be renewed when it expires next spring. . . . I hear that 20th Century-Fox is mulling plans to film Jean Harlow's life story with Barbara Lawrence in the top role. . . . Reconciled: Author William Saroyan and his missus, now second-honey-mooning in New York. . . . Bob (Bing's brother) Crosby has decided to reorganize the orchestra he disbanded during the war and re-enter the dance band business.

Singer Nan Wynn and her estranged spouse, Cy Howard, are discussing reconciliation. . . . Wotzis about Joan Crawford feuding with Director Michael Curtis over the story line to be taken in "Flamingo Road"? . . . Ann Richards, the Australian star who clicked big in "Sorry, Wrong Number," will swap "I Do's" this month with Edmund Angelo, New York stage director. . . . Hear Irene Dunne is planning a concert tour of veteran hospitals, come spring.

Judy Garland, too thin to cast a visible shadow when she quit work three months ago, has gained fifteen pounds during the lay-off, and is shopping for a new wardrobe. . . Time out for Freeman Gosden ("Amos" of "Amos and Andy") stricken with a heart attack. . . . Pals predict that Robert Sterling and Lee Russell will wind up at the altar. . . . Warner Brothers will offer Bette Davis a new term ticket, to run for 15 years, when her present contract expires—and I hear she'll accept despite her frequent threats to free lance.

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of a lackluster week: 20th Century-Fox's "Unfaithfully Yours" (Rex Harrison-Linda Darnell-Rudy Vallee-Barbara Lawrence). A meandering story, offset by some of the finest orchestral music used in a picture in years. . . . GOOD: Universal-International's "Rogues' Regiment" (Dick Powell-Marta Toren-Vincent Price-Stephen McNally). Action melodrama, laid in post-war Germany, and thrilling enough to increase any fan's pulse beat. . . ROUTINE: Monogram's "Crossed Trails" (Johnny Mack Brown-Raymond Hatton-Lynne Carver). Little Nell gets her ranch saved again. . . . LOW BRIDGE: Film Classics' "Inner Sanctum" (Mary Beth Hughes-Charles Russell). For murder mystery addicts only. . . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Stephen McNally in "Rogues' Regiment."

Almost before the ink had time to dry on Larry Parks' agreement to star in the sequel to "The Jolson Story," one or two columnists tried to revive the argument about who's responsible for whose success—Al Jolson or Larry Parks. Let's hope we're not in for another seige of that! Why, for heaven's sake, can't BOTH Jolson and Parks take the credit that's due them without columnists bleating that one or the other is getting a raw deal? There wouldn't be any sequel to "The Jolson Story" if there hadn't been both the "party of the first part" and the "party of the second part" to make the original picture an outstanding box-office hit.

Trade papers reported the other day that Producer Lester Cowan may reissue "G. I. Joe," the picture in which Robert Mitchum first won screen fame. Obviously, the inspiration for the move is the belief that Mitchum's arrest on a narcotics charge has made him "hot box-office." On the same day that item appeared in the trade papers, a new vaudeville act opened at a down-town Los Angeles theater. A girl on the stage kept trying to praise her favorite brand of cigarets, and every time she paused, a stooge in the gallery objected that he preferred another brand. "Who are you?" she finally demanded. "Robert Mitchum," was the shouted answer. And now, with those two bits of information in mind—the plan to re-issue "G. I. Joe" and the "hilarious" vaudeville routine—consider the fact that official spokesmen for the entertainment industry have gone out of their way to blast columnists for decrying conditions in Hollywood. What do you think?

Last week I received publicity items advising me that no less than seven movie luminaries are writing books and have signed contracts with publishers. If, at first thought, such items seem to indicate that screen success and literary ability go hand in hand, think again. They merely prove, once more, that the standards of American publishers have hit a new low. Ninety-nine of every 100 books authored by stars to date have been unmitigated junk.

Now that "The Rope" is showing a profit, Roger Price wonders which independent producer will be the first to film "The Shoestring."

THE "RIGHT" TO LAUGH

Among all the rights that have been "cussed and discussed" during recent years, there is one most important right that seems to have been overlooked—the right to laugh.

Of course, the right to laugh may be part of the right to the pursuit of happiness, but anyway we look at it, it is surely one of the inalienable rights that belong to the individual and not a right to be granted to him.

That is not true in a dictatorship, though—and that's the difference between the totalitarian form of government and the democratic form of government. Here in this country we consider it our right to laugh at anything we please—at our president, at our congress, at the Democratic party, at the Republican party, at all the other parties, at ourselves, and at each other. We do it openly and we don't care who knows it.

That is part of our freedom. But nobody in Germany openly laughed at Hitler or at the Nazi party. Nobody in Italy laughed at Mussolini or at the Fascist party. Nobody in Japan laughed at Hirohito. And if anybody in Russia is laughing at Stalin and the Communist party, we can be quite sure he is doing it up one of those ample sleeves in the Russian blouse.

Neither the dictator nor the dictatorship can stand the light of laughter—and that is one of the distinguishing marks of their weakness. Any person or any system that can't stand laughter just can't stand. We might well paraphrase the old saying that "He who laughs last, laughs best" into "He who laughs, lasts."

It has always seemed to me that a sense of humor is one of the American people's greatest assets. Maybe a sense of humor hasn't made America great, but it has had its share. Maybe it didn't win our wars, but it did its part. A sense of humor will sometimes see a person through when nothing else will. We have seen this typical characteristic of the American people illustrated on the far-flung battlefields of the world during the recent war, when American boys cracked jokes and laughed even as the gates of death swung wide.

We might well ask ourselves why a sense of humor is such a predominant characteristic of the American people. And when carefully considered, there can hardly be but one answer to the question; namely, that it is due to our philosophy of government, it is due to the type of government under which we have lived—a government based on freedom of the individual. Ours was the first government in the world to recognize the supremacy of the individual; ours was the first government in the world that belonged to the people rather than the people to the government.

It is this sense of freedom that gives us our sense of humor. It is this feeling that he is master of his fate, this knowledge that he can carve out his own destiny that enables an American to laugh at the foibles and fallacies of life.

We could wish nothing better for ourselves in the years ahead and for our children and our children's children than that we and they shall retain the ability to laugh, the opportunity to laugh, the right to laugh. Laughter is not a sign of weakness; it is a sign of strength. The American people are perhaps never more serious than when they are laughing. Laughter is simply the agent that leavens the American loaf.

While we are on the subject, we might comment on the fact that there has never been a more appropriate time in the history of our nation for the American people to exercise this right than the present.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

"Oh How I Love Thy Law," declares the Psalmist in Psalm 119:97.

It would be a remarkable statement if it were found anywhere else but in the Bible, and on the part of anyone but a devout Israelite. The good citizen in the most law-abiding community, may have respect for the law. He may obey it scrupulously, or resist it, if he feels any of its provisions to be unjust. But he hardly feels any affection for it.

Why, then, did the devout Israelite profess such a deep and intense affection for the law? And Psalm 119:97 is only one of a great many passages in the Old Testament that express the same emotion and devotion.

It was because "the law" to the devout ideal of individual Israelite represented the perfect ideal of individual character and of the relations of men to one another. It was the law of God, the expression of God's will, inviting the deepest and highest thoughts and meditation of the sincere, and full of wondrous things (Psalm 119:18).

It was the tragedy of Israel that the law, which to the noblest and the devout was concentrated in the purpose to love God with all the heart, soul, mind, and strength, became corrupted into a multiplicity of rites and observance in some that to heal moral value.

The Sabbath, sacred symbol of the law, had become so corrupted in its observance by some that to heal a fellowman on the Sabbath was wrong, though it was not wrong to harbor hateful and murderous thoughts against the Christ who did the healing.

All law, whether of God or of man, is subject to such degradation. Men interpret and pervert the laws of God to their own ends, presuming to attach divine sanction to their own purposes and enactments. The law that ought to be the bulwark of freedom, for the maintenance of human rights and the defense against wrongs, in the hands of dictators and usurpers of power, becomes an instrument of oppression.

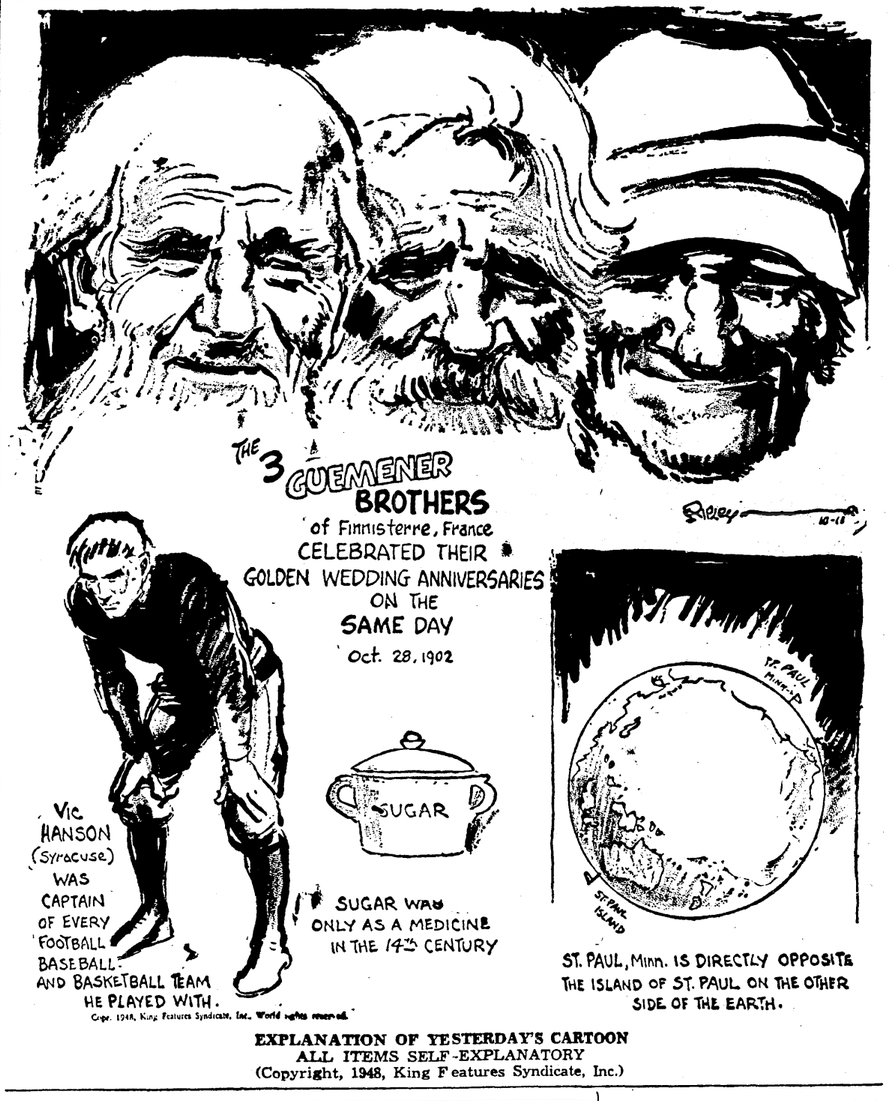

Over a great part of the world today this is what has happened. Masses of men, who wish only to live and work in peace, live in fear, in fear of those who ought to be their protectors, if law and government had their proper validity.

The laws of man may fall far short of the law of God as the perfect ideal, but insofar as they represent order, security and protection, we need an increasing vision of what law can be and ought to be. We need a deeper respect for law in fulfilling its purpose.

And insofar as law is a fundamental instrument of democracy, perhaps we need a love of the law, akin to that of the devout Hebrew.

These Days
By George E. Sokolsky

MOLOTOV ON U. S.

There was a time when the state department greeted Molotov as a friend and ally and tried to paint dear Uncle Joe as an intimate member of our family. Nevertheless, on August 1, 1940, Molotov had this to say about the United States:

"Imperialist appetites are growing . . . also in the United States, where there are not a few people who like to conceal their imperialist designs behind a well-advertised 'concern' for the interests of the entire 'western hemisphere,' which these gentlemen are prepared to turn into their property with all its numerous republics, and with the colonial possessions of other countries on islands in the neighborhood of the American continent.

"All this harbors the danger of the further extension and fanning of the war and its being turned into a world imperialist war."

And on the same date, he had this to say:

"I will not dwell on our relations with the United States of America, if only for the reason that there is nothing good that can be said about them. We have learned that there are certain people in the United States who are not pleased with the successes of Soviet foreign policy in the Baltic countries. But we must confess that we are little concerned over this fact, inasmuch as we cope with our tasks without the assistance of these displeased gentlemen. However, the fact that the authorities in the United States unlawfully placed an embargo on the gold which our State Bank recently purchased from the banks of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia meets with most energetic protest on our part. In this case we can only remind both the government of the United States and the government of Great Britain, which adopted the same procedure, of their responsibility for these illegal acts."

These quotations, in themselves, are of no importance. Molotov, Vishinsky, Gromyko, and lesser persons have said worse. The significance of the quotations lies in the fact that they were spoken during the Hitler-Stalin alliance, when Soviet Russia was aiding Germany in a brutal war, when England stood alone to take the worst strafing that any nation in all this war suffered, and when Molotov could say:

"Lately the foreign and particularly the English and Anglophile press has been frequently speculating on the possibility of disagreements between the Soviet Union and Germany, and attempting to intimidate us by the prospect of the growth of Germany's might. These attempts have been exposed more than once by ourselves as well as by Germany and swept aside as worthless. We can only reiterate that in our opinion, the good-neighborly, friendly relations that have been established between the Soviet Union and Germany are not based on fortuitous considerations of a transient nature, but on fundamental state interests of both the U. S. S. R. and Germany."

What is happening in Paris today with regard to Berlin is of a piece with Molotov's statements in August, 1940. By June 21, 1941, Hitler had changed his mind about Soviet Russia and they were at war. Immediately Harry Hopkins rushed into the breach and became Stalin's friend—a friendship which cost the United States $11,000,000,000 in lend-lease and bought for us the most potent enemy in our history.

A pro-Russian element developed in the state department under the leadership of Dean Acheson. It is an error to speak of them all as Communists, fellow-travelers, spies and saboteurs. It is too easy to explain away ignorance, stupidity, willful stiffneckedness. These men leaned toward Russia not as toward an ally, but as a mother might shower gifts upon an errant child in the hope that kindliness would win respect and love. This became the grand policy of Franklin D. Roosevelt. To it, the United States was sacrificed.

Most astonishing is the lack of historic knowledge which guided these men. They came to believe in the Hegelian doctrine of inevitability. They came to believe the propaganda which they were handing out to the American people. They might have said that we needed Russia and were willing to pay for Russia's services; it was not necessary to say that the mercenary was decent. The price we have paid in confusion is greater than the price we paid in money.

What Others Say
Editors' Roundtable

WESTERN EUROPEAN ALLIANCE

Editors agree that the Western European Alliance depends upon American military aid. Almost all editors favor implementing the Vandenberg resolution with such aid. Only a very few flatly oppose it. A few call for guarantees that such an alliance will never become a "balance of power" against America. Those favoring aid caution that such demands must be carefully coordinated with our own military expenses and the European Recovery Program.—Majority opinion is that the United States will have to join—in addition to arming—the alliance.

Phoenix (Ariz.) Gazette (Ind.-Dem.): "Arms must be supplied to the Western European Union by the United States, and in huge quantity, before the joint forces of the five-power alliance can offer more than a token resistance to an onslaught by enemies from the East. This is a grim but realistic view. It is the only logical comment on the formation of a military command for the Allied army, at whose head will be the redoubtable Field Marshall Montgomery."

Washington (D. C.) Daily News (Ind.): "When the Western Union was formed last spring President Truman, addressing congress, pledged United States backing. Later the senate passed the Vandenberg resolution of support . . . Our Marshall Plan aid for economic recovery, important as that is, can only fatten our allies for a Soviet kill unless they have guns for defense."

Topeka (Kans.) State Journal (Ind.): "The question before congress if military defensive alliances should be entered into . . . would be not only how right are we in doing this, but how able? . . . Should congress consider whether we are playing into Communist hands when we promise to load our economy with more burdens than it can continuously bear? Is it not the breakdown of our system that the Communists want as the easy way to impose their own?"

Milwaukee (Wis.) Journal (Ind.): "The American people may have to decide—and soon—on the question of full American participation in the western defense union—perhaps by expanding it into an Atlantic defense union. Meanwhile . . . without any formal adherence, we are working with Britain, France and the Benelux countries on the common problem of a united defense against Soviet-Communist aggression. Shall we go to full adherence? That is probably the biggest and most far reaching question the American people have to consider now."

Chicago Tribune (Ind.): "Once we assume the protection of all of the further prospective victims of Russia, we shall be compelled to go to war on their motion whenever they scream for the American cop. Meanwhile, having acquired an official American pledge of protection, they will be in a position to blackmail us for huge grants of arms and economic aid to bolster their position on the ground that this is necessary to the 'common cause.' "

Minneapolis (Minn.) Star (Ind.): "For the moment, the primary concern is working out military support to the western European defense organization, whether it means revived lend-lease or something else. The course we take beyond that will depend—as the whole world peace depends—on whether Russia is determined on aggression or will honestly try to make the U. N. work."

Dallas (Tex.) Morning News (Ind.-Dem.): "It is clear . . . that we will have to pledge instant help with our own large and growing military forces, in the event the Soviets move against the West. Call that a military and political alliance, if you will. But anything short of a working defense compact such as we already have with Canada will make a mockery of Monty's new command. Fortunately, we already have an 'observer' staff with the defense committee set up by the five Foreign Ministers of the European group. It is headed by Maj. Gen. A. Franklin Kibler."

Boston (Mass.) Traveler (Ind.): "Will this new western union assume Britain's historic (balance of power) role? On that question hinges everything, in the long term view. If so, it means that the western union might at some future date side with Russia against the United States . . . Before the western union can count on our support, we should have the most solemn of guarantees that never in the foreseeable future will the concept of the balance of power be revived."

ESTABLISH LIGHTING FOR BERLIN AIRLIFT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—To help keep the Berlin airlift running through the dark days and storms of this winter, special lighting equipment is being installed at Tempelhof Field.

The air force announced today a set of 40 high-intensity lights to penetrate fog, darkness and rain will go into operation at the Berlin end of the air route in November. The equipment has been flown to Germany recently.

The lights will be installed at each side of the main runway for a distance of 3,000 feet from the end of the runway. Pilots will use them to line up for the last phase of the approach for landing.

Tests of the light system have been made at Arcata, Calif., reputedly one of the foggiest places in the United States. There the air force, navy, civil aeronautics board and representatives of commercial airlines and pilots have collaborated in studying methods of blind landing aids.

The military air transport command, which is doing most of the actual operation in the Berlin lift, believes that when all navigational aids are working, a plane can be landed at Tempelhof every three minutes, regardless of visibility conditions.

Pitching Horseshoes
By Billy Rose

Billy Rose

I remember reading in a pocket magazine that something like 20,000 people in this country make their roast beef and room rent as ghost writers.

According to this article, most of these nameless Neds and Nellies do their stuff for books, magazines and newspapers, but there are also several thousand who make up speeches for business men and politicos who are long on lungs but short on language. And then there are those rarer wraiths who ghost-write briefs for lawyers.

Let me tell you about one of these faces on the courtroom floor and how it got there . . .

Marvin Jackson—I'll call him that out of deference to his wife, kids and income—occupies a shoebox of an office in downtown Manhattan, and his string of important clients would reach from Sixth avenue to the supreme court—if they thought they could get away with it. He is an anonymous as he is articulate, and to explain why, I'll have to flashback a decade to the days when Jackson was a lawyer-lobbyist in Washington, and was tabbed as a gent who knew his stuff and, more important, the right people.

One December day, two heavyset gents in chalk-stripes and snap-brims breezed past his secretary and closed the door carefully behind them.

"We have a case for you," said one of the visitors. "A friend of ours in Philadelphia owns a lot of things including a couple of cabarets, and a few days ago he killed one of his competitors on Market street. The cops are looking for our chum and we want you to cool him down to room temperature."

"You've come to the wrong man," said Jackson. "I don't handle criminal cases."

"We know that," said the hoodlum, "but we've been told you stand pretty good in Washington and can fix things. We've also been told that you make about forty grand a year. Well, here's half a year's pay for a retainer."

Jackson took a long look at the packet of thousand-dollar bills and said, "Let me think about it."

"Okay," said the Philadelphian. "We'll be back at 6."

The lawyer stashed the bills in his safe, walked to Capitol Hill, and ushered himself into the office of a southern senator who had accumulated considerable acclaim, fame and shame. The solon listened to the story and turned it over in his mind for all of 10 seconds.

"Perhaps I can help you," he said. "Tell your clients to keep their boss out of sight for a couple of weeks. On January 1, as you know, I'm to be inaugurated governor of my state, and if this toughie happens to be inside its boundaries after I take over, he can't be extradited unless I sign the papers. Well, I can think of a lot of reasons for not signing those papers—especially if I get $50,000 of the $100,000 you're going to ask as your fee."

When the gangsters came back that evening, Jackson outlined the proposition to them and they agreed. And on January 2, the fugitive climbed out of a private plane at an airfield in the new governor's bailiwick, and that night the $100,000 changed hands.

Had the murderer kept to the side streets, he might still be wearing initialed shirts, but gang bosses are seldom leary of the limelight—especially when they've bought a governor. Soon he was noising it up at the local night clubs, racetracks and fight arenas, and doing a little plain and fancy bragging about his immunity. This was promptly wired to police headquarters in Harrisburg, and shortly thereafter the governor of Pennsylvania sent a piece of paper to his colleague in the south.

This request for extradition was pigeonholed for several months, but one day an opposition newspaper got hold of the story and splashed it all over the front page. When a dozen papers began demanding that the governor be impeached, the ex-senator got scared and the cavorting killer was sent back to Philadelphia to stand trial.

Naturally, the bum's buddies were outraged and, out of the sides of their mouths, so informed Jackson.

"I'm sorry the governor couldn't keep his word," said the lawyer. "We'll be glad to return your hundred thousand."

"Plus six per cent interest, I suppose," sneered one of the mobsters. "Well, we don't want the money—we just want you to see to it that nothing happens to our friend."

Fearing for his life, Jackson did a silly thing. He bribed a minor official in the Washington jail to insert a forged identification card into the police files, which would show that the murderer had been arrested in the capital for a minor offense at the time he was supposed to have shot his competitor in Philadelphia.

But when this alibi was produced at the gangster's trial a few months later, it didn't stand up—too many witnesses testified they had seen the killing. The verdict was life imprisonment.

When the mysterious card from the jail file was investigated, the panicky official turned state's evidence, and Marvin Jackson was convicted and sent to Lewisburg penitentiary for 18 months. He came out of prison a ghost of his former self, and since he was disbarred from ever practicing law again, he decided to become a ghost for less talented lawyers.

As I write this, the gang boss is still in jail, and the legal spook continues to cast his shadow on the floors of our better courtrooms. As for the governor, he built a lot of bridges, paved a lot of roads, and one day collected a lot of bullets.

But that's another story.

Fog Around Henry Wallace

On the day when he virtually conceded the 1948 presidential election to someone else, Henry Wallace said to his campaign manager, C. B. Baldwin, "We've got to build a party, Beanie, we've got to build a party."

The first fruits of this belated advice are exhibited in Mr. Baldwin's announcement that the third party is endorsing or withdrawing opposition from some 25 liberal Democratic candidates for congress. This adds another touch of contradiction and confusion to one of the most illogical of the serious political movements in our history.

Apparently the move is intended to provide a wedge for Mr. Wallace's re-entry into the Democratic party, or at least its non-Dixiecrat branch, in time for 1952. It is an obvious bid for the support of the Roosevelt family, the Wilson Wyatts and Chester Bowleses and Helen Douglases and others who decided, early in the game, that for all their new deal sympathies they wouldn't touch the Communist-rigged movement of ex-New Dealer Wallace.

It is also an obvious bid for the labor vote, whose leaders have stayed away from Mr. Wallace as pointedly as the rest of the big-name new dealers and millions of others who supported Franklin D. Roosevelt. Perhaps, as some have surmised, it is a concession to the more moderate elements of the Wallace party, but that is open to question.

One thing seems evident, however. Mr. Wallace has made his move too late. This latest about-face does not square with the general tone of a campaign which one political writer has aptly wrapped up in the slogan, "My Country, Always Wrong."

It is interesting to note that Mr. Baldwin, in announcing the switch, admitted that third-party endorsement of a candidate could amount to a kiss of death. In explaining why third party candidates had been withdrawn from several races, he spoke of "pressure and threats of withdrawal of financial support exerted on many Democrats if they accepted our endorsement."

In choosing the candidates that it would support, the third party used the C. I. O. yardstick for determining the liberality of congressional incumbents from their voting record. This is the same C. I. O. that Mr. Wallace has accused of many grievous errors, including working for the interests of those monsters of reaction, the steel industry.

And in choosing the party of its newly-chosen candidates, the Wallaceites picked one which, according to their standard-bearer, is indistinguishable from the Republicans in such matters as eagerness for war, control by Wall street, and the taking of candy away from babies.

So if voters were puzzled about what the third party stood for before, outside of a blanket apology for everything done by the Kremlin, they must be doubly puzzled now. They are confronted by the spectacle of Mr. Wallace still going around the country roundly condemning the party of a couple dozen candidates that his own party is trying to get elected.

About the only clear thing that emerges from this thickening political fog is the picture of the presidential candidate himself, who is looking less like a mystic reformer and misguided messiah, and more like a politician who doesn't care much what else happens so long as he can help defeat the man who embarrassed him by giving him a well-deserved boot out of the cabinet and, indirectly, prevented him from sitting in the White House today.

LITERARY FOOTNOTES

An interesting study in relativity of survival is provided by the recent death of an Irish peer, James Boswell Talbot, sixth Baron Talbot de Malahide, at Malahide Castle in County Dublin. There has descended to him the hereditary title, conferred by Edward IV upon a direct ancestor, of Lord Admiral of Mahilde and the Adjacent Seas.

Reputed to be the oldest inhabited stronghold in Ireland, the castle had been in the possession of the family for 774 years, since 1174.

To the present generation Lord Talbot was known as a horse lover and a breeder of racing champions. There is the strongest likelihood that posterity will know him principally in recurring footnotes to Johnsoniana, as the great-great-grandson of James Boswell—he was Bozzy to his familiars—who was the author of the biography of all biographies, "The Life of Samuel Johnson."

For it was in a dungeon of Malahide Castle that, in Lord Talbot's incumbency in the period from 1927 to 1937, were found diaries and letters of Boswell, the original manuscript of Boswell's "Journal of a Tour of the Hebrides with Samuel Johnson," and a diary of the Great Cham himself, the notations comprising only 84 pages, though they dealt with the period from 1765 to 1784.

It is not Johnson, the great and innovating lexicographer, or Johnson the literateur, but the greatest of all recorded conversationalists that Boswell has given us. We could wish for more, but, like Mercrutio's wound, "'t is enough, 't will serve."

'TAIN'T SO FUNNY

A Canadian official warns his countrymen against entering into correspondence with "pen pals" in Europe, especially behind the Iron Curtain, who might turn out to be spies. He says that some requests from these "pen pals" have already been received, asking for pictures of Canadian docks and harbors in return for pictures of "our beautiful cathedrals."

To some this warning might seem an almost amusing example of looking under the bed for enemy agents. But remember the little Japs who roamed this country with their little cameras in the Thirties? They were funny, too, until Dec. 7, 1941.

IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9.—Insiders at Universal-International predict that Deanna Durbin's contract will not be renewed when it expires next spring. . . . I hear that 20th Century-Fox is mulling plans to film Jean Harlow's life story with Barbara Lawrence in the top role. . . . Reconciled: Author William Saroyan and his missus, now second-honey-mooning in New York. . . . Bob (Bing's brother) Crosby has decided to reorganize the orchestra he disbanded during the war and re-enter the dance band business.

Singer Nan Wynn and her estranged spouse, Cy Howard, are discussing reconciliation. . . . Wotzis about Joan Crawford feuding with Director Michael Curtis over the story line to be taken in "Flamingo Road"? . . . Ann Richards, the Australian star who clicked big in "Sorry, Wrong Number," will swap "I Do's" this month with Edmund Angelo, New York stage director. . . . Hear Irene Dunne is planning a concert tour of veteran hospitals, come spring.

Judy Garland, too thin to cast a visible shadow when she quit work three months ago, has gained fifteen pounds during the lay-off, and is shopping for a new wardrobe. . . Time out for Freeman Gosden ("Amos" of "Amos and Andy") stricken with a heart attack. . . . Pals predict that Robert Sterling and Lee Russell will wind up at the altar. . . . Warner Brothers will offer Bette Davis a new term ticket, to run for 15 years, when her present contract expires—and I hear she'll accept despite her frequent threats to free lance.

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of a lackluster week: 20th Century-Fox's "Unfaithfully Yours" (Rex Harrison-Linda Darnell-Rudy Vallee-Barbara Lawrence). A meandering story, offset by some of the finest orchestral music used in a picture in years. . . . GOOD: Universal-International's "Rogues' Regiment" (Dick Powell-Marta Toren-Vincent Price-Stephen McNally). Action melodrama, laid in post-war Germany, and thrilling enough to increase any fan's pulse beat. . . ROUTINE: Monogram's "Crossed Trails" (Johnny Mack Brown-Raymond Hatton-Lynne Carver). Little Nell gets her ranch saved again. . . . LOW BRIDGE: Film Classics' "Inner Sanctum" (Mary Beth Hughes-Charles Russell). For murder mystery addicts only. . . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Stephen McNally in "Rogues' Regiment."

Almost before the ink had time to dry on Larry Parks' agreement to star in the sequel to "The Jolson Story," one or two columnists tried to revive the argument about who's responsible for whose success—Al Jolson or Larry Parks. Let's hope we're not in for another seige of that! Why, for heaven's sake, can't BOTH Jolson and Parks take the credit that's due them without columnists bleating that one or the other is getting a raw deal? There wouldn't be any sequel to "The Jolson Story" if there hadn't been both the "party of the first part" and the "party of the second part" to make the original picture an outstanding box-office hit.

Trade papers reported the other day that Producer Lester Cowan may reissue "G. I. Joe," the picture in which Robert Mitchum first won screen fame. Obviously, the inspiration for the move is the belief that Mitchum's arrest on a narcotics charge has made him "hot box-office." On the same day that item appeared in the trade papers, a new vaudeville act opened at a down-town Los Angeles theater. A girl on the stage kept trying to praise her favorite brand of cigarets, and every time she paused, a stooge in the gallery objected that he preferred another brand. "Who are you?" she finally demanded. "Robert Mitchum," was the shouted answer. And now, with those two bits of information in mind—the plan to re-issue "G. I. Joe" and the "hilarious" vaudeville routine—consider the fact that official spokesmen for the entertainment industry have gone out of their way to blast columnists for decrying conditions in Hollywood. What do you think?

Last week I received publicity items advising me that no less than seven movie luminaries are writing books and have signed contracts with publishers. If, at first thought, such items seem to indicate that screen success and literary ability go hand in hand, think again. They merely prove, once more, that the standards of American publishers have hit a new low. Ninety-nine of every 100 books authored by stars to date have been unmitigated junk.

Now that "The Rope" is showing a profit, Roger Price wonders which independent producer will be the first to film "The Shoestring."

Pitching Horseshoes
By Billy Rose

Billy Rose

I remember reading in a pocket magazine that something like 20,000 people in this country make their roast beef and room rent as ghost writers.

According to thi article, most o these nameless Neds and Nellies do their stuff fo books, magazines and newspapers but there are also several thousand who make up speeches for business men and politicos who are long on lungs but short on language. And then there are those rarer wraiths who ghost-write briefs for lawyers.

Let me tell you about one of these faces on the courtroom floor and how it got there . . .

Marvin Jackson—I'll call him that out of deference to his wife, kids and income—occupies a shoebox of an office in downtown Manhattan, and his string of important clients would reach from Sixth avenue to the supreme court—if they thought they could get away with it. He is an anonymous as he is articulate, and to explain why, I'll have to flashback a decade to the days when Jackson was a lawyer-lobbyist in Washington, and was tabbed as a gent who knew his stuff and, more important, the right people.

One December day, two heavyset gents in chalk-stripes and snap-brims breezed past his secretary and closed the door carefully behind them.

"We have a case for you," said one of the visitors. "A friend of ours in Philadelphia owns a lot of things including a couple of cabarets, and a few days ago he killed one of his competitors on Market street. The cops are looking for our chum and we want you to cool him down to room temperature."

"You've come to the wrong man," said Jackson. "I don't handle criminal cases."

"We know that," said the hoodlum, "but we've been told you stand pretty good in Washington and can fix things. We've also been told that you make about forty grand a year. Well, here's half a year's pay for a retainer."

Jackson took a long look at the packet of thousand-dollar bills and said, "Let me think about it."

"Okay," said the Philadelphian. "We'll be back at 6."

The lawyer stashed the bills in his safe, walked to Capitol Hill, and ushered himself into the office of a southern senator who had accumulated considerable acclaim, fame and shame. The solon listened to the story and turned it over in his mind for all of 10 seconds.

"Perhaps I can help you," he said. "Tell your clients to keep their boss out of sight for a couple of weeks. On January 1, as you know, I'm to be inaugurated governor of my state, and if this toughie happens to be inside its boundaries after I take over, he can't be extradited unless I sign the papers. Well, I can think of a lot of reasons for not signing those papers—especially if I get $50,000 of the $100,000 you're going to ask as your fee."

When the gangsters came back that evening, Jackson outlined the proposition to them and they agreed. And on January 2, the fugitive climbed out of a private plane at an airfield in the new governor's bailiwick, and that night the $100,000 changed hands.

Had the murderer kept to the side streets, he might still be wearing initialed shirts, but gang bosses are seldom leary of the limelight—especially when they've bought a governor. Soon he was noising it up at the local night clubs, racetracks and fight arenas, and doing a little plain and fancy bragging about his immunity. This was promptly wired to police headquarters in Harrisburg, and shortly thereafter the governor of Pennsylvania sent a piece of paper to his colleague in the south.

This request for extradition was pigeonholed for several months, but one day an opposition newspaper got hold of the story and splashed it all over the front page. When a dozen papers began demanding that the governor be impeached, the ex-senator got scared and the cavorting killer was sent back to Philadelphia to stand trial.

Naturally, the bum's buddies were outraged and, out of the sides of their mouths, so informed Jackson.

"I'm sorry the governor couldn't keep his word," said the lawyer. "We'll be glad to return your hundred thousand."

"Plus six per cent interest, I suppose," sneered one of the mobsters. "Well, we don't want the money—we just want you to see to it that nothing happens to our friend."

Fearing for his life, Jackson did a silly thing. He bribed a minor official in the Washington jail to insert a forged identification card into the police files, which would show that the murderer had been arrested in the capital for a minor offense at the time he was supposed to have shot his competitor in Philadelphia.

But when this alibi was produced at the gangster's trial a few months later, it didn't stand up—too many witnesses testified they had seen the killing. The verdict was life imprisonment.

When the mysterious card from the jail file was investigated, the panicky official turned state's evidence, and Marvin Jackson was convicted and sent to Lewisburg penitentiary for 18 months. He came out of prison a ghost of his former self, and since he was disbarred from ever practicing law again, he decided to become a ghost for less talented lawyers.

As I write this, the gang boss is still in jail, and the legal spook continues to cast his shadow on the floors of our better courtrooms. As for the governor, he built a lot of bridges, paved a lot of roads, and one day collected a lot of bullets.

THE "RIGHT" TO LAUGH

Among all the rights that have been "cussed and discussed" during recent years, there is one most important right that seems to have been overlooked—the right to laugh.

Of course, the right to laugh may be part of the right to the pursuit of happiness, but anyway we look at it, it is surely one of the inalienable rights that belong to the individual and not a right to be granted to him.

That is not true in a dictatorship, though—and that's the difference between the totalitarian form of government and the democratic form of government. Here in this country we consider it our right to laugh at anything we please—at our president, at our congress, at the Democratic party, at the Republican party, at all the other parties, at ourselves, and at each other. We do it openly and we don't care who knows it.

That is part of our freedom. But nobody in Germany openly laughed at Hitler or at the Nazi party. Nobody in Italy laughed at Mussolini or at the Fascist party. Nobody in Japan laughed at Hirohito. And if anybody in Russia is laughing at Stalin and the Communist party, we can be quite sure he is doing it up one of those ample sleeves in the Russian blouse.

Neither the dictator nor the dictatorship can stand the light of laughter—and that is one of the distinguishing marks of their weakness. Any person or any system that can't stand laughter just can't stand. We might well paraphrase the old saying that "He who laughs last, laughs best" into "He who laughs, lasts."

It has always seemed to me that a sense of humor is one of the American people's greatest assets. Maybe a sense of humor hasn't made America great, but it has had its share. Maybe it didn't win our wars, but it did its part. A sense of humor will sometimes see a person through when nothing else will. We have seen this typical characteristic of the American peopole illustrated on the far-flung battlefields of the world during the recent war, when American boys cracked jokes and laughed even as the gates of death swung wide.

We might well ask ourselves why a sense of humor is such a predominant characteristic of the American people. And when carefully considered, there can hardly be but one answer to the question; namely, that it is due to our philosophy of government, it is due to the type of government under which we have lived—a government based on freedom of the individual. Ours was the first government in the world to recognize the supremacy of the individual; ours was the first government in the world that belonged to the people rather than the people to the government.

It is this sense of freedom that gives us our sense of humor. It is this feeling that he is master of his fate, this knowledge that he can carve out his own destiny that enables an American to laugh at the foibles and fallacies of life.

We could wish nothing better for ourselves in the years ahead and for our children and our children's children than that we and they shall retain the ability to laugh, the opportunity to laugh, the right to laugh. Laughter is not a sign of weakness; it is a sign of strength. The American people are perhaps never more serious than when they are laughing. Laughter is simply the agent that leavens the American loaf.

While we are on the subject, we might comment on the fact that there has never been a more appropriate time in the history of our nation for the American people to exercise this right than the present.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

"Oh How I Love Thy Law," declares the Psalmist in Psalm 119:97.

It would be a remarkable statement if it were found anywhere else but in the Bible, and on the part of anyone but a devout Israelite. The good citizen in the most law-abiding community, may have respect for the law. He may obey it scrupulously, or resist it, if he feels any of its provisions to be unjust. But he hardly feels any affection for it.

Why, then, did the devout Israelite profess such a deep and intense affection for the law? And Psalm 119:97 is only one of a great many passages in the Old Testament that express the same emotion and devotion.

It was because "the law" to the devout ideal of individual Israelite represented the perfect ideal of individual character and of the relations of men to one another. It was the law of God, the expression of God's will, inviting the deepest and highest thoughts and meditation of the sincere, and full of wondrous things (Psalm 119:18).

It was the tragedy of Israel that the law, which to the noblest and the devout was concentrated in the purpose to love God with all the heart, soul, mind, and strength, became corrupted into a multiplicity of rites and observance in some that to heal moral value.

The Sabbath, sacred symbol of the law, had become so corrupted in its observance b ysome that to heal a fellowman on the Sabbath was wrong, though it was not wrong to harbor hateful and murderous thoughts against the Christ who did the healing.

All law, whether of God or of man, is subject to such degradation. Men interpret and pervert the laws of God to their own ends, presuming to attach divine sanction to their own purposes and enactments. The law that ought to be the bulwark of freedom, for the maintenance of human rights and the defense against wrongs, in the hands of dictators and usurpers of power, becomes an instrument of oppression.

Over a great part of the world today this is what has happened. Masses of men, who wish only to live and work in peace, live in fear, in fear of those who ought to be their protectors, if law and government had their proper validity.

The laws of man may fall far short of the law of God as the perfect ideal, but insofar as they represent order, security and protection, we need an increasing vision of what law can be and ought to be. We need a deeper respect for law in fulfilling its purpose.

And insofar as law is a fundamental instrument of democracy, perhaps we need a love of the law, akin to that of the devout Hebrew.

These Days

MOLOTOV ON U. S.

There was a time when the state department greeted Molotov as a friend and ally and tried to paint dear Uncle Joe as an intimate member of our family. Nevertheless, on August 1, 1940, Molotov had this to say about the United States:

"Imperialist appetites are growing . . . also in the United States, where there are not a few people who like to conceal their imperialist designs behind a well-advertised 'concern' for the interests of the entire 'western hemisphere,' which these gentlemen are prepared to turn into their property with all its numerous republics, and with the colonial possessions of other countries on islands in the neighborhood of the American continent.

"All this harbors the danger of the further extension and fanning of the war and its being turned into a world imperialist war."

And on the same date, he had this to say:

"I will not dwell on our relations with the United States of America, if only for the reason that there is nothing good that can be said about them. We have learned that there are certain people in the United States who are not pleased with the successes of Soviet foreign policy in the Baltic countries. But we must confess that we are little concerned over this fact, inasmuch as we cope with our tasks without the assistance of these displeased gentlemen. However, the fact that the authorities in the United States unlawfully placed an embargo on the gold which our State Bank recently purchased from the banks of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia meets with most energetic protest on our part. In this case we can only remind both the government of the United States and the government of Great Britain, which adopted the same procedure, of their responsibility for these illegal acts."

These quotations, in themselves, are of no importance. Molotov, Vishinsky, Gromyko, and lesser persons have said worse. The significance of the quotations lies in the fact that they were spoken during the Hitler-Stalin alliance, when Soviet Russia was aiding Germany in a brutal war, when England stood alone to take the worst strafing that any nation in all this war suffered, and when Molotov could say:

"Lately the foreign and particularly the English and Anglophile press has been frequently speculating on the possibility of disagreements between the Soviet Union and Germany, and attempting to intimidate us by the prospect of the growth of Germany's might. These attempts have been exposed more than once by ourselves as well as by Germany and swept aside as worthless. We can only reiterate that in our opinion, the good-neighborly, friendly relations that have been established between the Soviet Union and Germany are not based on fortuitous considerations of a transient nature, but on fundamental state interests of both the U. S. S. R. and Germany."

What is happening in Paris today with regard to Berlin is of a piece with Molotov's statements in August, 1940. By June 21, 1941, Hitler had changed his mind about Soviet Russia and they were at war. Immediately Harry Hopkins rushed into the breach and became Stalin's friend—a friendship which cost the United States $11,000,000,000 in lend-lease and bought for us the most potent enemy in our history.

A pro-Russian element developed in the state department under the leadership of Dean Acheson. It is an error to speak of them all as Communists, fellow-travelers, spies and saboteurs. It is too easy to explain away ignorance, stupidity, willful stiffneckedness. These men leaned toward Russia not as toward an ally, but as a mother might shower gifts upon an errant child in the hope that kindliness would win respect and love. This became the grand policy of Franklin D. Roosevelt. To it, the United States was sacrificed.

Most astonishing is the lack of historic knowledge which guided these men. They came to believe in the Hegelian doctrine of inevitability. They came to believe the propaganda which they were handing out to the American people. They might have said that we needed Russia and were willing to pay for Russia's services; it was not necessary to say that the mercenary was decent. The price we have paid in confusion is greater than the price we paid in money.

What Others Say

WESTERN EUROPEAN ALLIANCE

Editors agree that the Western European Alliance depends upon American military aid. Almost all editors favor implementing the Vandenberg resolution with such aid. Only a very few flatly oppose it. A few call for guarantees that such an alliance will never become a "balance of power" against America. Those favoring aid caution that such demands must be carefully coordinated with our own military expenses and the European Recovery Program.—Majority opinion is that the United States will have to join—in addition to arming—the alliance.

Phoenix (Ariz.) Gazette (Ind.-Dem.): "Arms must be supplied to the Western European Union by the United States, and in huge quantity, before the joint forces of the five-power alliance can offer more than a token resistance to an onslaught by enemies from the East. This is a grim but realistic view. It is the only logical comment on the formation of a military command for the Allied army, at whose head will be the redoubtable Field Marshall Montgomery."

Washington (D. C.) Daily News (Ind.): "When the Western Union was formed last spring President Truman, addressing congress, pledged United States backing. Later the senate passed the Vandenberg resolution of support . . . Our Marshall Plan aid for economic recovery, important as that is, can only fatten our allies for a Soviet kill unless they have guns for defense."

Topeka (Kans.) State Journal (Ind.): "The question before congress if military defensive alliances should be entered into . . . would be not only how right are we in doing this, but how able? . . . Should congress consider whether we are playing into Communist hands when we promise to load our economy with more burdens than it can continuously bear? Is it not the breakdown of our system that the Communists want as the easy way to impose their own?"

Milwaukee (Wis.) Journal (Ind.): "The American people may have to decide—and soon—on the question of full American participation in the western defense union—perhaps by expanding it into an Atlantic defense union. Meanwhile . . . without any formal adherence, we are working with Britain, France and the Benelux countries on the common problem of a united defense against Soviet-Communist aggression. Shall we go to full adherence? That is probably the biggest and most far reaching question the American people have to consider now."

Chicago Tribune (Ind.): "Once we assume the protection of all of the further prospective victims of Russia, we shall be compelled to go to war on their motion whenever they scream for the American cop. Meanwhile, having acquired an official American pledge of protection, they will be in a position to blackmail us for huge grants of arms and economic aid to bolster their position on the ground that this is necessary to the 'common cause.' "

Minneapolis (Minn.) Star (Ind.): "For the moment, the primary concern is working out military support to the western European defense organization, whether it means revived lend-lease or something else. The course we take beyond that will depend—as the whole world peace depends—on whether Russia is determined on aggression or will honestly try to make the U. N. work."

Dallas (Tex.) Morning News (Ind.-Dem.): "It is clear . . . that we will have to pledge instant help with our own large and growing military forces, in the event the Soviets move against the West. Call that a military and political alliance, if you will. But anything short of a working defense compact such as we already have with Canada will make a mockery of Monty's new command. Fortunately, we already have an 'observer' staff with the defense committee set up by the five Foreign Ministers of the European group. It is headed by Maj. Gen. A. Franklin Kibler."

Boston (Mass.) Traveler (Ind.): "Will this new western union assume Britain's historic (balance of power) role? On that question hinges everything, in the long term view. If so, it means that the western union might at some future date side with Russia against the United States . . . Before the western union can count on our support, we should have the most solemn of guarantees that never in the foreseeable future will the concept of the balance of power be revived."

ESTABLISH LIGHTING FOR BERLIN AIRLIFT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—To help keep the Berlin airlift running through the dark days and storms of this winter, special lighting equipment is being installed at Tempelhof Field.

The air force announced today a set of 40 high-intensity lights to penetrate fog, darkness and rain will go into operation at the Berlin end of the air route in November. The equipment has been flown to Germany recently.

The lights will be installed at each side of the main runway for a distance of 3,000 feet from the end of the runway. Pilots will use them to line up for the last phase of the approach for landing.

Tests of the light system have been made at Arcata, Calif., reputedly one of the foggiest places in the United States. There the air force, navy, civil aeronautics board and representatives of commercial airlines and pilots have collaborated in studying methods of blind landing aids.

The military air transport command, which is doing most of the actual operation in the Berlin lift, believes that when all navigational aids are working, a plane can be landed at Tempelhof every three minutes, regardless of visibility conditions.

HIXSON BROS. END 1ST YEAR

Elaborate New Funeral Home Now Well Established Here

Just a little over a year ago, the beautiful funeral home of Hixson Brothers, 1110 Jackson street, was thrown open to the public. It had been erected at large expense and was prepared to serve the people of north Louisiana. A large two story colonial building was erected to care for the exacting requirements of this section of the state.

The company is now starting on its second year with bright prospects and the continued success of the first year of existence here gives promise of ever increasing business for the company.

On each side of the chapel are wide hallways which lead in to state rooms where the deceased lies in state until the hour of the memorial service. Since the family is the first consideration private rooms for their use adjoin each state room, each with a private entrance. This affords privacy for even the largest family before and during the funeral service. Adjoining the chapel is the music room where the music for the service is provided by a Hammond organ. Other accommodations on the first floor include a ladies' lounge, men's lounge, two business offices and a private arrangement office for use of the family in making plans for the services.

A wide stairway leads from the foyer to the second floor and enters into a third state room. Adjoining is a guest room which is provided for the family or relatives who wish to remain overnight. The large casket display room offers a wide selection while the infant display room is both unusual and important. Also on the second floor are rest rooms, a modern operating room, quarters for ambulance drivers, and a four-room apartment provided for the resident embalmer.

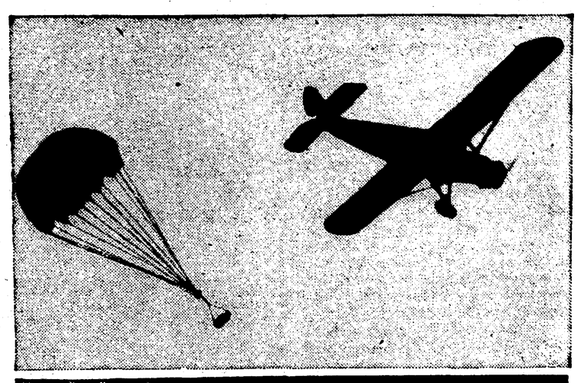

The garage, which is in the rear of the building can accommodate ten cars and houses the air conditioning equipment and other supplies. Adjoining the garage is an elevator to the second floor.

E. W. and J. W. Hixson head the firm which today owns and operates funeral homes in Monroe, Alexandria, Jena, Winnfield, Bunkie and Marksville. Associated with them are their two sons and daughter, E. W. Hixson, Jr., J. W. Hixson, Jr., and Marguerite Hixson, who have been trained to carry on the high traditions established by the company.

Progress in oil refining techniques has brought motorists an improved quality of gasoline which together with engine improvements, gives them about 25 per cent more efficiency as compared with the product of 20 years ago.

LITTLE THEATRE CURTAIN CALL

Little Theatre and its importance to the social and cultural interests of the community was brought out in special effect by Miss June Shultz, when she was invited to address the "Y-Teens". The "Y-Teens" is an organization for teen age girls sponsored by Miss Bess Sharp, director of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Shultz addressed the group on "The Little Theatre Movement in Monroe". She told them that "Little Theatre is a civic organization for people who are interested in good wholesome recreation for after hours and it is an opportunity for self expression that culminates in the entertainment of the public at large."

The young ladies were very much impressed by the address and manifested their sincerity through the many questions that were asked about the different phases of Little Theatre work and how they might help. Miss Shultz stressed the fact that "Little Theatre is an art that plays no favorite to age; there is a place for everyone—not grown ups only—She said "You are the future citizens and it is your pleasure and reponsibility as well as the grown ups."

Intimate notes from the realm of Little Theatre—The Newcomers supper party held at the W. J. Riley Camp last night was a big success. A number of Little Theatre people were present including the genial secretary of the Chamber of Commerce Herb Bailey and his wife Alice; Eleanor and Bob Dumm and Alice and Gil Findlay—Miss Ann Crandell, daughter of Mrs. C. K. Crandell, former board member of Little Theatre paid her parents a surprise visit this past week—Beth Breese's surprise birthday party following Friday night's rehearsal was a real treat to members of the cast. Helen and Durwood Griffin and Helen and John Allen were there—Margaret Watson artist and designer of Little Theatre's award scrolls, is a pledge to Delta Kappa down at L. S. U. where she is a junior this year—Tom Serwich, who so faithfully serves Little Theatre each year in stage design and setting, is lending a hand to the ladies of St. Matthews. He will arrange their windows in the Liggett building for the Bazaar—Wondering muse—We wonder what has happened to Bonnie Bennett (used to be Bonnie Holloway). She was a good little actress, remember her in the "Male Animal."

LITTLE THEATRE SKETCH

THOMAS M. HAYES, JR.—A native Monroyan and a prominent member of the young business men of this city, is a graduate of Neville High school and attended Washington-Lee. He graduated in law from Tulane University. Tom was a Lt. Commander in the Navy and served overseas from 1943 to 1945. He has been an active member of Little Theatre for many years and is at present serving on the board of directors. He appeared in "Front Page" last year and will be seen as the Judge in "The Night of January 16th". His hobbies are golf, tennis, fishing and hunting. He is an all around nice fellow whose civic interests alone claim for him a place as one of Monroe's outstanding citizens.

GUARDS ARE FORCED INTO MILKING CHORES

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Penitentiary guards went out on a search for two escaped convicts last night and ended up milking cows.

It started when a woman in a farming area south of here noticed that her cat kept shying away from the barn where it usually ate and slept.

She had heard about the escape of two convicts, Arthur St. Pere and William Gibson, from the Washington State Penitentiary. Thinking they might be hiding in the barn, she called the institution.

Twenty-five prison guards descended on the farm. They searched the barn and surroundings. They found no convicts.

Meanwhile, other wives in the neighborhood began worrying for fear the convicts might be in their barns. Their husbands were working in town and there were cows to be milked. But the women demurred at going out to do the job.

Tom Hubbard, captain of the prison guard, left four of his detail on the scene. They took care of the milking.

LONG'S BALLOT POWER DECLINES

Governor Establishes And Maintains Hold On Legislature

By Edmond Le Breton

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 9.—(AP)—What's the score on Governor Earl K. Long's administration after it has weathered three major tests in five months?

Politicians may interpret the results of two sessions of the legislature and a major election according to their affiliations, but this much seems clear:

The governor has established and maintained his hold on the legislature.

His faction has lost some ground with the electorate.

Although the special session of the legislature which ended a week ago devoted much of its time and energy to the presidential ballot dispute, there was one clear-cut test on an intra-state administration issue.

It came when Rep. Charles Duchein of East Baton Rouge Parish moved that the lawmakers ask the governor to include in the special business a reconsideration of portions of the record tax program enacted this year. That proposal was voted down by a margin reminiscent of the one-sided pro-administration votes of the regular session—79 to 12.

Duchein took pains to point out that he was not necessarily advocating that taxes should be reduced. He complained that he had not been able to get any figures on the state's intake and outlay and said he thought the legislature, with these figures before it, should be allowed to decide whether the gasoline and cigarette taxes could be cut.

But his fellow lawmakers made it plain that they were not back-tracking on their previous decision to support the governor in raising taxes some $80,000,000 a year.

Governor Long himself returned to the tax theme as the legislature wound up its work. At an unusual session with both houses, immediately after formal adjournment, he repeated his promise to approve repeal of any taxes found unnecessary and burdensome—but said the state would not be in a position to decide before 1950.

The decline of the Long faction's strength at the polls was underlined this week when opposition judicial tickets swept the second primary in New Orleans and Shreveport.

The key statewide race, settled in the first primary, resulted in a senatorial victory for Russell Long, the governor's nephew. But his margin was less than 11,000, compared with the majority of more than 200,000 Governor Long achieved in February. And in the first primary also many, though by no means all, of the secondary contests were won by opposition candidates.

The election returns showed where the major shift of sentiment had occurred—in the state's biggest cities. In the legislature, the backing for Duchein's tax reducing move showed the same trend.

The administration has one more voting test to stand, when the constitutional amendments backed by the governor come up for vote Nov. 2, but this is not too clear-cut a test. Campaigns are not normally waged for or against amendments and voters do not get as stirred up over a yes or no vote as they do over a doe versus doe vote. Still legislators were asked, before they left Baton Rouge, to help in the distribution of a pamphlet being prepared by the governor advocating passage of the 41 amendment proposals. The two singled out for special attention are the ones lifting the restriction on the amount of state board of liquidation may appropriate between sesisons of the legislature and another reorganizing the New Orleans dock board to give the governor free appointment of a majority of the members.

After the November vote, there is no ballot test on the horizon, and, unless an emergency develops, there will be no session of the legislature for 18 months.

Meanwhile, the school lunch fund has received a sizeable boost intended to make the noonday meals absolutely free through the state and state civil service, never popular with the present legislature, has been repealed, although the effects of repeal won't show for two weeks. The law becomes effective Oct. 23.

YOUTHFUL COUPLE ARE DROWNED AT BILOXI

BILOXI, Miss., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A 19-year-old Keesler Field soldier and his 18-year-old wife drowned in Mississippi Sound off Biloxi early today.

Police Captain Bob Costello said the dead couple was Pfc. Harry Rose and Mrs. Gloria Mae Rose of Cumberland, Md.

Their bodies were found in the water near an empty rowboat.

Capt. Gene Bellande, fishing camp operator, said the Roses rented the boat from him before dawn today.

Shortly after the couple rowed into the channel, Bellande said he heard a shout of "man overboard."

A number of shrimp boats were passing through the channel offshore at the time, headed for shrimping waters.

When dawn broke, Bellande said he saw the skiff in the water. When he went to it in another boat, he found the body of Mrs. Rose floating nearby.

Rose's body was recovered with a drag net about an hour later.

Artificial respiration was administered to Mrs. Rose until a physician pronounced her dead.

THE NATION TODAY By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Why can't the United States and Russia agree on controlling the atom bomb?

The big trouble is suspicion. We want to be sure Russia can't cheat. Russia doesn't trust us.

There are now two plans for outlawing the bomb.

Russia has one plan. The other has been worked out by the special atomic commission set up by the United Nations.

This plan has been approved by the big majority of the 11 nations in the commission, including this country. Russia, also on the commission, does not approve. Therefore, up to this time: No international control.

Briefly, this is the commission plan.

1. The 58 members of the U. N. agree to international control of the bomb.

2. Then the U. N. sets up the control machinery, such as a special agency, to see that no bombs are made. Just setting up the machinery might take months or years before everyone was sure it really had control.

3. Once the controls are working, the U. S. turns over to the agency any bombs it has. The same goes for any nation having bombs at that time.

(The agency can take the valuable atomic material in the bomb and let it be used for peaceful purposes).

4. At this point the U. S. turns over to the agency, which means the whole world, what it knows about making the bomb.

5. Neither the U. S. nor any nation taking part in the agreement can veto any action that the U. N. or its agency wants to take to prevent bomb-making. For example:

If the agency discovered the U. S. was trying to make the bomb secretly, the U. N. could vote any action against her—even such as attacking her—and the U. S. couldn't vote "no" to block it.

Note the steps carefully: Until the controls are really working the U. S. doesn't surrender its bombs or its knowledge of making them. What kind of controls?

The agency would stand constant guard on every country, being free to go any time, anywhere to make sure the bomb wasn't being made on the sly.

The U. S. considers its willingness to surrender its right to veto action against her a tremendous step toward controlling the bomb.

The U. N. commission decided any plan to outlaw the bomb would be a farce if any nation, like the U. S., or Russia, could prevent real control by using the veto.

Roughly, this is the Russian plan now:

1. It wants the right to veto action by the control agency.

2. It wants the U. S. to get rid of its bombs before any controls are set set up. It says it this way:

The U. S. must surrender its bombs at the very moment when the various nations agree to set up controls. In other words:

Russia wants the U. S. to surrender its bomb before the U. S. has a chance to see whether controls will work or whether Russia really means to let them work.

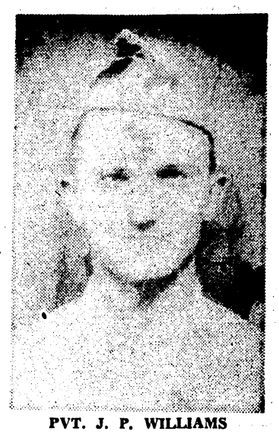

Further, since Russia wants to keep the veto power, it could block any move by the international agency to be sure Russia wasn't making the bomb secretly.

To this Russian proposal the American government says: Bunk.

The Russians say the American-approved plan is rigged in such a way that the U. S. could get world control of atomic emergency.

They say that this country, if it really wants peace and control of the bomb, should be willing to get rid of its bombs without delaying until all the control machinery is working.

LONG'S BALLOT POWER DECLINES

Governor Establishes And Maintains Hold On Legislature

By Edmond Le Breton

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 9.—(AP)—What's the score on Governor Earl K. Long's administration after it has weathered three major tests in five months?

Politicians may interpret the results of two sessions of the legislature and a major election according to their affiliations, but this much seems clear:

The governor has established and maintained his hold on the legislature.

His faction has lost some ground with the electorate.

Although the special session of the legislature which ended a week ago devoted much of its time and energy to the presidential ballot dispute, there was one clear-cut test on an intra-state administration issue.

It came when Rep. Charles Duchein of East Baton Rouge Parish moved that the lawmakers ask the governor to include in the special business a reconsideration of portions of the record tax program enacted this year. That proposal was voted down by a margin reminiscent of the one-sided pro-administration votes of the regular session—79 to 12.

Duchein took pains to point out that he was not necessarily advocating that taxes should be reduced. He complained that he had not been able to get any figures on the state's intake and outlay and said he thought the legislature, with these figures before it, should be allowed to decide whether the gasoline and cigarette taxes could be cut.

But his fellow lawmakers made it plain that they were not back-tracking on their previous decision to support the governor in raising taxes some $80,000,000 a year.

Governor Long himself returned to the tax theme as the legislature wound up its work. At an unusual session with both houses, immediately after formal adjournment, he repeated his promise to approve repeal of any taxes found unnecessary and burdensome—but said the state would not be in a position to decide before 1950.

The decline of the Long faction's strength at the polls was underlined this week when opposition judicial tickets swept the second primary in New Orleans and Shreveport.

The key statewide race, settled in the first primary, resulted in a senatorial victory for Russell Long, the governor's nephew. But his margin was less than 11,000, compared with the majority of more than 200,000 Governor Long achieved in February. And in the first primary also many, though by no means all, of the secondary contests were won by opposition candidates.

The election returns showed where the major shift of sentiment had occurred—in the state's biggest cities. In the legislature, the backing for Duchein's tax reducing move showed the same trend.

The administration has one more voting test to stand, when the constitutional amendments backed by the governor come up for vote Nov. 2, but this is not too clear-cut a test. Campaigns are not normally waged for or against amendments and voters do not get as stirred up over a yes or no vote as they do over a doe versus doe vote. Still legislators were asked, before they left Baton Rouge, to help in the distribution of a pamphlet being prepared by the governor advocating passage of the 41 amendment proposals. The two singled out for special attention are the ones lifting the restriction on the amount of state board of liquidation may appropriate between sesisons of the legislature and another reorganizing the New Orleans dock board to give the governor free appointment of a majority of the members.

After the November vote, there is no ballot test on the horizon, and, unless an emergency develops, there will be no session of the legislature for 18 months.

Meanwhile, the school lunch fund has received a sizeable boost intended to make the noonday meals absolutely free through the state and state civil service, never popular with the present legislature, has been repealed, although the effects of repeal won't show for two weeks. The law becomes effective Oct. 23.

LITTLE THEATRE CURTAIN CALL

Little Theatre and its importance to the social and cultural interests of the community was brought out in special effect by Miss June Shultz, when she was invited to address the "Y-Teens". The "Y-Teens" is an organization for teen age girls sponsored by Miss Bess Sharp, director of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Shultz addressed the group on "The Little Theatre Movement in Monroe". She told them that "Little Theatre is a civic organization for people who are interested in good wholesome recreation for after hours and it is an opportunity for self expression that culminates in the entertainment of the public at large."

The young ladies were very much impressed by the address and manifested their sincerity through the many questions that were asked about the different phases of Little Theatre work and how they might help. Miss Shultz stressed the fact that "Little Theatre is an art that plays no favorite to age; there is a place for everyone—not grown ups only—She said "You are the future citizens and it is your pleasure and responsibility as well as the grown ups."

Intimate notes from the realm of Little Theatre—The Newcomers supper party held at the W. J. Riley Camp last night was a big success. A number of Little Theatre people were present including the genial secretary of the Chamber of Commerce Herb Bailey and his wife Alice; Eleanor and Bob Dumm and Alice and Gil Findlay—Miss Ann Crandell, daughter of Mrs. C. K. Crandell, former board member of Little Theatre paid her parents a surprise visit this past week—Beth Breese's surprise birthday party following Friday night's rehearsal was a real treat to members of the cast. Helen and Durwood Griffin and Helen and John Allen were there—Margaret Watson artist and designer of Little Theatre's award scrolls, is a pledge to Delta Kappa down at L. S. U. where she is a junior this year—Tom Serwich, who so faithfully serves Little Theatre each year in stage design and setting, is lending a hand to the ladies of St. Matthews. He will arrange their windows in the Liggett building for the Bazaar—Wondering muse—We wonder what has happened to Bonnie Bennett (used to be Bonnie Holloway). She was a good little actress, remember her in the "Male Animal."

LITTLE THEATRE SKETCH

THOMAS M. HAYES, JR.—A native Monroyan and a prominent member of the young business men of this city, is a graduate of Neville High school and attended Washington-Lee. He graduated in law from Tulane University. Tom was a Lt. Commander in the Navy and served overseas from 1943 to 1945. He has been an active member of Little Theatre for many years and is at present serving on the board of directors. He appeared in "Front Page" last year and will be seen as the Judge in "The Night of January 16th". His hobbies are golf, tennis, fishing and hunting. He is an all around nice fellow whose civic interests alone claim for him a place as one of Monroe's outstanding citizens.

GUARDS ARE FORCED INTO MILKING CHORES

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Penitentiary guards went out on a search for two escaped convicts last night and ended up milking cows.

It started when a woman in a farming area south of here noticed that her cat kept shying away from the barn where it usually ate and slept.

She had heard about the escape of two convicts, Arthur St. Pere and William Gibson, from the Washington State Penitentiary. Thinking they might be hiding in the barn, she called the institution.

Twenty-five prison guards descended on the farm. They searched the barn and surroundings. They found no convicts.

Meanwhile, other wives in the neighborhood began worrying for fear the convicts might be in their barns. Their husbands were working in town and there were cows to be milked. But the women demurred at going out to do the job.

Tom Hubbard, captain of the prison guard, left four of his detail on the scene. They took care of the milking.

YOUTHFUL COUPLE ARE DROWNED AT BILOXI

BILOXI, Miss., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A 19-year-old Keesler Field soldier and his 18-year-old wife drowned in Mississippi Sound off Biloxi early today.

Police Captain Bob Costello said the dead couple was Pfc. Harry Rose and Mrs. Gloria Mae Rose of Cumberland, Md.

Their bodies were found in the water near an empty rowboat.

Capt. Gene Bellande, fishing camp operator, said the Roses rented the boat from him before dawn today.

Shortly after the couple rowed into the channel, Bellande said he heard a shout of "man overboard."

A number of shrimp boats were passing through the channel offshore at the time, headed for shrimping waters.

When dawn broke, Bellande said he saw the skiff in the water. When he went to it in another boat, he found the body of Mrs. Rose floating nearby.

Rose's body was recovered with a drag net about an hour later.

Artificial respiration was administered to Mrs. Rose until a physician pronounced her dead.

NEW PREACHER

REV. A. C. CANTRELL

PREACHER LICENSE GRANTED CANTRELL

McClendon Baptist Church, in a business session the past week, voted to license Almos Calvin Cantrell as preacher, and expressed their faith in his ability and consecration. He is already engaged in this line and is meeting with success, it was stated at the meeting.

The new preacher is son of Rev. and Mrs. D. D. Cantrell and his father has been an active pastor and church leader for 22 years and is regarded as one of the leading progressive pastors of the state. He has served half of his ministry in the Twin Cities.

THE NATION TODAY

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. —(AP)— Why can't the United States and Russia agree on controlling the atom bomb?

The big trouble is suspicion. We want to be sure Russia can't cheat. Russia doesn't trust us.

There are now two plans for outlawing the bomb.

Russia has one plan. The other has been worked out by the special atomic commission set up by the United Nations.

This plan has been approved by the big majority of the 11 nations in the commission, including this country. Russia, also on the commission, does not approve. Therefore, up to this time: No international control.

Briefly, this is the commission plan.

1. The 58 members of the U. N. agree to international control of the bomb.

2. Then the U. N. sets up the control machinery, such as a special agency, to see that no bombs are made. Just setting up the machinery might take months or years before everyone was sure it really had control.

3. Once the controls are working, the U. S. turns over to the agency any bombs it has. The same goes for any nation having bombs at that time.

(The agency can take the valuable atomic material in the bomb and let it be used for peaceful purposes).

4. At this point the U. S. turns over to the agency, which means the whole world, what it knows about making the bomb.

5. Neither the U. S. nor any nation taking part in the agreement can veto any action that the U. N. or its agency wants to take to prevent bomb-making. For example:

If the agency discovered the U. S. was trying to make the bomb secretly, the U. N. could vote any action against her—even such as attacking her—and the U. S. couldn't vote "no" to block it.

Note the steps carefully: Until the controls are really working the U. S. doesn't surrender its bombs or its knowledge of making them. What kind of controls?

The agency would stand constant guard on every country, being free to go any time, anywhere to make sure the bomb wasn't being made on the sly.

The U. S. considers its willingness to surrender its right to veto action against her a tremendous step toward controlling the bomb.

The U. N. commission decided any plan to outlaw the bomb would be a farce if any nation, like the U. S., or Russia, could prevent real control by using the veto.

Roughly, this is the Russian plan now:

1. It wants the right to veto action by the control agency.

2. It wants the U. S. to get rid of its bombs before any controls are set set up. It says it this way:

The U. S. must surrender its bombs at the very moment when the various nations agree to set up controls. In other words:

Russia wants the U. S. to surrender its bomb before the U. S. has a chance to see whether controls will work or whether Russia really means to let them work.

Further, since Russia wants to keep the veto power, it could block any move by the international agency to be sure Russia wasn't making the bomb secretly.

To this Russian proposal the American government says: Bunk.

The Russians say the American-approved plan is rigged in such a way that the U. S. could get world control of atomic emergency.

They say that this country, if it really wants peace and control of the bomb, should be willing to get rid of its bombs without delaying until all the control machinery is working.

STEEL OUTPUT TURNS UPWARD

Business Conditions As Whole Again Somewhat Spotty

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A sharp upturn in steel production featured a rising trend in industrial activity this week.

Business conditions on the whole again were a little spotty, however. Retail trade held up well in some areas but was backward in others; volume in textile markets was low and prices weakened further; business failures were the highest in two months and collections were reported slow in some areas that have experienced difficulty in attaining a normal fall pace in business operations after the summer slack season.

New declines in food prices, especially meats, was a welcome development for consumers on the inflationary front; the labor situation was relatively calm except for the Pacific coast maritime and oil refining strikes, and hope increased during the week for an easing in international tension.

The nation's steel mills set an enviable record this week. Finished steel production was scheduled at 1,757,400 tons. This equalled the postwar high established in mid-March, which in turn was the highest since early April, 1945, when the final push was underway that ended the European phase of the war.

In the previous week production totaled 1,737,300 tons and a month ago it was 1,703,300. A year ago it was 1,681,700 tons.

This week's output was near the full capacity of the industry, now at 1,802,476 tons weekly, it was possible because of favorable working conditions in the plants. These included a good coal supply, a minimum of worker absenteeism and belief that scrap supplies will be easier to get now that arrangements have been completed to start the flow from European battlefields.

Other lines of heavy industry kept in step with the increased tempo at the steel mills. Engineering construction awards moved up to near the best of the year at $170,200,000 from $128,139,000 in the previous week.

Crude oil output showed a further increase despite continued labor trouble on the Pacific coast. Production averaged 5,452,750 barrels daily against 5,343,100 in the previous week and 5,207,350 last year.

Automobile results were a shade under the high total of the preceding period but well above last year's output as nearly normal working conditions prevailed in the industry after the Briggs strike in September. The figures were 119,490 units this week against 121,475 a week earlier and 98,978 last year.

The home building construction boom took its place in that area of the economy that has come under observation to see if there are signs of a slowdown. On the surface everything is shipshape. Builders are as busy as they want to be in most areas.

But underneath the surface the story is a little different. Commitments for new houses are not as easy to get as they used to be; home seekers are reported to be getting more particular about what they want and what they will pay. On top of these developments is word that bankers all over the country are reluctant to loan money on new so-called "low-cost" homes despite the fact that some loans are guaranteed by the government.

Observers think this attitude gives the tip off to would be buyers that the value isn't there; that something is wrong that is not immediately apparent on the surface. As a result of all this the feeling is gaining ground that the bloom is off the building boom for keeps and a buyer's market is developing.

A senate investigation of the bank loan angle of the building boom is in the cards, according to Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) a member of the senate banking committee. He said the practice of withholding loans was widespread; that it was jeopardizing the housing program congress approved early this year and that if it continued it would be necessary for the government to get into the loan business.

Bankers, on the other hand, contend they are lending all the money on new houses sound banking practice allows; that prices in many cases are out of line with reality; down payments are too small and amortization spread over too long a period.

Experts held out little hope the widespread reductions in retail meat prices which received so much attention during the week would be anything more than a flash in the pan. It was brought about by a sudden influx of livestock at midwest centers and appeared to be fading as the week passed. Steaks that had sold for $1.25 a pound could be had this week for around a dollar and a few pennies were sliced off other cuts of beef and pork.

While this was going on, prices of some industrial materials moved another notch higher. Youngstown sheet & Tube and Carnegie-Illinois steel both upped pig iron $3 a ton; Derby Coil Co., joined the ranks of those paying 35 cents a barrel more for crude oil and increases of varying amounts were posted for several industrial chemicals. Aluminum Co., of America, the dominant element in in the industry, will increase prices a cent a pound next Monday.

The stock market, for a change, acted a little better. But public participation was almost nil. Daily turnover hovered in the one-half million share area, about half the total brokers says they need to break even with expenses. This dogged reluctance of people to get interested in the stock market is causing a lot of worry.

Some say it probably is due to our habit of getting jittery every time Russia kicks over the international applecart in some new and unexpected move at Paris or Berlin or Moscow. Others blame it on the growing feeling that our domestic economy is due for a shakeup in the none-too-distant future.

This week the United States Chamber of Commerce said "soft spots" are turning up in the nation's booming economy which led it to conclude from a survey of third quarter business and current trends that things would boom on through the rest of this year. The report is to be made public later.

The council was understood to have confined itself to a summary of third and fourth quarter highlights, leaving 1949 prospects to be dealt with later.

NERVE CENTER FOR FOREST FIRE CONTROL

Effective action on forest fires depends on quick and accurate spotting of new-born flames. Towers like the Luna Fire Observation structure, located approximately 13 miles southwest of Monroe atop the highest hill in the area, are expressly located about the Fifth district by the state forest commission, halt the fires at birth. Maintained by Eli Rawls, forest ranger for over 20 years, the tower is constantly operated during daylight hours in dry seasons when forest fires are likely. Aided by telescopes, binoculars, plotting maps, an unbelievable view in all directions and special telephone service, Rawls can start a squad toward a "baby" fire in the matter of minutes. He protects an area running south and east from Highway 80 to the Ouachita river and west to Jackson parish. At the upper right a view from the west windows of the structure looks out upon thousands of acres of pineland toward Jackson parish. The lower right picture looks toward Monroe over the residence of Mrs. Lawson Frost, owner of the farm on which the tower is located. On a clear day Twin City buildings can be seen easily without the aid of binoculars. The forest commission has three such towers in the Fifth district, one at Fairbanks and the other in Jackson parish.

POLICEMAN STILL GOING TO SCHOOL

34-Year-Old Officer Enrolled In Senior Class; Has Tough Schedule

FAIRHAVEN, Mass.—(NEA)— Al Raphael can get away with things at Fairhaven High School that would get any other pupil into a peck of trouble. The teachers give him all the breaks, and nobody complains. On the contrary, they approve.

That is because Al is carrying a schedule, in and out of school, that would break a horse's back.

To begin with, he is 34 years old, married and the father of three children.

He's a former member of the state police and now a regular member of the Fairhaven police department.

Five days a week he gets up at seven o'clock and, unless he has to go to court to testify against somebody he has arrested, he arrives at the high school at eight o'clock. He is a member of the senior class, assigned like the teen-agers to a home room, and from eight until two he goes from class to class to study room like any other high schooler.

At two he goes home and studies until time to report, at six, for police work. He gets off duty, home and into bed at three in the morning.

Of course, that's only five days a week. There are two more days when he isn't in classes, and he has one day off from police work. To occupy that spare time Al has a day's work with a security agency, and Friday nights he has a special police job.

Next June, if all goes well, as everybody who knows Al is sure it will, he will get the high school diploma that didn't look very important when he dropped out of school years ago without it.

What will he do then? Well, if he doesn't weaken he will spend another six years or so going to school whatever time he isn't earning his family's living.

Like an Irish cop in New York named O'Dwyer, who spent his spare time studying and later became an Army general and mayor of the metropolis, Al Raphael has decided to become a lawyer.

He's asking odds of nobody, and nobody is giving him odds. But Chester M. Downing, high school principal, goes so far as to say that "We admire him for his courage and determination."

And when he drops in late, and explains that "I had to go to court this morning," the teacher just nods instead of asking, as he would with any of the other boys:

"Well, what kind of trouble did you get into this time?"

ley act, but leave the way open for changes in that law.

President Truman has condemned it and demanded its repeal.

Dewey said last March the law was "soberly conceived and carefully thought out in order to enlarge the rights and privileges of all of the working people of the nation."

He left a road open to changes, however, by adding that "with such modifications as experience may prove necessary, the act should serve the needs of the people well."

In May, he told a Salt Lake City audience that he "never saw a perfect law."

"I hope that my party will be more ready to make corrections than the Democratic party has been," he said.

The New York governor's decision to talk about the labor issue at Pittsburgh, in the heart of the nation's top steel producing area, apparently represented a new switch in plans. Previously it had been hinted he would talk on labor and then aides said he wouldn't.

Whether the action of John L. Lewis' mine workers in approving a political report calling President Truman "unfriendly" to the union had anything to do with the change in plans was not clear.

But it seemed evident that while the Dewey camp welcomed the U. M. W. action, aides were just as well pleased that Lewis did not try to push through an open endorsement of Dewey's candidacy.

The feeling here is said to be that too direct connection with Lewis might prove a political liability for the Republican nominee in some quarters.

With President Truman conferring in Washington with Secretary of State Marshall, Dewey spent the day cleaning up state business at the executive mansion.

Washington reports that Mr. Truman had planned to send Chief Justice Fred Vinson to Moscow and then had abandoned the idea evoked no comment here.

It seemed evident that the Dewey camp knew nothing of this move until the story broke on newspaper front pages. It may bring some mention, however, during the trip which starts tomorrow night.

That tour will take the Republican nominee into nine states with major speeches at Pittsburgh, Kansas City and St. Paul.

ment of all and the dimunition of the country's names of existence."

In addition to the coal and rail strike situation the Communist general labor federation called a 24-hour strike of port and dock workers for next Wednesday.

The call came a day after the 24-hour strike yesterday.

On the railroad front, strikers took over the depot in Mulhouse. There were complete or partial railway stoppages at Reims, Blainville near Nancy, Chambery, Grenoble, Calais, St. Omer, Cherbbourg and the east station in Paris.

Some of the workers in voting to strike demanded a 40-hour week, a month's vacation with pay, and a minimum monthly wage of 25,000 france ($75), twice the present minimum.

At Micheville, near Nancy, where coal miners occupied a steel mill despite efforts of 500 troopers yesterday to dislodge them, the fires were reported already to have gone out in the coke ovens. Industrialists said this would deprive France of 6,000 tons of steel a month for the next six months.

The government has ordered coke oven operators in northern France back to work on pain of fines and jail terms. The Communists apparently have decided not to risk violence by opposing the order.

Only one small fight on the strike front was reported today. Police used tear gas to disperse 1,500 strikers at Nancy and several workers were slightly injured.

The newspaper France Soir charged today the strike offensive was ordered by the cominform following a secret conference in Paris with Communist leaders Jacques Duclos and Etienne Fajon. Goal of the offensive, said the newspaper, is to convince the United States government that France is a "country of chaos" and there is no point in giving her more Marshall Plan aid.

from the Pacific northwest where he has been stumping Washington state.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, the States' Rights Democratic candidate, scheduled a talk at Greenville, S. C.—his home state.

California Governor Earl Warren, who has been criss-crossing the nation advocating unity and the election of his running mate, Dewey, headed for Nebraska and Wyoming. The Democratic vice-presidential nominee, Senator Barkley of Kentucky, was due for a rest in San Francisco today after his airborne campaign through Idaho and Washington.

As the interval before the election narrowed down to hardly more than 500 hours, the Democrats were urging the Republican standard bearers to get specific. Mr. Truman told his Buffalo audience that the Republicans have concluded that "their record is so bad on the important issues of the day that they can't even discuss them."

Dewey, mapping his campaign strategy his own way, ignored the thrust. His secretary, however, announced that the G. O. P. nominee will outline "a forward looking" labor policy in his speech at Pittsburgh tomorrow night. The Secretary, Paul Lockwood, said Dewey will "propose essential protections and benefits" for working men and women "so that they can go forward in a world of peace."

Like the president, Dewey was keeping up-to-date on international developments, studying fresh reports from John Foster Dulles, his adviser on foreign affairs.

Wallace and Thurmond, in their separate campaigns, whacked away at Dewey, the president, and each other. Wallace criticized the Taft-Hartley law, "war scares," and the house un-American activities committee.

Socialist Candidate Norman Thomas called Wallace a "Johnny-come-lately" in the field of racial equality. Thurmond declared that Dewey, Wallace and Mr. Truman all were committed to an "unconstitutional and un-American" civil rights program.

Party organizations stepped up their efforts as the voting time drew close.

Herbert Brownell, Jr., Dewey-Warren campaign manager, announced the completion of a field organization of Republican veterans headed by Harry W. Colmery and reaching into every state.

The labor committee for Truman and Barkley announced $2,000 in prizes for the best job done by a labor organization in getting out the vote.

The Democratic national committee announced nationwide distribution of a 16-page, four-color pictorial booklet describing the career of President Truman. The committee said 3,000,000 copies are being distributed in the first shipment.

FOR SUCCESS

The actor in an average successful play must give from 200 to 1000 or more performances of his role, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Progressive improvements in exploration and drilling methods since 1859, when the first commercial oil well was completed, have enabled the oil industry to produce for America's welfare and security more than 37 billion barrels of crude oil. Loaded in tank cars, this oil would make a trainload stretching 64 times around the earth.

sia's deputy foreign minister, surprised the political committee of the United Nations with a resolution calling for the U. N. atomic energy commission to continue work.

Vishinsky suggested that the assembly call for a treaty banning atomic weapons and a second treaty setting up effective controls. Both would be effective simultaneously.

Warren R. Austin, of the United States delegation to the U. N., challenged Russia to say if she is ready to agree to effective world-wide control of atomic energy.

Russians' remarks in debate, he declared, indicated that they are not ready for such control.

"There is a chasm that must be bridged in their debate and their resolution," Austin said.

Throughout the speculation over the Vinson mission reports it was apparent that state department officials were concerned over the effect of such a proposal on American prestige and leadership at the present critical stage of world affairs.

In addition to discussing the now-abandoned assignment for Vinson, Mr. Truman was given a fill-in by Marshall on the current U. N. meetings in Paris.

Of this section of Marshall's report, Mr. Truman said in his statement:

"I was glad to hear his report of the unity which has prevailed between ourselves and the French and British representatives in Paris in all phases of the handling of the Berlin crisis, and of the earnest efforts being made by the security council and the general assembly of the United nations to find solutions to man of the other problems which have been troubling people everywhere. I was glad to be able to assure him of the determination with which people in this country are supporting our efforts to find the road to peace."

American bi-partisan foreign policy is also involved in the situation. In this connection, Marshall said that Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.), chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, was with him and Undersecretary of State Lovett at Luncheon today.

The chief executive met Marshall at the airport in mid-morning, having reached Washington himself less than half an hour before. As they shook hands, Marshall told the president he was "grateful" to him for meeting the plane.

The two men, with Undersecretary of State Lovett, then drove in the president's limousine directly to the White House where they spent 45 minutes in conference. Thereafter Marshall and Lovett went to the state department where they worked about an hour before going to Lovett's house for lunch.

Another conference was called at the White House during the afternoon.

The sensational reports, which broke overnight while Marshall was en route here from Paris, that Mr. Truman had planned to dispatch Chief Justice Vinson to Moscow as a special envoy continued for the time being without any official comment either of confirmation or denial.

While not denying published reports, some highly placed informants said privately that an official version might throw a somewhat different light on the matter. But there was no immediate disclosure after Truman and Marshall got here as to the details which these officials considered to be inexact.

Nor for that matter was there any official word as to what the president and Marshall were discussing beyond last Tuesday's White House announcement that they would take up the critical international situation. The White House, through Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, said last night Marshall came back to make an oral report on international developments.

From Paris meanwhile came reports that the diplomatic representatives of many nations attending the U. N. assembly they were upset by what appeared to them to be a division of opinion between the president and his secretary of state over the best way to deal with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis.

Marshall has followed the policy of acting only in conjunction with Britain and France on this issue and only in a manner assured of bi-partisan political support in this country.

British diplomats were quoted in Paris dispatches as saying that the president's reported plan to make another direct attempt to deal with Generalissimo Stalin—after the Berlin issue had been placed before the U. N. security council—would have rocked and could have wrecked the United Nations.

Other European dispatches generally reported a reaction abroad that the whole plan as thus far unofficially disclosed appeared to be mainly a maneuver in the American presidential campaign.

The story broke last night. It became known that the White House last Tuesday had requested the nation's major radio networks to grant the president free time for a non-political announcement. When radio officials inquired what the nature of the announcement was to be they were told, according to the Columbia Broadcasting System, that the president intended to announce that he was sending Vinson to Moscow.

Thereupon the state department is supposed to have gotten wind of the project. Vigorous objection by Marshall and Lovett, alarmed over its effects on the conduct of American foreign policy, is supposed to have caused the president to abandon it. At any rate, the White House cancelled plans for the broadcast.

The incident reminded many political and diplomatic observers here of a foreign policy and cabinet uproar that occurred in the summer of 1946. Then Henry Wallace, who was secretary of commerce, made a speech in New York which was at odds with the policies which Secretary of State Byrnes was then pursuing in Paris at the peace conference.

Byrnes angrily objected to the Wallace speech which the president first told a news conference he approved but later in effect repudiated. Byrnes told Mr. Truman that he considered his position in the difficult peace treaty negotiation had been undermined. The president, confronted with the necessity of choosing between Byrnes and Wallace, fired Wallace and declared his firm support for Byrnes' policies.

The theory of direct dealing with Stalin on deadlocked international issues goes back to the war years in the administration of the late President Roosevelt.

One of the most notable instances of a direct approach came during the San Francisco U. N. conference when the late Harry Hopkins negotiated with Stalin to break the deadlock between Russia and the western powers over the voting procedures to be followed in the United Nations security council.

In more recent times as the cold war developed, the device of using a direct appeal to Stalin has been used less and less and so has the sending of special representatives of the president to negotiate with other chiefs of state.

TRAIN VICTIM

J. C. Wyrick (above), an employe of the Louisiana Tech department of buildings and grounds from 1910 to 1945, was killed Friday in a railroad accident at La-Follette, Tenn., relatives in Ruston have been informed. Arrangements are being made to return the body to Ruston. Among the survivors is a daughter, Mrs. Morelle Emmons, wife of the Lincoln parish superintendent of schools.

man had considered a plan to send Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson to Moscow for a talk with Prime Minister Stalin on how world peace can be preserved.

A British delegation source here said such a move "would have rocked and could have wrecked the United Nations." It would have by-passed the security council without knowledge of Britain and France, the source explained.

There was no official confirmation in Washington that such a plan had been considered, but neither was it denied. Other reports said the idea had been abandoned even if it had ever been given serious consideration. The reports said Mr. Truman had planned to announce the move in a radio broadcast last Tuesday, and then cancelled the broadcast.

U. S. delegation sources here said Marshall was expected to return to Paris Sunday. They said there was no indication the delegation would feel it necessary to postpone security council meetings on Berlin until after Marshall's return. The council can be called into session by U. S. Delegate Warren Austin, October president, in consultation with Bramuglia.

The United Nations assembly pushed its work in committees during the day.

Sir Hartley Shawcross of Britain described as "humbug" the Soviet proposal to reduce armament of the big powers by one-third and abolish atomic weapons. He spoke before the political committee.

"The Soviet government will have to put a great many cards on the table before we, or anyone else who has studied the history of this subject, can be satisfied this (Soviet) proposal is anything but a somewhat bare propaganda device," he declared.

Shawcross, Britain's attorney general, charged Vishinsky with holding out "an olive branch in a manner so aggressive as to be calculated to discourage others to grasp it."

The Briton said there is a "certain air of unreality in discussing now the question of a reduction in the size of armed forces, what is called conventional armament, at a time when we have not reached, and still seem very far from reaching, agreement on the controlled prohibition of atomic weapons."

The problem of atomic control was being dealt with in a subcommittee which considered a Canadian request to recommend that the U. N. put its atomic energy control commission back to work soon or drop the problem until a year from now.

The Israeli government announced it had protested to the security council six "grave violations" of the Palestine truce by the Arabs.

More than 50,000,000 receiving sets are served daily by the 900 radio broadcasting stations in the United States.

Let them cease to foment the hideous civil war in China.

"Above all, let them throw open their vast regions on equal terms to the ordinary travel and traffic of mankind. Let them give others the chance to breathe freely and let them breathe freely themselves."

Bitterly denouncing the "wicked oligarchy in Moscow," the 73-year-old Churchill declared Russia's Communist leaders had given "full rein to their instincts of imperialism and expansion."

"What will happen when they get the atomic bomb themselves and have accumulated a large store?" he asked.

"You can judge for yourself what will happen then by what is happening now."

"No one in his senses can believe that we have a limitless period of time before us," he continued. "We ought to bring matters to a head and make a final settlement, we ought not to go jogging along, improvident, incompetent, waiting for something to turn up, by which I mean waiting for something bad to turn up for us."

His statement was similar to that of Jan. 23 when he told the house of commons the western nations should unite and bring matters to a head before the Russians develop an atomic bomb.

"It is my belief—I say it with deep sorrow—that at the present time the only sure foundation of peace and of the prevention of actual war rests upon strength," Churchill asserted.

The assembly of the United Nations, he said, has been turned into a "mere cockpit" where the representatives of mighty nations "hurl reproaches, taunts and recriminations" in preparation "for what seems to be a remorselessly approaching third world war."

He declared the "growing aggressiveness and malignity" of the Soviet government was written as plainly as Hitler's Mein Kampf, and had for its purpose the "subjugation of western Europe by Communist machinations, backed by Russian armies and enforced by political police."

Churchill said his party must support the Labor government in its rearament program, but he chided it for advocating "half measures."

"It would have been better," he said, "to meet in good time the blockade of Berlin by counter-measures against Russian shipping and imports of all kinds that might be useful for war purposes. * * * Thus we should at a much earlier stage have had something practical to bargain with * * *."

Referring to the British government's announcement it intends to bring German Field Marshals Gerd von Rundstedt, Erich von Mannstein and Walter von Brauchitsch and Col. Gen. Adolf Strauss before a British war crimes court, Churchill declared he deplored "endless trials of former Nazis."

"On every ground, soldierly, juridicial and humanitarian this is a wrong and base thing to do," he said.

"Thurmond and Wright are the official nominees of the Democratic party in Louisiana," Perez said. "They have been regularly nominated by the state committee * * *.

"Now the people of Louisiana can choose between real Democrats, Thurmond and Wright, and so-called Democrats, represented by Truman and his pink—or Red—aggregation."

STEEL OUTPUT TURNS UPWARD

Business Conditions As Whole Again Somewhat Spotty

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A sharp upturn in steel production featured a rising trend in industrial activity this week.

Business conditions on the whole again were a little spotty, however. Retail trade held up well in some areas but was backward in others; volume in textile markets was low and prices weakened further; business failures were the highest in two months and collections were reported slow in some areas that have experienced difficulty in attaining a normal fall pace in business operations after the summer slack season.

New declines in food prices, especially meats, was a welcome development for consumers on the inflationary front; the labor situation was relatively calm except for the Pacific coast maritime and oil refining strikes, and hope increased during the week for an easing in international tension.

The nation's steel mills set an enviable record this week. Finished steel production was scheduled at 1,757,400 tons. This equalled the postwar high established in mid-March, which in turn was the highest since early April, 1945, when the final push was underway that ended the European phase of the war.

In the previous week production totaled 1,737,300 tons and a month ago it was 1,702,300. A year ago it was 1,681,700 tons.

This week's output was near the full capacity of the industry, now at 1,802,476 tons weekly, it was possible because of favorable working conditions in the plants. These included a good coal supply, a minimum of worker absenteeism and belief that scrap supplies will be easier to get now that arrangements have been completed to start the flow from European battlefields.

Other lines of heavy industry kept in step with the increased tempo at the steel mills. Engineering construction awards moved up to near the best of the year at $170,200,000 from $128,139,000 in the previous week.

Crude oil output showed a further increase despite continued labor trouble on the Pacific coast. Production averaged 5,452,750 barrels daily against 5,343,100 in the previous week and 5,207,550 last year.

Automobile results were a shade under the high total of the preceding period but well above last year's output as nearly normal working conditions prevailed in the industry after the Briggs strike in September. The figures were 113,490 units this week against 121,475 a week earlier and 98,978 last year.

The home building construction boom took its place in that area of the economy that has come under observation to see if there are signs of a slowdown. On the surface everything is shipshape. Builders are as busy as they want to be in most areas.

But underneath the surface the story is a little different. Commitments for new houses are not as easy to get as they used to be; home seekers are reported to be getting more particular about what they want and what they will pay. On top of these developments is word that bankers all over the country are reluctant to loan money on new so-called "low-cost" homes despite the fact that some loans are guaranteed by the government.

Observers think this attitude gives the tip off to would be buyers that the value isn't there; that something is wrong that is not immediately apparent on the surface. As a result of all this the feeling is gaining ground that the bloom is off the building boom for keeps and a buyer's market is developing.

A senate investigation of the bank loan angle of the building boom is in the cards, according to Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) a member of the senate banking committee. He said the practice of withholding loans was widespread; that it was jeopardizing the housing program congress approved early this year and that if it continued it would be necessary for the government to get into the loan business.

Bankers, on the other hand, contend they are lending all the money on new houses sound banking practice allows; that prices in many cases are out of line with reality; down payments are too small and amortization spread over too long a period.

Experts held out little hope the widespread reductions in retail meat prices which received so much attention during the week would be anything more than a flash in the pan. It was brought about by a sudden influx of livestock at midwest centers and appeared to be fading as the week passed. Steaks that had sold for $1.25 a pound could be had this week for around a dollar and a few pennies were sliced off other cuts of beef and pork.

While this was going on, prices of some industrial materials moved another notch higher. Youngstown sheet & Tube and Carnegie-Illinois steel both upped pig iron $3 a ton; Derby Coil Co., joined the ranks of those paying 35 cents a barrel more for crude oil and increases of varying amounts were posted for several industrial chemicals. Aluminum Co., of America, the dominant element in in the industry, will increase prices a cent a pound next Monday.

The stock market, for a change, acted a little better. But public participation was almost nil. Daily turnover hovered in the one-half million share area, about half the total brokers says they need to break even with expenses. This dogged reluctance of people to get interested in the stock market is causing a lot of worry.

Some say it probably is due to our habit of getting jittery every time Russia kicks over the international applecart in some new and unexpected move at Paris or Berlin or Moscow. Others blame it on the growing feeling that our domestic economy is due for a shakeup in the none-too-distant future.

This week the United States Chamber of Commerce said "soft spots" are turning up in the nation's booming economy which led it to conclude from a survey of third quarter business and current trends that things would boom on through the rest of this year. The report is to be made public later.

The council was understood to have confined itself to a summary of third and fourth quarter highlights, leaving 1949 prospects to be dealt with later.

NERVE CENTER FOR FOREST FIRE CONTROL

Effective action on forest fires depends on quick and accurate spotting of new-born flames. Towers like the Luna Fire Observation structure, located approximately 13 miles southwest of Monroe atop the highest hill in the area, are expressly located about the Fifth district by the state forest commission, halt the fires at birth. Maintained by Eli Rawls, forest ranger for over 20 years, the tower is constantly operated during daylight hours in dry seasons when forest fires are likely. Aided by telescopes, binoculars, plotting maps, an unbelievable view in all directions and special telephone service, Rawls can start a squad toward a "baby" fire in the matter of minutes. He protects an area running south and east from Highway 80 to the Ouachita river and west to Jackson parish. At the upper right a view from the west windows of the structure looks out upon thousands of acres of pineland toward Jackson parish. The lower right picture looks toward Monroe over the residence of Mrs. Lawson Frost, owner of the farm on which the tower is located. On a clear day Twin City buildings can be seen easily without the aid of binoculars. The forest commission has three such towers in the Fifth district, one at Fairbanks and the other in Jackson parish.

POLICEMAN STILL GOING TO SCHOOL

34-Year-Old Officer Enrolled In Senior Class; Has Tough Schedule

FAIRHAVEN, Mass.—(NEA)— Al Raphael can get away with things at Fairhaven High School that would get any other pupil into a peck of trouble. The teachers give him all the breaks, and nobody complains. On the contrary, they approve.

That is because Al is carrying a schedule, in and out of school, that would break a horse's back.

To begin with, he is 34 years old, married and the father of three children.

He's a former member of the state police and now a regular member of the Fairhaven police department.

Five days a week he gets up at seven o'clock and, unless he has to go to court to testify against somebody he has arrested, he arrives at the high school at eight o'clock. He is a member of the senior class, assigned like the teen-agers to a home room, and from eight until two he goes from class to class to study room like any other high schooler.

At two he goes home and studies until time to report, at six, for police work. He gets off duty, home and into bed at three in the morning.

Of course, that's only five days a week. There are two more days when he isn't in classes, and he has one day off from police work. To occupy that spare time Al has a day's work with a security agency, and Friday nights he has a special police job.

Next June, if all goes well, as everybody who knows Al is sure it will, he will get the high school diploma that didn't look very important when he dropped out of school years ago without it.

What will he do then? Well, if he doesn't weaken he will spend another six years or so going to school whatever time he isn't earning his family's living.

Like an Irish cop in New York named O'Dwyer, who spent his spare time studying and later became an Army general and mayor of the metropolis, Al Raphael has decided to become a lawyer.

He's asking odds of nobody, and nobody is giving him odds. But Chester M. Downing, high school principal, goes so far as to say that "We admire him for his courage and determination."

And when he drops in late, and explains that "I had to go to court this morning," the teacher just nods instead of asking, as he would with any of the other boys:

"Well, what kind of trouble did you get into this time?"

OLAN ORICE WALKER

DELHI, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—Funeral services for Olan Orice Walker, 21, who was killed in action in the Philippines February 19, 1945, will be held Wednesday in the Delhi Baptist Church with the Rev. G. F. Stinebough officiating, assisted by Rev. W. A. Dearman. Interment, under the direction of the Catron-Gay Funeral Home of Oak Grove, will follow in the Delhi Masonic Cemetery.

Walker was a member of the 86th infantry division at the time of his death. He was formerly buried in the military cemetery in Manila, Philippine Islands.

His body will arrive in Delhi Tuesday when it will be taken to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Walker, where it will remain until Wednesday.

Other than his parents he is survived by two brothers, Dennis and Marvin Walker, both of Delhi; two sisters, Lola and Betty Ann Walker, both of Delhi.

FORWARD-LOOKING

ley act, but leave the way open for changes in that law.

President Truman has condemned it and demanded its repeal.

Dewey said last March the law was "soberly conceived and carefully thought out in order to enlarge the rights and privileges of all of the working people of the nation."

He left a road open to changes, however, by adding that "with such modifications as experience may prove necessary, the act should serve the needs of the people well."

In May, he told a Salt Lake City audience that he "never saw a perfect law."

"I hope that my party will be more ready to make corrections than the Democratic party has been," he said.

The New York governor's decision to talk about the labor issue at Pittsburgh, in the heart of the nation's top steel producing area, apparently represented a new switch in plans. Previously it had been hinted he would talk on labor and then aides said he wouldn't.

Whether the action of John L. Lewis' mine workers in approving a political report calling President Truman "unfriendly" to the union had anything to do with the change in plans was not clear.

But it seemed evident that while the Dewey camp welcomed the U. M. W. action, aides were just as well pleased that Lewis did not try to push through an open endorsement of Dewey's candidacy.

The feeling here is said to be that too direct connection with Lewis might prove a political liability for the Republican nominee in some quarters.

With President Truman conferring in Washington with Secretary of State Marshall, Dewey spent the day cleaning up state business at the executive mansion.

Washington reports that Mr. Truman had planned to send Chief Justice Fred Vinson to Moscow and then had abandoned the idea evoked no comment here.

It seemed evident that the Dewey camp knew nothing of this move until the story broke on newspaper front pages. It may bring some mention, however, during the trip which starts tomorrow night.

That tour will take the Republican nominee into nine states with major speeches at Pittsburgh, Kansas City and St. Paul.

ment of all and the dimunition of the country's names of existence."

In addition to the coal and rail strike situation the Communist general labor federation called a 24-hour strike of port and dock workers for next Wednesday.

The call came a day after the 24-hour strike yesterday.

On the railroad front, strikers took over the depot in Mulhouse. There were complete or partial railway stoppages at Reims, Blainville near Nancy, Chambery, Grenoble, Calais, St. Omer, Cherbbourg and the east station in Paris.

Some of the workers in voting to strike demanded a 40-hour week, a month's vacation with pay, and a minimum monthly wage of 25,000 france ($75), twice the present minimum.

At Micheville, near Nancy, where coal miners occupied a steel mill despite efforts of 500 troopers yesterday to dislodge them, the fires were reported already to have gone out in the coke ovens. Industrialists said this would deprive France of 6,000 tons of steel a month for the next six months.

The government has ordered coke oven operators in northern France back to work on pain of fines and jail terms. The Communists apparently have decided not to risk violence by opposing the order.

Only one small fight on the strike front was reported today. Police used tear gas to disperse 1,500 strikers at Nancy and several workers were slightly injured.

The newspaper France Soir charged today the strike offensive was ordered by the cominform following a secret conference in Paris with Communist leaders Jacques Duclos and Etienne Fajon. Goal of the offensive, said the newspaper, is to convince the United States government that France is a "country of chaos" and there is no point in giving her more Marshall Plan aid.

The Democratic vice-presidential nominee, Senator Barkley of Kentucky, was due for a rest in San Francisco today after his airborne campaign through Idaho and Washington.

As the interval before the election narrowed down to hardly more than 500 hours, the Democrats were urging the Republican standard bearers to get specific. Mr. Truman told his Buffalo audience that the Republicans have concluded that "their record is so bad on the important issues of the day that they can't even discuss them."

Dewey, mapping his campaign strategy his own way, ignored the thrust. His secretary, however, announced that the G. O. Herbert Brownell, Jr., Dewey-Warren campaign manager, announced the completion of a field organization of Republican veterans headed by Harry W. Colmery and reaching into every state.

The labor committee for Truman and Barkley announced $2,000 in prizes for the best job done by a labor organization in getting out the vote.

The Democratic national committee announced nationwide distribution of a 16-page, four-color pictorial booklet describing the career of President Truman. The committee said 3,000,000 copies are being distributed in the first shipment.

FOR SUCCESS

The actor in an average successful play must give from 200 to 1000 or more performances of his role, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Progressive improvements in exploration and drilling methods since 1859, when the first commercial oil well was completed, have enabled the oil industry to produce for America's welfare and security more than 37 billion barrels of crude oil. Loaded in tank cars, this oil would make a trainload stretching 64 times around the earth.

sia's deputy foreign minister, surprised the political committee of the United Nations with a resolution calling for the U. N. atomic energy commission to continue work.

Vishinsky suggested that the assembly call for a treaty banning atomic weapons and a second treaty setting up effective controls. Both would be effective simultaneously.

Warren R. Austin, of the United States delegation to the U. N., challenged Russia to say if she is ready to agree to effective world-wide control of atomic energy.

Russians' remarks in debate, he declared, indicated that they are not ready for such control.

"There is a chasm that must be bridged in their debate and their resolution," Austin said.

Throughout the speculation over the Vinson mission reports it was apparent that state department officials were concerned over the effect of such a proposal on American prestige and leadership at the present critical stage of world affairs.

In addition to discussing the now-abandoned assignment for Vinson, Mr. Truman was given a fill-in by Marshall on the current U. N. meetings in Paris.

Of this section of Marshall's report, Mr. Truman said in his statement:

"I was glad to hear his report of the unity which has prevailed between ourselves and the French and British representatives in Paris in all phases of the handling of the Berlin crisis, and of the earnest efforts being made by the security council and the general assembly of the United nations to find solutions to man of the other problems which have been troubling people everywhere. I was glad to be able to assure him of the determination with which people in this country are supporting our efforts to find the road to peace."

American bi-partisan foreign policy is also involved in the situation. In this connection, Marshall said that Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.), chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, was with him and Undersecretary of State Lovett at Luncheon today.

The chief executive met Marshall at the airport in mid-morning, having reached Washington himself less than half an hour before. As they shook hands, Marshall told the president he was "grateful" to him for meeting the plane.

The two men, with Undersecretary of State Lovett, then drove in the president's limousine directly to the White House where they spent 45 minutes in conference. Thereafter Marshall and Lovett went to the state department where they worked about an hour before going to Lovett's house for lunch.

Another conference was called at the White House during the afternoon.

The sensational reports, which broke overnight while Marshall was en route here from Paris, that Mr. Truman had planned to dispatch Chief Justice Vinson to Moscow as a special envoy continued for the time being without any official comment either of confirmation or denial.

While not denying published reports, some highly placed informants said privately that an official version might throw a somewhat different light on the matter. But there was no immediate disclosure after Truman and Marshall got here as to the details which these officials considered to be inexact.

Nor for that matter was there any official word as to what the president and Marshall were discussing beyond last Tuesday's White House announcement that they would take up the critical international situation. The White House, through Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, said last night Marshall came back to make an oral report on international developments.

From Paris meanwhile came reports that the diplomatic representatives of many nations attending the U. N. assembly they were upset by what appeared to them to be a division of opinion between the president and his secretary of state over the best way to deal with the Soviet Union on the Berlin crisis.

Marshall has followed the policy of acting only in conjunction with Britain and France on this issue and only in a manner assured of bi-partisan political support in this country.

British diplomats were quoted in Paris dispatches as saying that the president's reported plan to make another direct attempt to deal with Generalissimo Stalin—after the Berlin issue had been placed before the U. N. security council—would have rocked and could have wrecked the United Nations.

Other European dispatches generally reported a reaction abroad that the whole plan as thus far unofficially disclosed appeared to be mainly a maneuver in the American presidential campaign.

The story broke last night. It became known that the White House last Tuesday had requested the nation's major radio networks to grant the president free time for a non-political announcement. When radio officials inquired what the nature of the announcement was to be they were told, according to the Columbia Broadcasting System, that the president intended to announce that he was sending Vinson to Moscow.

Thereupon the state department is supposed to have gotten wind of the project. Vigorous objection by Marshall and Lovett, alarmed over its effects on the conduct of American foreign policy, is supposed to have caused the president to abandon it. At any rate, the White House cancelled plans for the broadcast.

The incident reminded many political and diplomatic observers here of a foreign policy and cabinet uproar that occurred in the summer of 1946. Then Henry Wallace, who was secretary of commerce, made a speech in New York which was at odds with the policies which Secretary of State Byrnes was then pursuing in Paris at the peace conference.

Byrnes angrily objected to the Wallace speech which the president first told a news conference he approved but later in effect repudiated. Byrnes told Mr. Truman that he considered his position in the difficult peace treaty negotiation had been undermined. The president, confronted with the necessity of choosing between Byrnes and Wallace, fired Wallace and declared his firm support for Byrnes' policies.

The theory of direct dealing with Stalin on deadlocked international issues goes back to the war years in the administration of the late President Roosevelt.

One of the most notable instances of a direct approach came during the San Francisco U. N. conference when the late Harry Hopkins negotiated with Stalin to break the deadlock between Russia and the western powers over the voting procedures to be followed in the United Nations security council.

In more recent times as the cold war developed, the device of using a direct appeal to Stalin has been used less and less and so has the sending of special representatives of the president to negotiate with other chiefs of state.

TRAIN VICTIM

Wyrick (above), an employe of the Louisiana Tech department of buildings and grounds from 1910 to 1945, was killed Friday in a railroad accident at LaFollette, Tenn., relatives in Ruston have been informed. Arrangements are being made to return the body to Ruston. Among the survivors is a daughter, Mrs. Morelle Emmons, wife of the Lincoln parish superintendent of schools.

RUSSIANS

man had considered a plan to send Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson to Moscow for a talk with Prime Minister Stalin on how world peace can be preserved.

A British delegation source here said such a move "would have rocked and could have wrecked the United Nations." It would have by-passed the security council without knowledge of Britain and France, the source explained.

There was no official confirmation in Washington that such a plan had been considered, but neither was it denied. Other reports said the idea had been abandoned even if it had ever been given serious consideration. The reports said Mr. Truman had planned to announce the move in a radio broadcast last Tuesday, and then cancelled the broadcast.

U. S. delegation sources here said Marshall was expected to return to Paris Sunday. They said there was no indication the delegation would feel it necessary to postpone security council meetings on Berlin until after Marshall's return. The council can be called into session by U. S. Delegate Warren Austin, October president, in consultation with Bramuglia.

The United Nations assembly pushed its work in committees during the day.

Sir Hartley Shawcross of Britain described as "humbug" the Soviet proposal to reduce armament of the big powers by one-third and abolish atomic weapons. He spoke before the political committee.

"The Soviet government will have to put a great many cards on the table before we, or anyone else who has studied the history of this subject, can be satisfied this (Soviet) proposal is anything but a somewhat bare propaganda device," he declared.

Shawcross, Britain's attorney general, charged Vishinsky with holding out "an olive branch in a manner so aggressive as to be calculated to discourage others to grasp it."

The Briton said there is a "certain air of unreality in discussing now the question of a reduction in the size of armed forces, what is called conventional armament, at a time when we have not reached, and still seem very far from reaching, agreement on the controlled prohibition of atomic weapons."

The problem of atomic control was being dealt with in a subcommittee which considered a Canadian request to recommend that the U. N. put its atomic energy control commission back to work soon or drop the problem until a year from now.

The Israeli government announced it had protested to the security council six "grave violations" of the Palestine truce by the Arabs.

FORESEES BATTLE

Let them cease to foment the hideous civil war in China.

"Above all, let them throw open their vast regions on equal terms to the ordinary travel and traffic of mankind. Let them give others the chance to breathe freely and let them breathe freely themselves."

Bitterly denouncing the "wicked oligarchy in Moscow," the 73-year-old Churchill declared Russia's Communist leaders had given "full rein to their instincts of imperialism and expansion."

"What will happen when they get the atomic bomb themselves and have accumulated a large store?" he asked.

"You can judge for yourself what will happen then by what is happening now."

"No one in his senses can believe that we have a limitless period of time before us," he continued. "We ought to bring matters to a head and make a final settlement, we ought not to go jogging along, improvident, incompetent, waiting for something to turn up, by which I mean waiting for something bad to turn up for us."

His statement was similar to that of Jan. 23 when he told the house of commons the western nations should unite and bring matters to a head before the Russians develop an atomic bomb.

"It is my belief—I say it with deep sorrow—that at the present time the only sure foundation of peace and of the prevention of actual war rests upon strength," Churchill asserted.

The assembly of the United Nations, he said, has been turned into a "mere cockpit" where the representatives of mighty nations "hurl reproaches, taunts and recriminations" in preparation "for what seems to be a remorselessly approaching third world war."

He declared the "growing aggressiveness and malignity" of the Soviet government was written as plainly as Hitler's Mein Kampf, and had for its purpose the "subjugation of western Europe by Communist machinations, backed by Russian armies and enforced by political police."

Churchill said his party must support the Labor government in its rearament program, but he chided it for advocating "half measures."

"It would have been better," he said, "to meet in good time the blockade of Berlin by countermeasures against Russian shipping and imports of all kinds that might be useful for war purposes. * * * Thus we should at a much earlier stage have had something practical to bargain with * * *."

Referring to the British government's announcement it intends to bring German Field Marshals Gerd von Rundstedt, Erich von Mannstein and Walter von Brauchitsch and Col. Gen. Adolf Strauss before a British war crimes court, Churchill declared he deplored "endless trials of former Nazis."

"On every ground, soldierly, juridical and humanitarian this is a wrong and base thing to do," he said.

STATES' RIGHTS

St. Bernard and Plaquemines parishes, a strong states' rights supporter. His action permitted the long-delayed printing and distribution of ballots after the deadline expired.

Perez said he had been assured by State Democratic National Committeeman W. H. Talbot that no suits had been filed today "so I assumed that it was safe to withdraw the states' rights original elector nominees."

"Thurmond and Wright are the official nominees of the Democratic party in Louisiana," Perez said. "They have been regularly nominated by the state committee * * *.

"Now the people of Louisiana can choose between real Democrats, Thurmond and Wright, and so-called Democrats, represented by Truman and his pink—or Red—aggregation."

New York Day By Day

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office

NEW YORK—A Texas lady who doesn't want her name mentioned obviously for family reasons, writes me in comment upon something I wrote about mothers-in-law. She says that jealously is the cause of in-law trouble in any family. With this I am inclined to agree in principle. A son-in-law may be jealous of the affection the husband or wife gives to his or her mother. This might lead to unhappiness in the home.

In any case, there cannot be perfect accord in a home in which the wife or husband says to husband or wife, "Well, your mother is an old witch!"

Mothers-in-law have a tough job. Especially if it is their lot or fortune to live with daughter or son in his or her home. Tact and intelligence are required on both sides, and a little patience and forbearance will not come amiss.

I admit that I am not well qualified to speak from experience in this matter, because I love my wife's mother, admire her immensely as one of the sweetest women I have ever known, and greatly admire my wife's devotion to her mother.

Mary Peterson, born in Sweden, is 76 years old, and has been for more than two years an honored guest in our house. During that time, not one untoward incident involving moth-in-law relationship has developed, and not once has Grandma uttered a criticism or condemnation of anybody or anything in our house. She loves our guests, who, I believe, are mostly interesting and talkable people. She will stay up long after her nine o'clock bedtime to listen to the conversation that keeps our living room and kitchen glowing on many nights.

We all speak respectfully to her, and when she is dressed up for church on Sunday I never fail to tell her that she looks pretty. This sets off a spark of joy in her heart, and she says, "Thank you, Charles," with a smile that is worth millions.

If you go into the psychological phases of in-law trouble, you soon run into the problem of mother fixation, father fixation, son fixation and daughter fixation. It is undoubtedly true that some married persons give such morbid love to a parent that they cannot or do not give the spouse the love to which he or she is entitled. In these rare cases, the injured party should not hold the sin against the mother-in-law or father-in-law, but sympathetically try to order his or her life upon the premise that the spouse is slightly out of the normal periphery in the matter of family relations. The injured party may still get along beautifully with the in-law.

Anyway, if there isn't a Mother-in-law's Day or week or month or year, I move that we establish one. And I can find you the text in the Bible for the sermons for that day or period.

Mrs. E. G. Cone, Wichita, has sent me a copy of a really touching poem she sent to her husband's mother. I'll give you odds that this lady has a happy life. She doubtless can see in her husband qualities which she admires in his mother.

So, here's to all mothers-in-law!

'OLD IRONPANTS' GETS TOUGH AIR ARM JOBS

USAAF's Lemay Is Old Hand At Hard Tasks; At 42 Is Youngest Lt. Gen. In His Branch Of Service

By Douglas Larsen
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Whenever the U. S. air force finds itself with a particularly tough assignment on its hands, chunky, cigar-smoking Lt. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay usually gets the call.

In terms of the present world crisis, leadership of the U. S. A. F.'s strategic air command is a tough assignment. That is why LeMay, who won't be 42 until November, has just been given that job.

LeMay pulled his first big-time job for the air force during the early bombing of Europe. It was he who decided that casualties and enemy planes notwithstanding, a bomber couldn't vary from its course during the last few minutes of a bombing run, if a target was to be bombed effectively. He discovered this by personally flying missions over targets with his plane full of flak holes.

His order putting this into effect won him the nickname "Old Ironpants." But nicknames have never bothered him. And no mission on which he has ever sent his men was ever too tough for him. He flew the famous raid on the Messerschmitt plant in Germany in 1943, among many others; sometimes he flew as pilot, co-pilot, navigator or observer.

When the air force decided to try out shuttle bombing over Europe, LeMay got the job. From a base in England he made the first such raid, against Regensburg in Germany, landing in Africa.

While LeMay was busy with the Nazis, the B-29, America's aerial hope against Japan, was being put into operation from bases in China. LeMay was sent out to run the show.

But the way to really hit Japan with the Superforts was from the Marianas Islands. Late in 1944, that operation was started. A few months later, LeMay moved again and began running the B-29s from Saipan, Tinian and Guam. Somewhat infrequent, high-altitude attacks became almost every-day, lower level affairs.

It was the combat version of the tactics he set up to beat the Berlin blockade this year, where "Ironpants" set up "General LeMay's Coal and Feed Service" and worked his planes, his fliers and his ground crews on a rush-hour schedule, just as he had worked all hands against the Japs.

When the time came for the air force to drop the first atomic bomb, LeMay was put in executive charge of the operation as chief of staff of the then U. S. army strategic air forces. After the war it was LeMay who got the job of getting the vital, long-range research program of the air force under way.

Nobody can accuse LeMay of ever having talked himself into any of the promotions which have made him one of the youngest officers of his rank in the air force. He generally wears a dead-pan expression and seldom opens his mouth unless he has something important to say.

One of his staff once said, "LeMay talks in such a low voice, we all have bent ears."

At a party in England a lady who had been watching him enjoy the affair in silence asked him if he ever said anything. LeMay replied:

"Lady, if you talk all the time, you'll never learn anything."

He has a kind of ironic humor. On a raid over Germany one day when LeMay was pilot, a rear gunner shouted into the intercom that his guns wouldn't work. In a flat voice LeMay replied:

"That's going to make you look pretty silly when the 190s start coming in, isn't it?"

Again when LeMay returned to his base in Guam one day he found his aide excitedly clutching new orders, giving the general a promotion. The aide said, "What'll I do first about these, sir?"

"Be sure you file them properly," was LeMay's laconic reply.

LeMay's reputation among the men who have served under him is as a hard taskmaster. But he has always tempered his orders with a human quality which increased their effectiveness. His favorite last line after any briefing was:

"Now if you don't understand this operation, say so now, and I'll go out and show you how to do it myself."

This statement was backed up by the fact, of course, that he did just that, many times.

When he first got a group of fliers to England he was cautioning them about getting into tavern brawls and fights. "But if you do get into a fight," he added as an afterthought, "be damn sure you don't get licked."

LeMay was born in Columbus, Ohio, November 15, 1906. He studied engineering at Ohio State University and was commissioned in the air force after graduation from Kelly Field, Texas. He served as a flight instructor for several years. But his specialty was always precision navigation. That is the basis for his great interest in long-range bombing.

OIL COMPANY PLANS NEW PROJECTS IN EL DORADO

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. —(AP)— Lion Oil Company announced the signing of contracts for construction projects totalling about $2,000.00 at its chemical plant near El Dorado, Ark.

The projects include a sulfuric acid plant, estimated to cost $1,250,000, and an ammonium sulfate plant, to cost about $750,000. Actual construction is scheduled to start within 30 days and the tentative completion date for both projects is Sept. 1, 1949, the company said.

Oil was first used as a medicine "cure-all," then as fuel for lamps. Today, through progressive research and development, the oil industry processes from crude oil more than 1,200 products which are in every day use.

OIL PROGRESS DAY IS SET FOR MISS.

Oct. 14 Slated By Governor In Proclamation; Proper Observance Is Urged

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 9. —(AP)— Mississippi on October 14 will observe "oil progress day."

The day is so designated in a proclamation by Governor Fielding L. Wright.

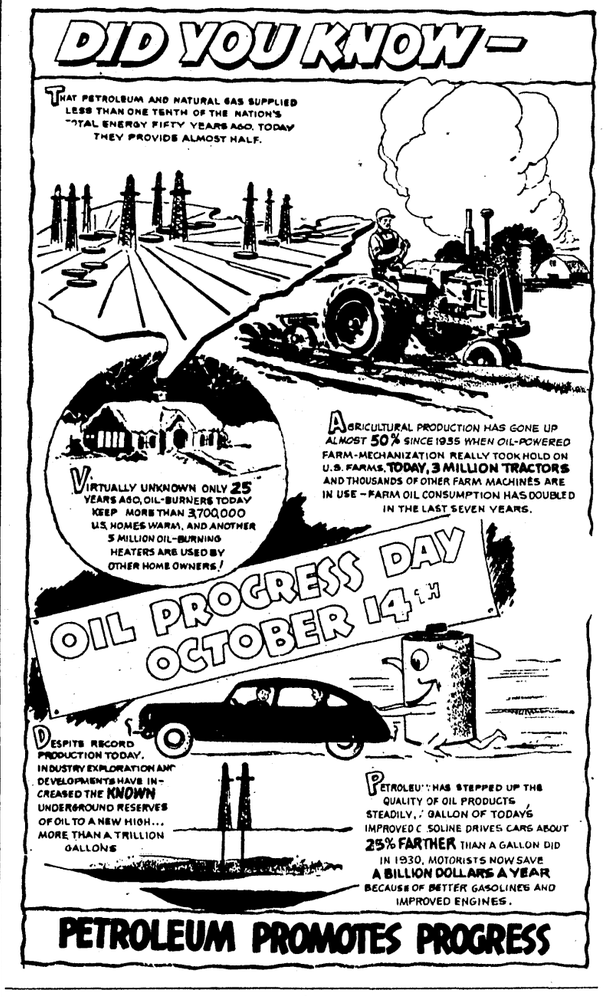

The proclamation urges "proper observance by our people in keeping with the contribution which this product has made to the economy of our state."

It calls attention to Mississippi's position as the ninth state in the union in oil production and sixth in oil reserves, and to the rapid strides noted since discovery of the first well in 1939.

National observance of oil progress week is planned for October 11-17. Frank S. Cannon of Jackson is state chairman of the overall committee in charge of the week's program.

Oil men in all parts of the state will speak before civic clubs and other organizations, detailing progress of the industry nationally and especially in Mississippi.

The week coincides with the state fair week in Jackson. A display at the fair and an oil progress day celebration are planned.

"Oil Progress Day" will be observed here on October 14th when local oil companies will report to their communities how the industry with its 34,000 competitive companies, serves American and contributes to the well-being and progress of the people.

The first automobile imported into the United States was exhibited at the World's Fair in 1893.

"Fill 'er Up"

Slogan Is Still New

Modern Oil History Started In 1901 With Beaumont Producer Yielding 100,000 Barrels Daily

The youth and virility of our American way of life is typified to a startling degree by the amazing development and growth of this country's petroleum industry. We have become so accustomed to saying "fill 'er up" at the nearest service station that it comes as a shock when we realize that the modern history of oil really started in 1901—the same year that Marconi sent his first wireless message across the Atlantic.

It was on January 10, 1901, that the Spindletop discovery well near Beaumont, Texas, let loose with a deep-throated roar and started hurling skyward 100,000 barrels of crude petroleum daily.

From that time petroleum became increasingly important. In 1900 it supplied only eight per cent of the power and heat requirements of the United States. True, adventurous men had explored the eastern part of the nation for 40 years, but they worked on a hit or miss basis and their shallow wells had comparatively small yields.

Then came Spindletop and the country went wild. Here is what the Beaumont newspaper had to say about it:

"The Beaumont oil boom will eclipse in significance, extent and human interest the Indian stocks, the Mississippi Bubble, the gold fields of '49 and even that pathetic melodrama of the Klondike."

That prediction came true to the letter. The new abundance of oil came just in time, the next decade saw the introduction of the Tin Lizzy and an almost limitless variety of oil-powered, labor-saving equipment. The oil age had begun, and it continues today, when petroleum and natural gas supply almost half of our heat and power needs.

Methods of developing news fields, as well as those of drilling and storage, have been greatly improved since Spindletop due to the intense competition among oil producing companies. Gone are the wild boom towns where staid business men toted revolvers and where their buggies sank knee deep in the mud of unpaved streets. Gone, too, are the mad scramble for leases and locations; the well derricks crowded shoulder to shoulder like trees in some monster forest; the roaring, untamed, often blazing gushers and the wasteful open-air storage basins.

Today Beaumont and other oil towns are eminently respectable, with wide paved streets and soaring skyscrapers. Leases are drawn as carefully and equitably as life insurance policies. Conservation techniques have made it possible to space wells efficiently; to pro-rate their production so that excessive flow does not exhaust the underground gas and water pressure which pushes oil toward them through porus rock formations. Fields are even re-pressured by pumping gas and water back into them so that much oil which previously had to be left underground can now be recovered.

Gushers have been tamed by means of complicated arrangements of pipes and valves called Christmas trees. Wells which no longer flow are pumped, or "stripped" of their maximum recoverable oil. Fields are not opened for production until steel storage tank "farms" have been built and pipelines run to the nearest refinery or shipping center.

Perhaps the most interesting developments have come in drilling.

In the early days most wells were put down by the percussion method. That has been largely superceded by rotary drilling, in which a bit revolves auger-fashion until it reaches great depths. Picture the difficulties of this operation in view of the fact that hundreds of holes more than 8,000 feet deep have been drilled. (The average well depth drilled in the United States last year was 3,523 feet.)

At 8,000 feet the drill is on the end of a pipe composed of 400 twenty-foot sections. Whenever a bit has to be sharpened or replaced — and this happens frequently — the entire pipe must be hauled up, unjointed and stacked. This becomes doubly difficult and expensive when a well has been curved in order to strike oil deposits lying under a mountain, swamp or off-shore in the ocean.

Some wells go as much as three miles deep and present even more complicated problems. Hunting for the needle in a haystack is easy compared to fishing a broken bit out of such a hole. Sometimes the task cannot be accomplished. Then the well has to be abandoned, even though it may have cost hundreds of thousands of dollars. (It should be added that four of every five wells drilled in exploring for new petroleum have to be abandoned anyway because they turn out to be dry holes.)

The bottom of a hole gets one degree hotter for each 60 feet of depth. (In one three-mile well a thermometer registered 380 degrees — 168 degrees hotter than boiling water.) To lubricate and cool deep-going drills —as well as to plaster up the sides of holes so they will not cave in or blow out, and to carry out rock cuttings — force pumps circulate thick, gooey, specially-compounded mud in and out of wells. Oil drillers spend $10,000,000 a year—just for mud!

It is by the use of such progressive methods that America's 13,000 competitive production companies manage to meet a demand for oil products which is running 18 per cent higher than in 1945, at the peak of the war, and 45 per cent above 1941, the last pre-war year. It is also the way in which they have pushed our reserves of discovered petroleum to the record high of almost 25 billion barrels despite that unprecedented demand. This year they plan to drill 40,000 wells, of which more than 7,000 will be exploration wells in search of new oil sources. These will reach an aggregate depth of more than one hundred thirty million feet—a distance equal to two and a half times the earth's diameter at the Equator.

U. S. PRODUCTION OF OIL DECLINES

Several States Up Yield To New High; Decline Credited To Idle California Wells

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Although several states set records during the week ended Oct. 2, the nation's average daily crude oil production for the period dropped 23,400 barrels, the Oil & Gas Journal reported.

The Journal said a major part of the drop was accounted for by reduced production in California as a result of a decrease in crude processed at the state's strike-bound refineries.

California's average daily production was listed as 749,800 barrels, a drop of 19,500 barrels from its output the previous week.

Total average daily production for the entire country was 5,367,345 barrels. East of California, the Journal said, production was within 3,900 barrels daily of the all-time record established the week before.

Texas' output hit a new high of 2,481,225 barrels, a jump of 10,325 barrels above the state's previous record set the week ended Sept. 11.

North Louisiana and Indiana set records for the year. North Louisiana's 114,600 barrels daily for the week was 350 higher than its previous top reached in the week ended Sept. 18. Indiana's new record was 27,500 barrels, an increase of 1,300 barrels over its production the previous week.

Kansas's production dropped 5,800 barrels daily to 305,050 barrels after the state had established a record the week before. Despite a drop of 2,900 barrels to 430,850, Oklahoma remained close to its year's high of 430,850 barrels established during the week ended June 26.

Michigan's production fell off 3,000 barrels to 45,000, which compares with its Sept. 11 high for the year of 49,600 barrels.

Louisiana produced 484,900 barrels Oct. 2 compared with 485,100 Sept. 25. Mississippi produced 126,450 compared with 126,800.

A new electric device which above ground automatically controls the weight on an oil-well drilling bit operating 18,000 feet under the earth's surface has been developed. It is known as the "bit-weight" control.

Aviation Scientist

Dr. Ross A. McFarland, aviation research scientist, Harvard University, will address the 29th annual meeting of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association during its October 14-15 meeting at Ft. Worth. His discussion will be "Planes and Petroleum—Past and Future Developments." Dr. McFarland has recently authored two books on human factors in airline operations and air transport design.

HINT TO MOTORISTS

The grade of oil specified by a motor manufacturer should always be used for that particular car. Use of a heavier grade will cause greater wear to the cylinder walls and other parts.

The six-and-a-quarter-billion dollar investment of American farmers in power equipment is largely petroleum-fueled. Oil fuel has eased farm work and stepped-up farm production tremendously in recent years. Farm consumption of gasoline, alone, has doubled since 1941.

New York Day By Day

Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office

NEW YORK—A Texas lady who doesn't want her name mentioned obviously for family reasons, writes me in comment upon something I wrote about mothers-in-law. She says that jealously is the cause of in-law trouble in any family. With this I am inclined to agree in principle. A son-in-law may be jealous of the affection the husband or wife gives to his or her mother. This might lead to unhappiness in the home.

In any case, there cannot be perfect accord in a home in which the wife or husband says to husband or wife, "Well, your mother is an old witch!"

Mothers-in-law have a tough job. Especially if it is their lot or fortune to live with daughter or son in his or her home. Tact and intelligence are required on both sides, and a little patience and forbearance will not come amiss.

I admit that I am not well qualified to speak from experience in this matter, because I love my wife's mother, admire her immensely as one of the sweetest women I have ever known, and greatly admire my wife's devotion to her mother.

Mary Peterson, born in Sweden, is 76 years old, and has been for more than two years an honored guest in our house. During that time, not one untoward incident involving moth-in-law relationship has developed, and not once has Grandma uttered a criticism or condemnation of anybody or anything in our house. She loves our guests, who, I believe, are mostly interesting and talkable people. She will stay up long after her nine o'clock bedtime to listen to the conversation that keeps our living room and kitchen glowing on many nights.

We all speak respectfully to her, and when she is dressed up for church on Sunday I never fail to tell her that she looks pretty. This sets off a spark of joy in her heart, and she says, "Thank you, Charles," with a smile that is worth millions.

If you go into the psychological phases of in-law trouble, you soon run into the problem of mother fixation, father fixation, son fixation and daughter fixation. It is undoubtedly true that some married persons give such morbid love to a parent that they cannot or do not give the spouse the love to which he or she is entitled. In these rare cases, the injured party should not hold the sin against the mother-in-law or father-in-law, but sympathetically try to order his or her life upon the premise that the spouse is slightly out of the normal periphery in the matter of family relations. The injured party may still get along beautifully with the in-law.

Anyway, if there isn't a Mother-in-law's Day or week or month or year, I move that we establish one. And I can find you the text in the Bible for the sermons for that day or period.

Mrs. E. G. Cone, Wichita, has sent me a copy of a really touching poem she sent to her husband's mother. I'll give you odds that this lady has a happy life. She doubtless can see in her husband qualities which she admires in his mother.

So, here's to all mothers-in-law!

'OLD IRONPANTS' GETS TOUGH AIR ARM JOBS

USAAF's Lemay Is Old Hand At Hard Tasks; At 42 Is Youngest Lt. Gen. In His Branch Of Service

By Douglas Larsen

(NEA Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Whenever the U. S. air force finds itself with a particularly tough assignment on its hands, chunky, cigar-smoking Lt. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay usually gets the call.

In terms of the present world crisis, leadership of the U. S. A. F.'s strategic air command is a tough assignment. That is why LeMay, who won't be 42 until November, has just been given that job.

LeMay pulled his first big-time job for the air force during the early bombing of Europe. It was he who decided that casualties and enemy planes notwithstanding, a bomber couldn't vary from its course during the last few minutes of a bombing run, if a target was to be bombed effectively. He discovered this by personally flying missions over targets with his plane full of flak holes.

His order putting this into effect won him the nickname "Old Ironpants." But nicknames have never bothered him. And no mission on which he has ever sent his men was ever too tough for him. He flew the famous raid on the Messerschmitt plant in Germany in 1943, among many others; sometimes he flew as pilot, co-pilot, navigator or observer.

When the air force decided to try out shuttle bombing over Europe, LeMay got the job. From a base in England he made the first such raid, against Regensburg in Germany, landing in Africa.

While LeMay was busy with the Nazis, the B-29, America's aerial hope against Japan, was being put into operation from bases in China. LeMay was sent out to run the show.

But the way to really hit Japan with the Superforts was from the Marianas Islands. Late in 1944, that operation was started. A few months later, LeMay moved again and began running the B-29s from Saipan, Tinian and Guam. Somewhat infrequent, high-altitude attacks became almost every-day, lower level affairs.

It was the combat version of the tactics he set up to beat the Berlin blockade this year, where "Ironpants" set up "General LeMay's Coal and Feed Service" and worked his planes, his fliers and his ground crews on a rush-hour schedule, just as he had worked all hands against the Japs.

When the time came for the air force to drop the first atomic bomb, LeMay was put in executive charge of the operation as chief of staff of the then U. S. army strategic air forces. After the war it was LeMay who got the job of getting the vital, long-range research program of the air force under way.

Nobody can accuse LeMay of ever having talked himself into any of the promotions which have made him one of the youngest officers of his rank in the air force. He generally wears a dead-pan expression and seldom opens his mouth unless he has something important to say.

One of his staff once said, "LeMay talks in such a low voice, we all have bent ears."

At a party in England a lady who had been watching him enjoy the affair in silence asked him if he ever said anything. LeMay replied:

"Lady, if you talk all the time, you'll never learn anything."

He has a kind of ironic humor. On a raid over Germany one day when LeMay was pilot, a rear gunner shouted into the intercom that his guns wouldn't work. In a flat voice LeMay replied:

"That's going to make you look pretty silly when the 190s start coming in, isn't it?"

Again when LeMay returned to his base in Guam one day he found his aide excitedly clutching new orders, giving the general a promotion. The aide said, "What'll I do first about these, sir?"

"Be sure you file them properly," was LeMay's laconic reply.

LeMay's reputation among the men who have served under him is as a hard taskmaster. But he has always tempered his orders with a human quality which increased their effectiveness. His favorite last line after any briefing was:

"Now if you don't understand this operation, say so now, and I'll go out and show you how to do it myself."

This statement was backed up by the fact, of course, that he did just that, many times.

When he first got a group of fliers to England he was cautioning them about getting into tavern brawls and fights. "But if you do get into a fight," he added as an afterthought, "be damn sure you don't get licked."

LeMay was born in Columbus, Ohio, November 15, 1906. He studied engineering at Ohio State University and was commissioned in the air force after graduation from Kelly Field, Texas. He served as a flight instructor for several years. But his specialty was always precision navigation. That is the basis for his great interest in long-range bombing.

DRILLING ACTIVITY IN MISS. SPEEDS UP

LAUREL, Miss., Oct. 9. —(AP)— Oil drilling activity gained speed in Mississippi last week.

Thirteen producers were brought in, three tests were abandoned as dry holes and 14 new locations were staked during the period.

One producer was in wildcat territory and opened the fifth field in Adams county. It is the No. 1 Edwin B. Ogden brought in by Harry W. Elliott. It is located in sec. 42-6N-2W, approximately two miles south of production in the LaGrange field.

The test flowed 259 barrels of 44.2 gravity oil through a 11-65 inch choke in the initial gauge. The producing sands are in the Wilcox formation at 6409-25 feet.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 9.—(Special)—A two-day program for members of the state's oldest and largest organization of Texas oil and gas operators meeting here October 14-15 was announced today by Charles E. Simons, vice-president and general manager of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

"Our 29th Annual Meeting will serve as a forum for Texas petroleum industry leaders to keep themselves abreast of important current developments in the oil business," Simons said. "Reports of the meeting will give Texans an insight to the problems and achievements of their state's most vital industry."

R. B. Anderson of Vernon, Association president, opens the Thursday morning session with an address, "A Challenge to Productive Thinking."

Eugene Holman, president of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) returns to his native state to discuss "Meeting People's Needs for Oil."

OIL HEARING IS SET IN MONROE OCT. 19

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 9 —(AP)— Hearings on operations in Delhi and east Haynesville fields were announced by State Commissioner of Conservation S. L. Digby.

The Delhi hearing, scheduled for 10 a. m. Oct. 14 at the Monteleone Hotel in New Orleans, will be on application of Chester Hunter to drill in S15-17N-10E.

The east Haynesville hearing, set for 10 a. m. Oct. 19 at the Virginia Hotel in Monroe will be on application of S. W. Delaney to receive evidence relative to adoption of regulations and allowables for the Kilpatrick zone.

OIL COMPANY PLANS NEW PROJECTS IN EL DORADO

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. —(AP)— Lion Oil Company announced the signing of contracts for construction projects totalling about $2,000,00 at its chemical plant near El Dorado, Ark.

The projects include a sulfuric acid plant, estimated to cost $1,250,000, and an ammonium sulfate plant, to cost about $750,000. Actual construction is scheduled to start within 30 days and the tentative completion date for both projects is Sept. 1, 1949, the company said.

Oil was first used as a medicine "cure-all," then as fuel for lamps. Today, through progressive research and development, the oil industry processes from crude oil more than 1,200 products which are in every day use.

OIL PROGRESS DAY IS SET FOR MISS.

Oct. 14 Slated By Governor In Proclamation; Proper Observance Is Urged

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 9. —(AP)— Mississippi on October 14 will observe "oil progress day."

The day is so designated in a proclamation by Governor Fielding L. Wright.

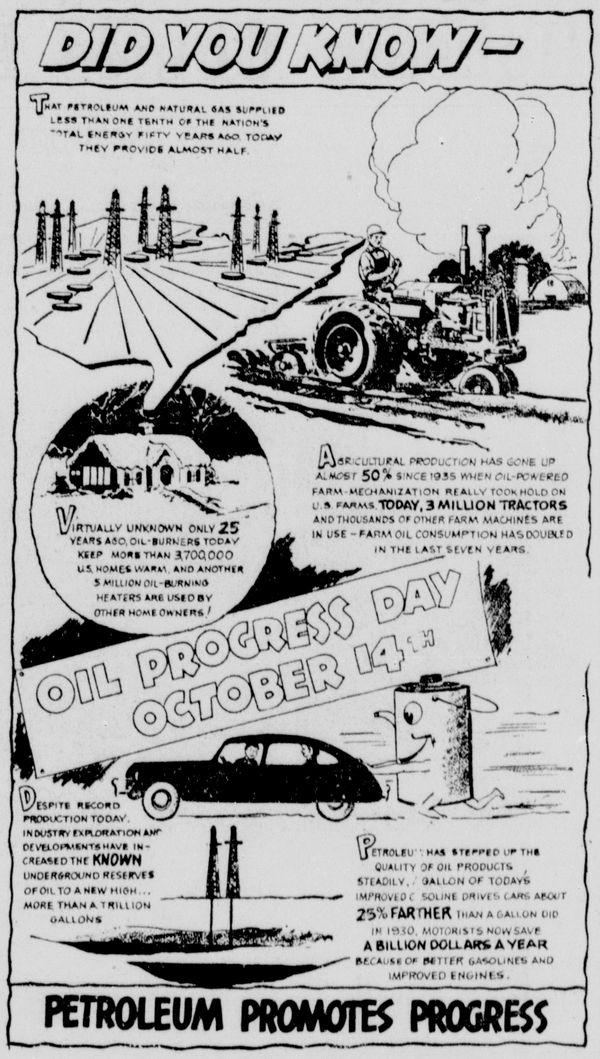

The proclamation urges "proper observance by our people in keeping with the contribution which this product has made to the economy of our state."

It calls attention to Mississippi's position as the ninth state in the union in oil production and sixth in oil reserves, and to the rapid strides noted since discovery of the first well in 1939.

National observance of oil progress week is planned for October 11-17. Frank S. Cannon of Jackson is state chairman of the overall committee in charge of the week's program.

Oil men in all parts of the state will speak before civic clubs and other organizations, detailing progress of the industry nationally and especially in Mississippi.

The week coincides with the state fair week in Jackson. A display at the fair and an oil progress day celebration are planned.

"Oil Progress Day" will be observed here on October 14th when local oil companies will report to their communities how the industry with its 34,000 competitive companies, serves American and contributes to the well-being and progress of the people.

The first automobile imported into the United States was exhibited at the World's Fair in 1893.

"Fill 'er Up"

Slogan Is Still New

Modern Oil History Started In 1901 With Beaumont Producer Yielding 100,000 Barrels Daily

The youth and virility of our American way of life is typified to a startling degree by the amazing development and growth of this country's petroleum industry. We have become so accustomed to saying "fill 'er up" at the nearest service station that it comes as a shock when we realize that the modern history of oil really started in 1901—the same year that Marconi sent his first wireless message across the Atlantic.

It was on January 10, 1901, that the Spindletop discovery well near Beaumont, Texas, let loose with a deep-throated roar and started hurling skyward 100,000 barrels of crude petroleum daily.

From that time petroleum became increasingly important. In 1900 it supplied only eight per cent of the power and heat requirements of the United States. True, adventurous men had explored the eastern part of the nation for 40 years, but they worked on a hit or miss basis and their shallow wells had comparatively small yields.

Then came Spindletop and the country went wild. Here is what the Beaumont newspaper had to say about it:

"The Beaumont oil boom will eclipse in significance, extent and human interest the Indian stocks, the Mississippi Bubble, the gold fields of '49 and even that pathetic melodrama of the Klondike."

That prediction came true to the letter. The new abundance of oil came just in time, the next decade saw the introduction of the Tin Lizzy and an almost limitless variety of oil-powered, labor-saving equipment. The oil age had begun, and it continues today, when petroleum and natural gas supply almost half of our heat and power needs.

Methods of developing news fields, as well as those of drilling and storage, have been greatly improved since Spindletop due to the intense competition among oil producing companies. Gone are the wild boom towns where staid business men toted revolvers and where their buggies sank knee deep in the mud of unpaved streets. Gone, too, are the mad scramble for leases and locations; the well derricks crowded shoulder to shoulder like trees in some monster forest; the roaring, untamed, often blazing gushers and the wasteful open-air storage basins.

Today Beaumont and other oil towns are eminently respectable, with wide paved streets and soaring skyscrapers. Leases are drawn as carefully and equitably as life insurance policies. Conservation techniques have made it possible to space wells efficiently; to pro-rate their production so that excessive flow does not exhaust the underground gas and water pressure which pushes oil toward them through porus rock formations. Fields are even re-pressured by pumping gas and water back into them so that much oil which previously had to be left underground can now be recovered.

Gushers have been tamed by means of complicated arrangements of pipes and valves called Christmas trees. Wells which no longer flow are pumped, or "stripped" of their maximum recoverable oil. Fields are not opened for production until steel storage tank "farms" have been built and pipelines run to the nearest refinery or shipping center.

Perhaps the most interesting developments have come in drilling.

In the early days most wells were put down by the percussion method. That has been largely superceded by rotary drilling, in which a bit revolves auger-fashion until it reaches great depths. Picture the difficulties of this operation in view of the fact that hundreds of holes more than 8,000 feet deep have been drilled. (The average well depth drilled in the United States last year was 3,593 feet.)

At 8,000 feet the drill is on the end of a pipe composed of 400 twenty-foot sections. Whenever a bit has to be sharpened or replaced — and this happens frequently — the entire pipe must be hauled up, unjointed and stacked. This becomes doubly difficult and expensive when a well has been curved in order to strike oil deposits lying under a mountain, swamp or off-shore in the ocean.

Some wells go as much as three miles deep and present even more complicated problems. Hunting for the needle in a haystack is easy compared to fishing a broken bit out of such a hole. Sometimes the task cannot be accomplished. Then the well has to be abandoned, even though it may have cost hundreds of thousands of dollars. (It should be added that four of every five wells drilled in exploring for new petroleum have to be abandoned anyway because they turn out to be dry holes.)

The bottom of a hole gets one degree hotter for each 60 feet of depth. (In one three-mile well a thermometer registered 380 degrees — 168 degrees hotter than boiling water.) To lubricate and cool deep-going drills —as well as to plaster up the sides of holes so they will not cave in or blow out, and to carry out rock cuttings — force pumps circulate thick, gooey, specially-compounded mud in and out of wells. Oil drillers spend $10,000,000 a year—just for mud!

It is by the use of such progressive methods that America's 13,000 competitive production companies manage to meet a demand for oil products which is running 18 per cent higher than in 1945, at the peak of the war, and 45 per cent above 1941, the last pre-war year. It is also the way in which they have pushed our reserves of discovered petroleum to the record high of almost 25 billion barrels despite that unprecedented demand. This year they plan to drill 40,000 wells, of which more than 7,000 will be exploration wells in search of new oil sources. These will reach an aggregate depth of more than one hundred thirty million feet—a distance equal to two and a half times the earth's diameter at the Equator.

U. S. PRODUCTION OF OIL DECLINES

Several States Up Yield To New High; Decline Credited To Idle California Wells

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Although several states set records during the week ended Oct. 2, the nation's average daily crude oil production for the period dropped 23,400 barrels, the Oil & Gas Journal reported.

The Journal said a major part of the drop was accounted for by reduced production in California as a result of a decrease in crude processed at the state's strike-bound refineries.

California's average daily production was listed as 749,800 barrels, a drop of 19,500 barrels from its output the previous week.

Total average daily production for the entire country was 5,367,345 barrels. East of California, the Journal said, production was within 3,900 barrels daily of the all-time record established the week before.

Texas' output hit a new high of 2,481,225 barrels, a jump of 10,325 barrels above the state's previous record set the week ended Sept. 11.

North Louisiana and Indiana set records for the year. North Louisiana's 114,600 barrels daily for the week was 350 higher than its previous top reached in the week ended Sept. 18. Indiana's new record was 27,500 barrels, an increase of 1,300 barrels over its production the previous week.

Kansas's production dropped 5,800 barrels daily to 305,050 barrels after the state had established a record the week before. Despite a drop of 2,900 barrels to 430,850, Oklahoma remained close to its year's high of 4?0,850 barrels established during the week ended June 26.

Michigan's production fell off 3,000 barrels to 45,000, which compares with its Sept. 11 high for the year of 49,600 barrels.

Louisiana produced 484,900 barrels Oct. 2 compared with 485,100 Sept. 25. Mississippi produced 126,450 compared with 126,800.

A new electric device which above ground automatically controls the weight on an oil-well drilling bit operating 18,000 feet under the earth's surface has been developed. It is known as the "bit-weight" control.

Aviation Scientist

Dr. Ross A. McFarland, aviation research scientist, Harvard University, will address the 29th annual meeting of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association during its October 14-15 meeting at Ft. Worth. His discussion will be "Planes and Petroleum—Past and Future Developments." Dr. McFarland has recently authored two books on human factors in airline operations and air transport design.

HINT TO MOTORISTS

The grade of oil specified by a motor manufacturer should always be used for that particular car. Use of a heavier grade will cause greater wear to the cylinder walls and other parts.

The six-and-a-quarter-billion dollar investment of American farmers in power equipment is largely petroleum-fueled. Oil fuel has eased farm work and stepped-up farm production tremendously in recent years. Farm consumption of gasoline, alone, has doubled since 1941.

LIONS FACE TORNADO IN CLASS 'AA' OPENER

OUACHITA HOPES HANG IN BALANCE WITH HURT ACES

Crop Of Cripples Looms Bigger Despite Week's Rest; Game Friday

The Ouachita Parish High School Lions, with injuries threatening to riddle their chances in Class AA competition this year, meet their first conference opponent here next Friday night when they tangle with the Haynesville High School Golden Tornado.

Latest blow to the Lion lineup is the injury of Gayle Ward, first string guard, who is believed lost for the rest of the season as the result of a highway accident Friday night near his home at Fairbanks. Ward, hurt along with his father when their pickup truck went out of order and crashed into a ditch as they were returning home from a football game in Monroe, is a patient at St. Francis Sanitarium where it was reported he suffered a lacerated knee and brain concussion.

Already on the Lion hospital roll were Mark Boatright, Bobby Bruce, Jack Smith, E. J. Sievers, and Billy Joe Milstead, all regulars. Smith, center, is out for the season and Johnny Goodwin is now entrenched at the pivot position.

Sievers, hard driving fullback, and Milstead, classy quarterback, came up with injuries in the Bolton game a week ago. Sievers, getting a severe ankle twist, and Milstead, suffering a hip injury. However, it was reported yesterday that Sievers had used the open date the past week to good advantage and would be all right for the Tornado invasion.

While Mark Boatright, fast stepping left halfback, has been out with a knee injury since the Ruston game, the Lions' high scoring ace is expected to be able to see some service against Haynesville. He was still limping about some the past week, but expects to be ready by next Friday.

No report was forthcoming on the progress of Bruce, a tackle, and Milstead, but indications are that they are hoping to be ready.

Even if the Lions were in top condition with no injuries to worry about, the Haynesville game would probably still be an unpredictable one. The "off form" results of games so far could be used to favor either team.

For example Haynesville beat Fair Park, 18 to 7, and Fair Park held Bolton to a scant 20-18 triumph before Bolton romped over the Lions, 26-0.

But in another comparison, Haynesville was held to a 0-0 tie by Bossier City, a team the Lions beat when at full strength, 21 12. Haynesville also beat Ruston, 19-0, and Ouachita beat Ruston, 20-0.

Following the Haynesville scrap, Ouachita invades Shreveport for a meeting with Fair Park on October 22 and rests through an open date before engaging Byrd here November 5.

Sports Trail

By Whitney Martin

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—(AP)—In his boyhood days, Johnny Sain said, he was a very imaginative kid.

He'd go to picture shows and live them, being a two-gun bad man or the hero rescuing the gal or the heroic commander of a submarine as the story unfolded before his wide eyes.

He outgrew that phase of fantasy to become one of the most stolid and phlegmatic and apparently unimaginative pitchers in the major leagues, but this bright autumn afternoon he probably wished everything that was happening to him was just in his mind.

It would have been quite nice to imagine, for instance, that Larry Doby's authoritative home run into the standup crowd in left center could be eliminated merely by pinching himself and discovering he was asleep.

It also would have been fine if he knew that Dale Mitchell's snappy single and Lou Boudreau's double in the first inning were just products of a dreamer's mind.

And it would have been very nice indeed if he could imagine his teammates were getting up there and rapping out strings of base hits off Steve Gromek, instead of spacing them like they were planting apple trees.

The fourth 1948 World Series game today produced a flock of new records, probably including one for futility, and another for opportunism. This futility belongs to the Braves, the opportunism to the Indians, who the last three days have hit when it counted.

For just the fleeting moment today it seemed that the Boston club was going to play some of the baseball that won it the National League pennant. After Marv Rickert had blasted his tremendous home run in the seventh, Mike McCormick rapped a single, but the Braves, unaccustomed to this prosperity, quickly reverted to form and went out in order.

Aside from the two home runs it was another game devoid of thrills, with the major excitement caused by Umpire Bill Stewart—there's that man again—calling Boudreau out when Lou tried to make a triple out of his double in the first inning.

Boudreau bounced to his feet like a groggy fighter and headed for the stocky arbiter and the action fanned the flame of the fans' resentment toward the umpire, who already had his front feet in the doghouse as far as Cleveland fans were concerned.

It was a close play, and Stewart, an honest, capable official, called it quickly and as he saw it. There was no maybe about it, and of the nearly 81,879 persons in the park he was in the best position to make the call.

That was the lone flareup of the game, although Stewart was booed thereafter every time he picked up a loose ball or shifted from one spot to the other. As a former hockey referee he can take it. All the players carry sticks in that game.

Tomorrow the Braves really will be in the spot, but they could break loose, even against Bob Feller. As one fan commented when it was remarked the Boston club wasn't as feeble as it has looked:

"It couldn't be."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A couple of nights ago Mel Ott picked the Braves to win the World Series on the strength of their relief pitching. . . . Mel had a right smart idea there, but he failed to allow for the fact that Billy Southworth's Boston boys can't score enough runs to make their reliefers useful. . . . So far, in three games, Southworth has called on Red Barrett twice in relief roles and Nelson Potter and Bill Voiselle once each. Potter allowed one unearned run and the others none at all in a total of 9 1/3 innings. The catch was that the games were lost when they went in. . . . Maybe things will even up with Steve Gromek pitching against Johnny Sain today but there's some doubt. . . . The Braves aren't in a hitting slump, Southworth insists, but they're in a heck of a runs-batted-in slump.

Hair Raising Position

Eddie Waitkus, of the Cubs, showed up on the field before one World Series game and an acquaintance promptly asked him how he liked playing the outfield for the Cubs. . . . Eddie pointed at his somewhat shaggy noggin and replied: "I didn't get a haircut for two weeks so I'd have some protection in the outfield. I'm really doing a Dodger out there."

Lakefront Lisps

One slightly cynical observer, reaching Cleveland on the press special three hours late and having a heck of a time making his way to the registration deck in his hotel, observed: "There are more specs in the hotel lobby here than there were spectators at Braves field." . . . Tommy Holmes turned down a bid to play post-season exhibition with Brooklyn's celebrated semi-pro club, the Bushwicks. . . . Report here says that Bill Klem definitely is through as supervisor of National League umpires. A matter of money. . . . The Red Sox Bob Sturgeon, a late-season arrival who started out with the Cubs last spring, warned the Braves about that pickoff play at second, which had been successful twice against Chicago in spring games. The warning didn't help a bit. . . . Bob Lemon's son, born last March, was named for Jeff Heath, who would be playing for the Braves except for a broken ankle.

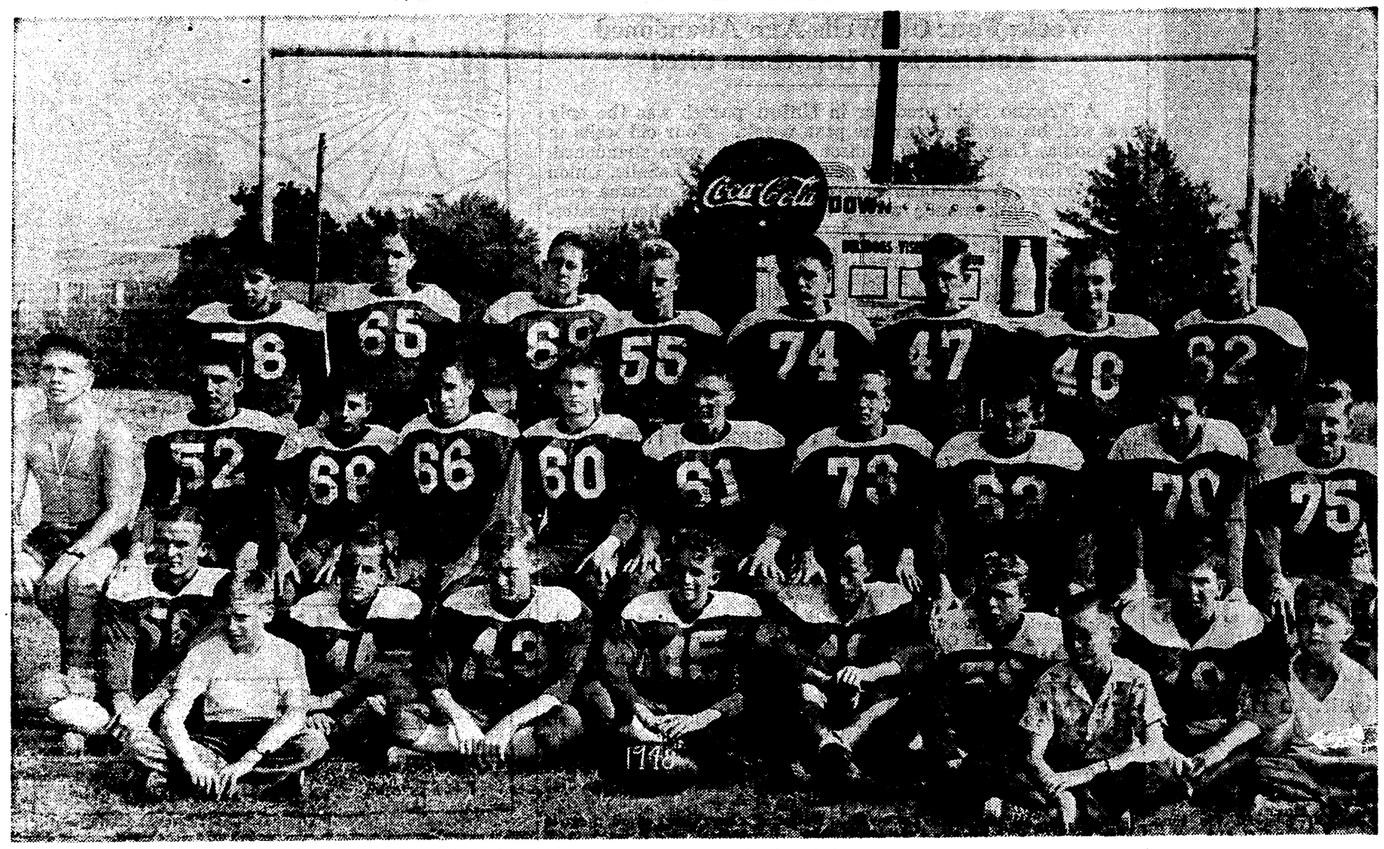

Cleaning The Cuff

Trainer Freddie Fierro, who reports that Billy Conn has been training assiduously for a comeback, thinks Conn will be ready to fight before November. . . . Conn is working out in Joe Vella's Cliffside Park, N. J., along with another ex-champion, Gus Lesnevich. . . . The Pirates' Bill Meyer is plugging Danny Murtaugh as the best second baseman in baseball. That's okay as long as nobody argues that Lou Boudreau isn't the best shortstop. . . . Gene Bearden, who once pitched for Casey Stengel at Oakland, Calif., says: "A fellow would almost play for nothing to be around old Case—and it was pretty near that when you consider those coast league salaries."

Joe Muha has one of the best early season punting averages in N. F. L. history. He has booted the ball 15 times for an average of 47.6 yards. Frank Reagan, former Pennsylvania star, is 2.2 yards on the average back of the former V. M. I. star.

COLUMBIA STOPS CROWVILLE, 13-0

Harrelson And Hopper Score Touchdowns For Crimson Tide

COLUMBIA, La., Oct. 9. (Special)—The Columbia High School Crimson Tide pushed over touchdowns in the first and last quarters here last night to score a Class B conference triumph over the Crowville High School Bulldogs, 13 to 0.

Starting with the opening kickoff on their own 35, the Tide marched straight to pay dirt with Hall, Hopper, Harrelson, and Smith alternating in a drive to the Bulldog three-yard line, and Harrelson plunged over for the score. Hopper hit the line for the extra point.

There was no more scoring until the final period when a series of passes and a sprinkling of line plays carried the Tide to the Crowville 12 from where Hopper slipped through the line to score.

Crowville, aided by penalties against the Tide, advanced inside the Columbia 40 only once during the game, but the Crimson forwards were equal to the task and repulsed the Crowville threat.

"The blocking and tackling of the Crowville team was the best we've faced this season," Coach Woodrow Turner of the Tide said, "But our backs had the edge in speed and that meant the difference in the ball game."

Coach Leo Kay of Crowville called Columbia's line "the best we have lined up against this year." He figured line play meant the difference.

The Crimsons invade Dubach for their next game Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock with hopes of repeating last season's triumph over the Plunging Rattlesnakes.

SERIES WEATHER FORECAST

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—(AP)—For Sunday's fifth World Series game, the last to be played here, the forecast is:

"Fair weather, windy and mild temperatures."

Tomorrow's maximum temperature is expected to be 62 degrees, about the same as today's.

BLOCK BEARS BEAT OLLA TIGERS, 45-6

JONESVILLE, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—The Block High School Bears packed their punch into the first quarter and coasted to a 45 to 6 victory over the Olla Tigers here last night. It was the Bruins' third Class B victory.

Block started rolling when Olla fumbled the opening kickoff and the Bears recovered. About three plays later Bobby Fairbanks went over from the six for the opening touchdown, and Jim Robotham kicked the point.

Colin Crawford, on a 20-yard run around left end, and Fairbanks, on a 12-yard drive through the line, added two more touchdowns in the first quarter, and Dudley Walker made the conversion behind Fairbanks' touchdown to make the score 20-0 entering the second period.

Robotham plowed over from the three for Block's only tally in the second period in which the Tigers scored their lone touchdown when Bill Brandall got away on a 30-yard dash around left end.

Densil Humble added another Block touchdown in the third quarter with a seven-yard run, and Robotham slipped through tackle in the final period and went 28 yards for another. Crawford brought in the final touchdown a few moments later with a four-yard plunge, and Fairbanks brought another conversion after Crawford's last goal crossing.

The Bears go to Crowville for a meeting with Coach Leo Kay's Bulldogs next Friday.

Favored Louisiana Eleven Beaten After Enjoying 14-0 Lead At Half

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The University of Houston scored three rapid touchdowns in the final period today to come from behind and hand Louisiana Tech its first defeat of the season, 40 to 33.

Louisiana's Bulldogs, with only a 13-13 tie with Auburn blemishing their record, entered the game strong favorites and ran up a 14-0 score at the half and was within striking distance. 20-26, at the end of the third period.

Two fumble recoveries led to 33 and 31-yard touchdown drives early in the final quarter to give the Cougars a 34-26 lead before End Maurice Elliott intercepted a Tech pass and raced 48 yards for Houston's final score to make the tally 40 to 26.

A long kickoff return moved Louisiana to the Houston 28 and a 17 yard pass, John Williamson to Bob Horneman, produced Tech's last touchdown. Joe Michael's third conversion in five attempts ended the scoring.

Fumbles set up the first two Louisiana drives of 47 and 25 yards, with L. J. Aucoin and Arnold Mathews scoring. The third Tech touchdown was made by Gene Knecht after James Harrison had made a 59-yard kickoff return.

Louisiana's fourth score saw Aucoin plunging over after an intercepted pass began a 38-yard march.

Alan Neveaux, who also made good on four out of six conversion attempts, scored the first two tallies for Houston, climaxing drives of 63 and 41 yards.

In the third quarter, Max Clark skirted right end for the third score after a 65-yard drive.

Scoring after the fourth period fumble recoveries were Jack Gwin, taking a pass from Neveaux, and Bo Campbell.

Houston scored 16 first downs to 12 for Tech, ran up 59 yards on seven passes completed out of 14 attempts, and netted 296 yards rushing. Tech made 30 yards on three completions out of nine attempts and had 214 net yards rushing.

Veteran passers, such as Tommy Thompson, Sammy Baugh, Bob Waterfield, Jack Jacobs, Paul Christman, are meeting the challenge of the National Football League rookies such as Fred Enke, Detroit, and Charley Conerly, New York. Early statistics give the veterans a bulge over the newcomers.

CLEMSON TIGERS SPIKE UNBEATEN MAROONS, 21 TO 7

Bengals Score When Least Expected To Crush Mississippi State

By Leroy Simms

STARKVILLE, Miss., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Clemson Tigers soundly defeated previously unbeaten Mississippi State, 21 to 7, here today before some 12,000 surprised fans.

The victors made their scores the easy way—all on one quick thrust when they did not appear to be threatening.

The first was engineered by Guard Tom Salisbury, who blocked a punt by State's Shorty McWilliams on the State 18, picked the ball up on the 10 and trotted across. Jack Miller split the goal posts on the first of three successful conversions.

Clemson's next score, also in the first quarter, started as a fake reverse by Halfback Bobby Gage. He tossed a short pass to Ray Mathews, standing on the Clemson 40, and Mathews picked up blockers as he went to go into the end zone untouched.

The final Tiger score, in the third period, covered 46 yards. Gage again was on the throwing end, shooting a pass to End John Poulos about 15 yards out. Poulos raced for the touchdown unmolested.

State, a two-touchdown favorite at kickoff time, made few threats. McWilliams did cash in one break, however, for a second period score. Jerry Taylor, substitute center, covered a Clemson fumble on the Tiger 17. McWilliams passed to Truitt Smith for the marker on the first play. Max Stainbrook converted.

The winners held a wide margin in the statistics, amassing 172 yards rushing and 116 passing to 102 rushing and 73 passing for the state eleven. Much of the Mississippi yardage came in the fourth quarter, when Clemson was content to hit the middle in time-consuming plays.

Gage, the play caller for the victors, was well bottled on running plays, but his cool handling of the ball on passes and reverses had much to do with the final outcome.

In the third period, for instance, Gage passed from deep in his own end zone to Mathews for a 30-yard gain to get Clemson out of a deep hole.

The score was 21-7, Clemson, at the time State was making threatening gestures and Don Robinson had angled a punt out of bounds on the Tiger one.

Gage's pass got the ball out of the danger zone. The Tigers devoted their remaining efforts to freezing the ball and throttling Mississippi offensive maneuvers.

State undoubtedly was handicapped by the absence of Harper Davis, star

LIONS FACE TORNADO IN CLASS 'AA' OPENER

OUACHITA HOPES HANG IN BALANCE WITH HURT ACES

Crop Of Cripples Looms Bigger Despite Week's Rest; Game Friday

The Ouachita Parish High School Lions, with injuries threatening to riddle their chances in Class AA competition this year, meet their first conference opponent here next Friday night when they tangle with the Haynesville High School Golden Tornado.

Latest blow to the Lion lineup is the injury of Gayle Ward, first string guard, who is believed lost for the rest of the season as the result of a highway accident Friday night near his home at Fairbanks. Ward, hurt along with his father when their pickup truck went out of order and crashed into a ditch as they were returning home from a football game in Monroe, is a patient at St. Francis Sanitarium where it was reported he suffered a lacerated knee and brain concussion.

Already on the Lion hospital roll were Mark Boatright, Bobby Bruce, Jack Smith, E. J. Sievers, and Billy Joe Milstead, all regulars. Smith, center, is out for the season and Johnny Goodwin is now entrenched at the pivot position.

Sievers, hard driving fullback, and Milstead, classy quarterback, came up with injuries in the Bolton game a week ago. Sievers, getting a severe ankle twist, and Milstead, suffering a hip injury. However, it was reported yesterday that Sievers had used the open date the past week to good advantage and would be all right for the Tornado invasion.

While Mark Boatright, fast stepping left halfback, has been out with a knee injury since the Ruston game, the Lions' high scoring ace is expected to be able to see some service against Haynesville. He was still limping about some the past week, but expects to be ready by next Friday.

No report was forthcoming on the progress of Bruce, a tackle, and Milstead, but indications are that they are hoping to be ready.

Even if the Lions were in top condition with no injuries to worry about, the Haynesville game would probably still be an unpredictable one. The "off form" results of games so far could be used to favor either team.

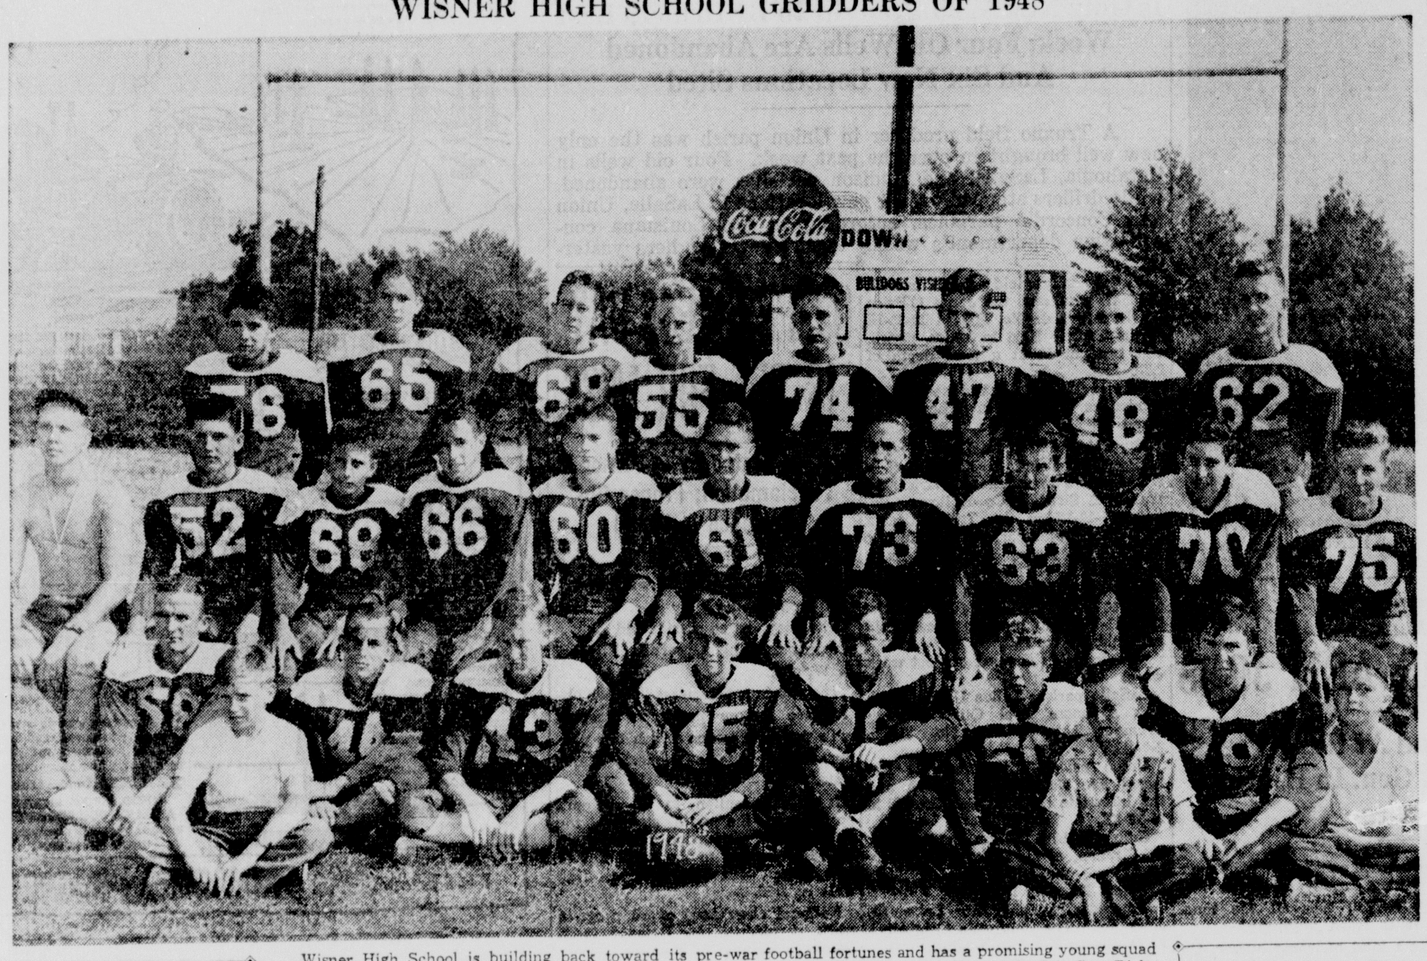

For example Haynesville beat Fair Park, 18 to 7, and Fair Park held Bolton to a scant 20-18 triumph before Bolton romped over the Lions, 26-0.

But in another comparison, Haynesville was held to a 0-0 tie by Bossier City, a team the Lions beat when at full strength, 21-12. Haynesville also beat Ruston, 19-0, and Ouachita beat Ruston, 20-0.

Following the Haynesville scrap, Ouachita invades Shreveport for a meeting with Fair Park on October 22 and rests through an open date before engaging Byrd here November 5.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—(AP)—A couple of nights ago Mel Ott picked the Braves to win the World Series on the strength of their relief pitching. . . . Mel had a right smart idea there, but he failed to allow for the fact that Billy Southworth's Boston boys can't score enough runs to make their reliefers useful. . . . So far, in three games, Southworth has called on Red Barrett twice in relief roles and Nelson Potter and Bill Voiselle once each. Potter allowed one unearned run and the others none at all in a total of 9 1/3 innings. The catch was that the games were lost when they went in. . . . Maybe things will even up with Steve Gromek pitching against Johnny Sain today but there's some doubt. . . . The Braves aren't in a hitting slump, Southworth insists, but they're in a heck of a runs-batted-in slump.

Hair Raising Position

Eddie Waitkus, of the Cubs, showed up on the field before one World Series game and an acquaintance promptly asked him how he liked playing the outfield for the Cubs. . . . Eddie pointed at his somewhat shaggy noggin and replied: "I didn't get a haircut for two weeks so I'd have some protection in the outfield. I'm really doing a Dodger out there."

Lakefront Lisps

One slightly cynical observer, reaching Cleveland on the press special three hours late and having a heck of a time making his way to the registration deck in his hotel, observed: "There are more specs in the hotel lobby here than there were spectators at Braves field." . . . Tommy Holmes turned down a bid to play post-season exhibition with Brooklyn's celebrated semi-pro club, the Bushwicks. . . . Report here says that Bill Klem definitely is through as supervisor of National League umpires. A matter of money. . . . The Red Sox Bob Sturgeon, a late-season arrival who started out with the Cubs last spring, warned the Braves about that pickoff play at second, which had been successful twice against Chicago in spring games. The warning didn't help a bit. . . . Bob Lemon's son, born last March, was named for Jeff Heath, who would be playing for the Braves except for a broken ankle.

Cleaning The Cuff

Trainer Freddie Fierro, who reports that Billy Conn has been training assiduously for a comeback, thinks Conn will be ready to fight before November. . . . Conn is working out in Joe Vella's Cliffside Park, N. J., along with another ex-champion, Gus Lesnevich. . . . The Pirates' Bill Meyer is plugging Danny Murtaugh as the best second baseman in baseball. That's okay as long as nobody argues that Lou Boudreau isn't the best shortstop. . . . Gene Bearden, who once pitched for Casey Stengel at Oakland, Calif., says: "A fellow would almost play for nothing to be around old Case—and it was pretty near that when you consider those coast league salaries."

Joe Muha has one of the best early season punting averages in N. F. L. history. He has booted the ball 15 times for an average of 47.6 yards. Frank Reagan, former Pennsylvania star, is 2.2 yards on the average back of the former V. M. I. star.

Sports Trail

By Whitney Martin

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—(AP)—In his boyhood days, Johnny Sain said, he was a very imaginative kid.

He'd go to picture shows and live them, being a two-gun bad man or the hero rescuing the gal or the heroic commander of a submarine as the story unfolded before his wide eyes.

He outgrew that phase of fantasy to become one of the most stolid and phlegmatic and apparently unimaginative pitchers in the major leagues, but this bright autumn afternoon he probably wished everything that was happening to him was just in his mind.

It would have been quite nice to imagine, for instance, that Larry Doby's authoritative home run into the standup crowd in left center could be eliminated merely by pinching himself and discovering he was asleep.

It also would have been fine if he knew that Dale Mitchell's snappy single and Lou Boudreau's double in the first inning were just products of a dreamer's mind.

And it would have been very nice indeed if he could imagine his teammates were getting up there and rapping out strings of base hits off Steve Gromek, instead of spacing them like they were planting apple trees.

The fourth 1948 World Series game today produced a flock of new records, probably including one for futility, and another for opportunism. This futility belongs to the Braves, the opportunism to the Indians, who the last three days have hit when it counted.

For just the fleeting moment today it seemed that the Boston club was going to play some of the baseball that won it the National League pennant. After Marv Rickert had blasted his tremendous home run in the seventh, Mike McCormick rapped a single, but the Braves, unaccustomed to this prosperity, quickly reverted to form and went out in order.

Aside from the two home runs it was another game devoid of thrills, with the major excitement caused by Umpire Bill Stewart—there's that man again—calling Boudreau out when Lou tried to make a triple out of his double in the first inning.

Boudreau bounced to his feet like a groggy fighter and headed for the stocky arbiter and the action fanned the flame of the fans' resentment toward the umpire, who already had his front feet in the doghouse as far as Cleveland fans were concerned.

It was a close play, and Stewart, an honest, capable official, called it quickly and as he saw it. There was no maybe about it, and of the nearly 81,879 persons in the park he was in the best position to make the call.

That was the lone flareup of the game, although Stewart was booed thereafter every time he picked up a loose ball or shifted from one spot to the other. As a former hockey referee he can take it. All the players carry sticks in that game.

Tomorrow the Braves really will be in the spot, but they could break loose, even against Bob Feller. As one fan commented when it was remarked the Boston club wasn't as feeble as it has looked:

"It couldn't be."

COLUMBIA STOPS CROWVILLE, 13-0

Harrelson And Hopper Score Touchdowns For Crimson Tide

COLUMBIA, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—The Columbia High School Crimson Tide pushed over touchdowns in the first and last quarters here last night to score a Class B conference triumph over the Crowville High School Bulldogs, 13 to 0.

Starting with the opening kickoff on their own 35, the Tide marched straight to pay dirt with Hall, Hopper, Harrelson, and Smith alternating in a drive to the Bulldog three-yard line, and Harrelson plunged over for the score. Hopper hit the line for the extra point.

There was no more scoring until the final period when a series of passes and a sprinkling of line plays carried the Tide to the Crowville 12 from where Hopper slipped through the line to score.

Crowville, aided by penalties against the Tide, advanced inside the Columbia 40 only once during the game, but the Crimson forwards were equal to the task and repulsed the Crowville threat.

"The blocking and tackling of the Crowville team was the best we've faced this season," Coach Woodrow Turner of the Tide said, "But our backs had the edge in speed and that meant the difference in the ball game."

Coach Leo Kay of Crowville called Columbia's line "the best we have lined up against this year." He figured line play meant the difference.

SERIES WEATHER FORECAST

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—(AP)—For Sunday's fifth World Series game, the last to be played here, the forecast is:

"Fair weather, windy and mild temperatures."

Tomorrow's maximum temperature is expected to be 62 degrees, about the same as today's.

BLOCK BEARS BEAT OLLA TIGERS, 45-6

JONESVILLE, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—The Block High School Bears packed their punch into the first quarter and coasted to a 45 to 6 victory over the Olla Tigers here last night. It was the Bruins' third Class B victory.

Block started rolling when Olla fumbled the opening kickoff and the Bears recovered. About three plays later Bobby Fairbanks went over from the six for the opening touchdown, and Jim Robotham kicked the point.

Colin Crawford, on a 20-yard run around left end, and Fairbanks, on a 12-yard drive through the line, added two more touchdowns in the first quarter, and Dudley Walker made the conversion behind Fairbanks' touchdown to make the score 20-0 entering the second period.

Robotham plowed over from the three for Block's only tally in the second period in which the Tigers scored their lone touchdown when Bill Brandall got away on a 30-yard dash around left end.

Densil Humble added another Block touchdown in the third quarter with a seven-yard run, and Robotham slipped through tackle in the final period and went 28 yards for another. Crawford brought in the final touchdown a few moments later with a four-yard plunge, and Fairbanks brought another conversion after Crawford's last goal crossing.

The Bears go to Crowville for a meeting with Coach Leo Kay's Bulldogs next Friday.

Mullie Lenoir, halfback on the University of Alabama's 1920 team, still holds the Crimson Tide's individual scoring record with 144 points on 24 touchdowns.

CLEVELAND CLOSES IN ON WORLD'S CROWN

GROMEK MASTERS BRAVES IN FOURTH OF SERIES, 2 TO 1

Indians Can Sew Up Championship With Fourth Victory Today

By Gayle Talbot

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Steve Gromek stood the hapless Boston Braves on their collective heads today before 81,897 customers, a new series record, as the Cleveland Indians took a virtual stranglehold on the World Baseball championship with a 2-1 victory over the National Leaguers.

Steve Gromek

Gromek, right out of Manager Lou Boudreau's bottom drawer, gave the Indians a 3-1 advantage in games, putting them in a position to close out the series tomorrow behind Bob Feller. Larry Doby's third-inning homer, the first of the series, provided Gromek his margin of victory.

The only score the Braves made off the 27-year-old righthander was a well tagged home run in the seventh by Marv Rickert, the minor league outfielder who got in the playoffs at the last minute because of an injury to Jeff Heath.

Today's vast crowd, although slightly under the major league record 82,781 which saw a midseason Cleveland-Philadelphia double-header in the vast Municipal Stadium here, paid $370,775.03, also a new series mark. The old series attendance record was 74,065 set in Yankee Stadium last year, and the previous high gate was made here yesterday—$345,614.47.

The Indians today the big tobacco-chewing fellow who licked them in the Boston opener, Johnny Sain.

They clipped him for only five hits, all in the first five frames. But one of their blows was a double by Boudreau with an underling on base in the first inning, and another was a home run smash by the Negro outfielder, Larry Doby, deep over the right center field railing in the third.

That was all Gromek needed as he sneaked a weird assortment of curves and screwballs past the bewildered Bostons. In all, he gave up seven hits, but Rickert was the only Brave to see third base. Just to demonstrate that he could do it, the Cleveland chukker racked up two strikeouts in the final inning, his only ones of the game.

Rickert's round-tripper broke a string of 25 scoreless innings for the Braves, starting in the second game of the series. Gene Bearden southpawed them into a helpless state yesterday. As a matter of passing interest, Rickert's blow was exactly the 200th home run ever hit in a world series game.

Again, and for the fourth straight day, today's great crowd more or less sat on its hands. Pitching duels do not, for some reason, generate a great deal of enthusiasm, and all this series has seen is pitching of a very high caliber, indeed.

Today's throng raised its blood pressure only twice—when Doby socked the winning hit, and when Boudreau was called out at third by Umpire Bill Stewart, Cleveland's favorite villain, after delivering his timely double in the first inning.

Dale Mitchell, Tribe leftfielder, inaugurated the contest with a sharp single through the box, for which Sain didn't even bother to stoop. Doby was an infield out, and then Boudreau, handsomest of all the managers, poled a long one down the right field line.

It was a double easily, and Mitchell raced across by miles, but for some reason Lou, who also is one of the slowest pilots in the business, decided to stretch it by one sack.

Tommy Holmes whipped the ball in to Al Dark, Boston shortstop, and Al in turn relayed to Bob Elliott, who was squatting over third. Boudreau slid, Elliott planted the ball on him, and Stewart said the Cleveland leader was a casualty.

Elder Bill McKechnie, the Cleveland third base coach, who had encouraged Boudreau to stretch his luck, first blew his top. Then Boudreau stuck his chin about two inches from Stewart's nose and delivered himself of a tirade.

It finally was necessary for rotund Bill Summers, who was working the second base precinct, to trundle over and pull the two enraged Indians off the harried arbiter. From there on the record crowd missed no opportunity to vent its wrath on Stewart.

It all went back, of course, to the opening game in Boston, when Stewart ruled Phil Masi of the Braves safe on the celebrated and vital pick-off play at second base, which enabled the Boston catcher to score the game's winning run a moment later. Another close decision by Stewart at first base led to Boston's only run of the second contest.

As it happened, Stewart's call on Boudreau didn't affect the outcome today. Doby's wallop two innings later took care of that. Boudreau declined to discuss it after the game, and Elliott implied very strongly that the Indians' manager merely had been looking for a chance to kick up a ruckus. The Boston third-sacker said he put the ball on Lou good.

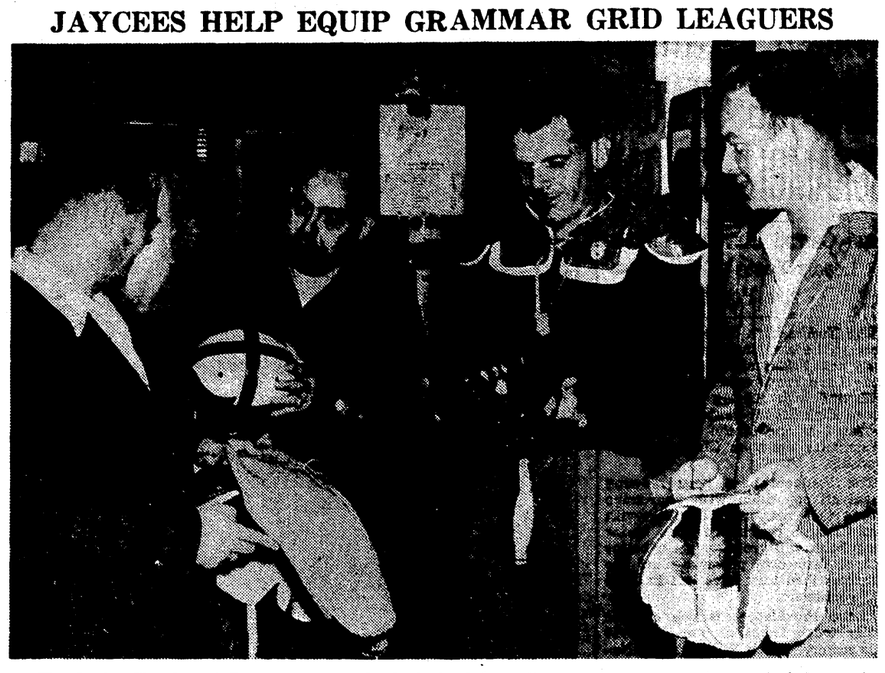

Boudreau naturally was jubilant after the game, but he refused to bite at a suggestion that the series was all over except for the shouting. He said that, yes, his pitching staff was in excellent shape, with Feller rested and ready for action for the fifth game. But he declined to predict a victory tomorrow.

Manager Billy Southworth of the Braves announced before the series began that he would use the veteran Nelson Potter only for relief chores,

VOLUNTEERS FACE DOWNSVILLE NINE

Little Eight Playoff Game Slated This Afternoon On Cloyd Diamond

The West Monroe Volunteers and Downsville, battling for the right to meet the West Monroe Rebels in the championship finals of the Little Eight Baseball League, meet in the second game of their semi-final series this afternoon.

The game, scheduled to be played on the Cloyd diamond, just outside the West Monroe city limits on Natchitoches road, will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

The Volunteers, who defeated Downsville last week 7 to 2, can move into the finals with another triumph today. A Downsville victory, however, would force the series to the full three games, and thus delay the opening of the title finals until October 24.

But the Vols, leaders of the league at the close of the regular schedule, are favored to make it two in a row today, and Rufus Yossett is slated to open on the mound for the West Monroe club with Maxey doing the catching. Downsville's battery will probably be Lindsey and Golden.

The Rebels, awaiting the possibility of facing the Vols in the title finals which would also go down as a playoff for the city championship of West Monroe, gained the title finals by sweeping two in a row from the Point Red Sox, champions of the amateur circuit in 1947.

Braves Dumfounded By Success Of Tribe; Rap Boudreau 'Beefing'

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Braves just couldn't understand what happened today.

As they marched disconsolately into their clubhouse after losing the fourth World Series game to Cleveland's Indians by a 2-1 count, the words heard most frequently were "I don't understand it."

They couldn't understand their failure to hit Steve Gromek effectively; they couldn't understand why big Johnny Sain had to lose a well-pitched five-hit game; they couldn't understand how Catcher Phil Masi hurt a couple of fingers so badly he may not be able to play tomorrow; and, most of all, they couldn't understand Lou Boudreau's "beef" to Umpire Bill Stewart when he was thrown out at third base in the opening inning.

That disputed play brought louder and more emphatic comments from the Boston players than any other phase of the game.

"Sure, he was out. I got a perfect throw from Al Dark and tagged him right on the left shoe as he slid in," Elliott exploded.

"I don't know what he was squawking about. He squawks on every play anyway. Why, Boudreau shouldn't even have come over. His coach was trying to hold him up.

"You don't see us squawking. They tell me that when an umpire says you're safe or out, you're safe or out."

Quiet Billy Southworth, the Braves' manager, refused to get into the argument because he couldn't see the play from the bench.

Rightfielder Tommy Holmes, who chased Boudreau's hit to the outfield wall and started the play that nipped the Cleveland manager at third, declared that Cleveland is "taking an unfair advantage of Stewart" by complaining about his decisions.

"I have known Bill Stewart a long time and he is as good as they come. He hustles all the time and he's perfectly fair. And he didn't miss that play at third base," Holmes protested. "They're just taking unfair advantage of Stewart. We never beefed at that American League umpire. We had some close decisions on balls and strikes and we didn't even turn around."

Masi, whose fingers were smashed between the ball and the bat when he was trying to bunt in the seventh inning, was not certain whether he would be able to play tomorrow. The ball struck the tips of the last two fingers on his left hand, raising a sizeable blood blister on his little finger.

"They're just numb now, but they usually hurt pretty much the next day after being hit. It's hard to say whether I will be able to play," Masi said.

Southworth, nominating Nelson Potter to start tomorrow's fifth game because "he deserves a chance to start," took time out to praise both of today's hurlers.

"Gromek had lots of stuff and good control, but Sain pitched a nice ball game too," Billy commented. "We outhit them today but couldn't get our hits when they counted. "We hit after there were two out.

"Sain gave only five hits—actually it was only four. One of those hits was when Johnny failed to cover first. I guess he was a little confused on whether to go after the ball or to cover the bag. It's a shame he had to lose such a well-pitched game."

REBELS TROUNCE COMMODORES BY 20 TO 7 MARGIN

Mississippi Packs Punch In Last Quarter To Come From Behind

OXFORD, Miss., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Outplayed in the first half and trailing by one point, the Mississippi Rebels flashed to a 20-7 last quarter victory over the Vanderbilt Commodores in a thrill-packed Southeastern Conference football game here today.

The Rebels, conference champions last year, kept their 1948 record intact with two touchdowns in the last period, one of them in the final seconds of play. Ole Miss was favored to win but the crowd of some 22,500 was almost resigned to a Vanderbilt victory when the vaunted T-formation of the Rebels began to click.

The winning Ole Miss score came after the midway point was past in the fourth quarter. Quarterback Buddy Bowen plunged over from the one-yard line after a passing-running assault that carried from the Vandy 40, Farley Salmon, and Jerry Tiblier sparked the drive. The kick was good and Ole Miss had a 13-7 lead.

In the final seconds, Vanderbilt fired a desperation pass from near its own goal and it was intercepted on the 40 by Dixie Howell, who raced through a broken field to score standing up. Again the kick was good, leaving the final score 20-7.

Vanderbilt drew first blood in the second quarter after outplaying the Rebels from the start. Right Half Joe Hicks intercepted a pass on the Rebel 42, and Fullback Herb Rich drove through the left side of the line, and raced 42 yards to a touchdown.

Jack Clinard's kick was good, and Vandy led 7-0.

Lou Boudreau Declines To Count World Series Victory As In Bag

By Fritz Howell

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Practically everyone except Manager Lou Boudreau was willing to concede today that his Cleveland Indians just about had the World Series wrapped up and tucked away.

The Tribe now holds a three-games-to-one advantage.

Boudreau stopped into his office after the fray, put his house-slippered feet on his desk, and answered a covey of questions.

The fancy-fielding Frenchman, only playing manager in the majors, said:

"Yes, I know we're out front and need only one game. But I won't admit we're in the driver's seat yet. I will say that my pitching aces (Bob Feller, Bob Lemon and Gene Bearden) are in great shape and ready to go. We'll go with Feller tomorrow. (Billy Southworth's Braves will pitch Nelson Potter).

"Wasn't Steve Gromek great out there today? It wasn't a gamble to send him in, for he has been our spot pitcher all year."

Gromek, tall blond who was an infielder-outfielder until the Tribe picked him up in 1941, tagged his seven-hit victory "the greatest thrill I've ever had."

"I was kinda nervous at the start," continued, "but I finally settled down. I concentrated on getting the ball over the plate, because those walks will kill a pitcher. The percentage always is with the pitcher if you make 'em hit the ball."

Gromek said he used a lot of high outside stuff on the right handed batters, and low inside ones on the lefties. The only run off him was a seventh-inning homer by Marv Rickert, a last-minute substitute in the series by special dispensation of Commissioner Chandler.

"Rickert hit a high fast ball," Gromek said, "but I struck him out with the same pitch in the ninth."

Boudreau and Gromek agreed that Steve's most effective pitch today was a knuckle ball curve—the only one in the business.

With Gromek listening, Boudreau said:

"They were murdering Steve last year, when he didn't have anything but a fast ball and the usual curve. During the first series at St. Louis this season I told him to start working on something new. He came up with this knuckle curve, and it's made a different man out of him."

Grinning Gromek said, "That's right Lou. I've done a lot of work on that knuckler and can control it as well as I can my fast one. It is my Sunday pitch."

Larry Doby, Negro outfielder for the Tribe, was a happy guy over his third inning homer which eventually won the game. He poled a change of pace curve deep into the crowd in right center field about 400 feet away.

"That Sain is a good pitcher," Doby observed. "Generally you don't get any fast pitches from him. I was lucky he dropped that nice slow curve in there for me."

The homer was Doby's fifth hit in 14 series at-bats, and made him the heavy hitter of the set.

Boudreau declined to comment on the play at third in the first frame. Umpire Bill Stewart, who has been mixed up in two previous scraps with the Indians, called Lou out as he slid into the sack after his double had sent Dale Mitchell home with the first run.

"It was a close play, that's about all I can say," Boudreau said.

JENNINGS' UPSET OF BOLTON BEARS TOPS 'AA' SCRAPS

Fair Park Falls Before Istrouma, And Lake Charles Beats Baton Rouge

(By Associated Press)

Jennings' 18-0 upset of Bolton in the southwest district shared the spotlight with a couple of sparkling inter-district matches Friday night on an abbreviated program of Louisiana Class AA prep football.

Lake Charles defeated Baton Rouge 14-7 and Istrouma won from Fair Park 25-14 in the inter-district games.

In the only other affairs involving double-A clubs, Holy Cross of New Orleans romped on Flaget High of Louisville, Ky., 56-7 and Nicholls of New Orleans trounced Moss Point, Miss., 31-0.

A revamped lineup, containing five new starters, helped Jennings to overpower the Alexandria team. The winners had an edge of 263 yards to 29 in rushing. A 25-yard run by Ronald Oertling, a 28-yarder by Bobby Bollich, and a pass play from Oertling to Luke Landry covering 65 yards brought the scores.

Harold Woods' 80-yard kickoff return sparked Lake Charles to its victory. Each team made one sustained scoring drive. Baton Rouge led 12 to 6 in first downs, but frequent penalties hampered the Bulldogs.

Les Landry completed 12 passes in 19 attempts for Istrouma, and his performance was about the difference between the teams. He mixed flat and straight pitches, with Marvin Taber his principal receiver.

Holy Cross was simply out of the Louisville team's class, and even the third-stringers kept running up the score. Nichols likewise had an easy time. Hal Shea starred with touchdown returns of a kickoff and punt.

Bucky Walters is the fourth pitcher to assume the role of playing manager with the Cincinnati Reds. Will White, Clark Griffith and Christy Mathewson were the others.

GROMEK MASTERS BRAVES IN FOURTH OF SERIES, 2 TO 1

Indians Can Sew Up Championship With Fourth Victory Today

By Gayle Talbot

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Steve Gromek stood the hapless Boston Braves on their collective heads today before 81,897 customers, a new series record, as the Cleveland Indians took a virtual stranglehold on the World Baseball championship with a 2-1 victory over the National Leaguers.

Steve Gromek

Gromek, right out of Manager Lou Boudreau's bottom drawer, gave the Indians a 3-1 advantage in games, putting them in a position to close out the series tomorrow behind Bob Feller. Larry Doby's third-inning homer, the first of the series, provided Gromek his margin of victory.

The only score the Braves made off the 27-year-old righthander was a well tagged home run in the seventh by Marv Rickert, the minor league outfielder who got in the playoffs at the last minute because of an injury to Jeff Heath.

Today's vast crowd, although slightly under the major league record 82,781 which saw a midseason Cleveland-Philadelphia double-header in the vast Municipal Stadium here, paid $370,775.03, also a new series mark. The old series attendance record was 74,065 set in Yankee Stadium last year, and the previous high gate was made here yesterday—$345,614.47.

The Indians today the big tobacco-chewing fellow who licked them in the Boston opener, Johnny Sain.

They clipped him for only five hits, all in the first five frames. But one of their blows was a double by Boudreau with an underling on base in the first inning, and another was a home run smash by the Negro outfielder, Larry Doby, deep over the right center field railing in the third.

That was all Gromek needed as he sneaked a weird assortment of curves and screwballs past the bewildered Bostons. In all, he gave up seven hits, but Rickert was the only Brave to see third base. Just to demonstrate that he could do it, the Cleveland chukker racked up two strikeouts in the final inning, his only ones of the game.

Rickert's round-tripper broke a string of 25 scoreless innings for the Braves, starting in the second game of the series. Gene Bearden southpawed them into a helpless state yesterday. As a matter of passing interest, Rickert's blow was exactly the 200th home run ever hit in a world series game.

Again, and for the fourth straight day, today's great crowd more or less sat on its hands. Pitching duels do not, for some reason, generate a great deal of enthusiasm, and all this series has seen is pitching of a very high caliber, indeed.

Today's throng raised its blood pressure only twice—when Doby socked the winning hit, and when Boudreau was called out at third by Umpire Bill Stewart, Cleveland's favorite villain, after delivering his timely double in the first inning.

Dale Mitchell, Tribe leftfielder, inaugurated the contest with a sharp single through the box, for which Sain didn't even bother to stoop. Doby was an infield out, and then Boudreau, handsomest of all the managers, poled a long one down the right field line.

It was a double easily, and Mitchell raced across by miles, but for some reason Lou, who also is one of the slowest pilots in the business, decided to stretch it by one sack.

Tommy Holmes whipped the ball in to Al Dark, Boston shortstop, and Al in turn relayed to Bob Elliott, who was squatting over third. Boudreau slid, Elliott planted the ball on him, and Stewart said the Cleveland leader was a casualty.

Elder Bill McKechnie, the Cleveland third base coach, who had encouraged Boudreau to stretch his luck, first blew his top. Then Boudreau stuck his chin about two inches from Stewart's nose and delivered himself of a tirade.

It finally was necessary for rotund Bill Summers, who was working the second base precinct, to trundle over and pull the two enraged Indians off the harried arbiter. From there on the record crowd missed no opportunity to vent its wrath on Stewart.

It all went back, of course, to the opening game in Boston, when Stewart ruled Phil Masi of the Braves safe on the celebrated and vital pick-off play at second base, which enabled the Boston catcher to score the game's winning run a moment later. Another close decision by Stewart at first base led to Boston's only run of the second contest.

As it happened, Stewart's call on Boudreau didn't affect the outcome today. Doby's wallop two innings later took care of that. Boudreau declined to discuss it after the game, and Elliott implied very strongly that the Indians' manager merely had been looking for a chance to kick up a ruckus. The Boston third-sacker said he put the ball on Lou good.

Boudreau naturally was jubilant after the game, but he refused to bite at a suggestion that the series was all over except for the shouting. He said that, yes, his pitching staff was in excellent shape, with Feller rested and ready for action for the fifth game. But he declined to predict a victory tomorrow.

Manager Billy Southworth of the Braves announced before the series began that he would use the veteran Nelson Potter only for relief chores,

VOLUNTEERS FACE DOWNSVILLE NINE

Little Eight Playoff Game Slated This Afternoon On Cloyd Diamond

The West Monroe Volunteers and Downsville, battling for the right to meet the West Monroe Rebels in the championship finals of the Little Eight Baseball League, meet in the second game of their semi-final series this afternoon.

The game, scheduled to be played on the Cloyd diamond, just outside the West Monroe city limits on Natchitoches road, will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

The Volunteers, who defeated Downsville last week 7 to 2, can move into the finals with another triumph today. A Downsville victory, however, would force the series to the full three games, and thus delay the opening of the title finals until October 24.

But the Vols, leaders of the league at the close of the regular schedule, are favored to make it two in a row today, and Rufus Yossett is slated to open on the mound for the West Monroe club with Maxey doing the catching. Downsville's battery will probably be Lindsey and Golden.

The Rebels, awaiting the possibility of facing the Vols in the title finals which would also go down as a play-off for the city championship of West Monroe, gained the title finals by sweeping two in a row from the Point Red Sox, champions of the amateur circuit in 1947.

Lou Boudreau Declines To Count World Series Victory As In Bag

By Fritz Howell

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Practically everyone except Manager Lou Boudreau was willing to concede today that his Cleveland Indians just about had the World Series wrapped up and tucked away.

The Tribe now holds a three-games-to-one advantage.

Boudreau stopped into his office after the fray, put his house-slippered feet on his desk, and answered a covey of questions.

The fancy-fielding Frenchman, only playing manager in the majors, said:

"Yes, I know we're out front and need only one game. But I won't admit we're in the driver's seat yet. I will say that my pitching aces (Bob Feller, Bob Lemon and Gene Bearden) are in great shape and ready to go. We'll go with Feller tomorrow. (Billy Southworth's Braves will pitch Nelson Potter).

"Wasn't Steve Gromek great out there today? It wasn't a gamble to send him in, for he has been our spot pitcher all year."

Gromek, tall blond who was an infielder-outfielder until the Tribe picked him up in 1941, tagged his seven-hit victory "the greatest thrill I've ever had."

"I was kinda nervous at the start," continued, "but I finally settled down. I concentrated on getting the ball over the plate, because those walks will kill a pitcher. The percentage always is with the pitcher if you make 'em hit the ball."

Gromek said he used a lot of high outside stuff on the right handed batters, and low inside ones on the lefties. The only run off him was a seventh-inning homer by Marv Rickert, a last-minute substitute in the series by special dispensation of Commissioner Chandler.

"Rickert hit a high fast ball," Gromek said, "but I struck him out with the same pitch in the ninth."

Boudreau and Gromek agreed that Steve's most effective pitch today was a knuckle ball curve—the only one in the business.

With Gromek listening, Boudreau said:

"They were murdering Steve last year, when he didn't have anything but a fast ball and the usual curve. During the first series at St. Louis this season I told him to start working on something new. He came up with this knuckle curve, and it's made a different man out of him."

Grinning Gromek said, "That's right Lou. I've done a lot of work on that knuckler and can control it as well as I can my fast one. It is my Sunday pitch."

Larry Doby, Negro outfielder for the Tribe, was a happy guy over his third inning homer which eventually won the game. He poled a change of pace curve deep into the crowd in right center field about 400 feet away.

"That Sain is a good pitcher," Doby observed. "Generally you don't get any fast pitches from him. I was lucky he dropped that nice slow curve in there for me."

The homer was Doby's fifth hit in 14 series at-bats, and made him the heavy hitter of the set.

Boudreau declined to comment on the play at third in the first frame. Umpire Bill Stewart, who has been mixed up in two previous scraps with the Indians, called Lou out as he slid into the sack after his double had sent Dale Mitchell home with the first run.

"It was a close play, that's about all I can say," Boudreau said.

JENNINGS' UPSET OF BOLTON BEARS TOPS 'AA' SCRAPS

Fair Park Falls Before Istrouma, And Lake Charles Beats Baton Rouge

(By Associated Press)

Jennings' 18-0 upset of Bolton in the southwest district shared the spotlight with a couple of sparkling inter-district matches Friday night on an abbreviated program of Louisiana Class AA prep football.

Lake Charles defeated Baton Rouge 14-7 and Istrouma won from Fair Park 25-14 in the inter-district games.

In the only other affairs involving double-A clubs, Holy Cross of New Orleans romped on Flaget High of Louisville, Ky., 56-7 and Nicholls of New Orleans trounced Moss Point, Miss., 31-0.

A revamped lineup, containing five new starters, helped Jennings to overpower the Alexandria team. The winners had an edge of 263 yards to 29 in rushing. A 25-yard run by Ronald Oertling, a 28-yarder by Bobby Bollich, and a pass play from Oertling to Luke Landry covering 65 yards brought the scores.

Harold Woods' 80-yard kickoff return sparked Lake Charles to its victory. Each team made one sustained scoring drive. Baton Rouge led 12 to 6 in first downs, but frequent penalties hampered the Bulldogs.

Les Landry completed 12 passes in 19 attempts for Istrouma, and his performance was about the difference between the teams. He mixed flat and straight pitches, with Marvin Taber his principal receiver.

Holy Cross was simply out of the Louisville team's class, and even the third-stringers kept running up the score. Nichols likewise had an easy time. Hal Shea starred with touchdown returns of a kickoff and punt.

Bucky Walters is the fourth pitcher to assume the role of playing manager with the Cincinnati Reds. Will White, Clark Griffith and Christy Mathewson were the others.

TULANE FUMBLES SPOIL FIRST HALF SCORING THREATS

35,000 See Greenies Stage Two Long Touchdown Drives To Triumph

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9. —(AP)— A pair of swift second-half touchdown drives gave Tulane's Green Wave a 14-0 victory here today over the lighter and outmanned South Carolina Gamecocks.

Time and again the Wave surged into Gamecock territory, then subsided to a ripple under the impact of fumbles, pass interceptions and some stout-hearted Gamecock line play.

Late in the final period Fullback Ed Price, whose fumbles had lost the ball three times, made two fine runs to set the Wave on a 59-yard touchdown march. Sub Right Half John Sikora slithered through left guard for the last 19 yards.

Euel Davis place kicked the extra points.

The Gamecocks' only serious threat came in the third period when Bishop Strickland sparked a drive to the Tulane 18, when the Wave held for downs.

Tulane led 228 yards to 40 in rushing, 102 to 59 in passing, and 14 to 6 in first downs.

Tulane had just too many people for South Carolina, and won despite a spotty and unspired performance. It was no doubt the bad game the Greenies had to give after two good efforts in beating Alabama and losing to Georgia Tech by one touchdown.

Tulane could get nowhere against the left side combination of End Roger Wilson and Tackle Bill Estes. Most Wave gains went through the middle or around the Carolina right flank.

However, Right Tackle Phil Alexander was in nearly every defensive play for Carolina.

Harold Hagan tried valiantly to keep Carolina in the game with passes, but the Tulane backs had his receivers covered most of the time and he was thrown for several big losses when he couldn't get the ball away.

Euel Davis' punting again helped Tulane along. Center Stan Kottemann and other Tulanians repeatedly got down fast under long boots to nail the Gamecock receiver.

Bobby Jones reeled off a few nice runs for Tulane, although a large number of backs shared in the ball-carrying.

Tackle Paul Lea and Guards Harold Headrick and Clemon Bounds did well defensively for Tulane.

first chance to cheer in the third period when the Rebels began to click with the fast-breaking, T-model offensive, which had carried the Rebels to victories over Florida and Kentucky.

But it was near the end of the period before a mass interception by Bob Wilson set up the Rebel's first touchdown play. Speedy Farley Salmon raced over the Vandy goal from the 33 yard marker. The kick went wide and Vandy held its 7-6 lead until Mississippi erupted late in the final period.

N. J. C. REDSKINS HAVE OPEN DATE ON SLATE BEFORE L. S. U. 'B' TILT

The Indians of Northeast Junior College, victims of a 14-2 defeat by Copiah-Lincoln in a hard fought football scramble here Friday night, rest through an open date this week before taking on the Louisiana State "B" team in their homecoming scramble here October 23.

After the L. S. U. "B" scrap, with their big brothers from the state capital in the favored role, N. J. C. follows with successive meetings with the North Texas Aggies, John McNeese, Barksdale Field, and Alabama State Teachers.

GROMEK

but he had to alter his plans after watching Sain get his lumps today.

Potter it will be, and many of the experts were inclined tonight to the belief that the former American Leaguer might give the Indians a lot of trouble. He looked very good in two innings of relief in the second game at Boston, when he gave up one hit in two innings. His choice pitch is the screwball.

Gromek, who muzzled the Braves today, spent most of the past winter in bed resting an injured knee which had threatened to end his baseball career. Little was written of him in all the thousands of pre-series words. But he was a sharp customer against the Boston team.

He granted only one walk. Bearden gave the Braves none whatsoever yesterday, so it may be seen that the National Leaguers have had to score their runs—if any—the hard way.

Rickert, with his homer and a single, and Torgeson, with his two doubles, packed practically all the Boston punch today. The only other safe ones off Gromek were a lead-off single by Eddie Stanky in the third, on which he died at second, a single by Sain with two down in the fifth, and a looping hit to left by Mike McCormick immediately after Rickert opened the seventh with his 400-foot blast into the crowd.

Sain, who allowed the Indians four hits in winning the opener from Feller, would have matched that performance exactly but for an unaccountable fielding lapse on his part when Ed Robinson, Cleveland first-baseman, slapped a roller toward right in the fifth. Torgeson fumbled the pellet momentarily, but then came up with it in plenty of time for the putout—if only Sain had been there. But the pitcher was standing a dozen feet away, merely looking on, and there was nothing much for the Braves to do except look foolish.

For a change, both chukkers received the tightest support. The left side of the Boston infield pulled itself together after two miserable days and accorded Sain the backing he deserved. Alvin Dark, the rookie shortstop, who appeared to be coming down with the shakes, made a couple of fairly brilliant plays. In the fourth, with Robinson on second, he raced far into foul territory to maul down a high pop by Gromek. He handled five other chances alertly and with dispatch.

Doby's homer kept him out in front of all the series' hitters. The Negro speedster had poled five safeties in one of the greatest pitching series in history. Robinson of the Indians and Mike McCormick and Torgeson of the Braves each had delivered four wallops. Walt Judnich, Cleveland right-fielder, still had failed to connect, and he began to look like the low man on the totem pole when Sain struck him out twice today.

THREE LOCAL GRIDDERS ARE GUESTS OF TIGERS

Three Monroe football players were the guests of the Louisiana State L-Club at last night's meeting between L. S. U. and Texas A. and M. at Baton Rouge.

Joe Love, captain of the Neville High School Tigers, and Mark Boatright and E. J. Sievers, flashy halfbacks of Ouachita Parish High School, left here yesterday morning by plane for Shreveport and motored to Baton Rouge.

The local gridders, while in Baton Rouge, were being chaperoned by Ernest "Buster" King, former Ouachita halfback now at Ouachita. They were permitted to sit on the players' bench with the Bayo Bengals during the Aggie contest and spent last night in the Bengal players' quarters. They will return to Monroe today.

STRONG PANTHERS AWAITING BENGAL SCRAMBLE FRIDAY

East Carroll Eleven Promises Locals Taste Of Offensive Power

The Neville High School Tigers expect to be stepping into fast company next Friday night when they invade Lake Providence for a meeting with the high scoring Lake Providence High School Panthers, currently rated as one of the leading contenders for the state Class B championship.

The Panthers have been mowing down all opposition with impressive scores this year, and Neville, with two Class A conference wins under their belts, will probably get a better test of their own power against the Panthers than they have had in their "A" counters.

"Lake Providence is one of the really tough teams on our schedule this season," Coach Bill Ruple of Neville said yesterday. "The Panthers rank right along with Ruston, Lafayette, and Bastrop as the most likely stumbling blocks in our path, and we'll have to really put out Friday night to stop the powerful East Carroll combination."

The Panthers polished off Mangham's Dragons, 51 to 0, Friday night while Neville was beating Jonesboro-Hodge, 31 to 0. Among other Panther triumphs this season has been the 48-0 route of Eudora, Ark., and the 39-0 beating of Winnsboro.

"The Panthers have a team with both offense and defense," Ruple pointed out. "We're just going to be forced to put more into our own offensive work and devise means of stopping the power thrusts of such Lake Providence standouts as Lloyd Clements, Jack Brown, Charle Denny, and the Hopkins brothers, George and John."

Neville's defense, led by a hard fighting line in which Billy Corser, Wayne Moore, Joe Love, H. M. Butler, J. W. Richards, David Kahn, Bob Brummell, and Jack Parker have played major roles, has measured up so far this year, but the offense apparently didn't hit its stride until the Rayville game a week ago and continued last Friday at the expense of Jonesboro-Hodge.

Offensive blocking in the line while Vernon Sanders, Sam Shepard, Jerry Brooks, Ronald Gunter, Harold Bassett, and W. T. Brown are carrying out the assignments in the backfield will go a long way toward deciding the outcome of the scrap at Lake Providence.

After Lake Providence, Neville comes home for a clash with their arch-rivals, the Ruston Bearcats in a homecoming game slated for October 22. They follow with a home battle against Farmerville on October 29 before invading Winnsboro for another conference scrap on November 5.

ODDS MOUNT IN FAVOR OF TRIBE FOR 5TH TILT

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians with Bob Feller pitching are 7 to 20 favorites to take tomorrow's World Series game. Betting Commissioner James J. Carroll posted 11 to 5 odds on the Boston Braves with either Nelson Potter or Warren Spahn on the mound.

That means that a bettor risks $20 to win $7 on the Indians, but needs only $5 to win $11 on the Braves.

Army tackles Bert Aton and Frank Barnes are from Kentucky. Aton resides in Louisville and Barnes in Hopkinsville.

Hellmueller will drive his new Maserati (Italian creation) in the Delta events.

PRO-AMATEUR GOLFERS AT BASTROP TOMORROW

BASTROP, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—The state professional golfers and many of the outstanding amateurs of Louisiana move into Bastrop Monday for the monthly Pro-Amateur tournament conducted by the Louisiana pros.

Johnny Meyers, Morehouse Country Club pro, said the list of professionals to compete here include Frank Champ, present Louisiana Open champion; Collins Gaines, now unattached but formerly of McGuire Club of West Monroe; C. J. Shirah, pro at Municipal Club, Monroe; and Jack Joiner, the ex-Ruston pro now in charge at McGuire.

Myers said the event is open to all amateurs desiring to compete, and is open to the public as spectators.

FLORIDA WINS 1ST S. E. C. FOOTBALL TILT SINCE '45

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Florida fought to its first Southeastern Conference football victory since 1945 by outlasting Auburn 16-9 here tonight.

A capacity Phillips Field crowd of 18,000 saw Florida drive to two touchdowns early in the first and third quarters for its hard-fought win.

The victory gave the Gators a one win, one loss record in conference competition this season. Auburn, making its first conference start, was pushed to the bottom of the 12-team league by the loss.

Shifty Little Hal Griffin scored the first Florida touchdown on an 18-yard run in the opening quarter. His bigger partner Chunk Hunsinger, tallied in the third on a 23-yard dash through a whole swarm of Auburn players.

Both clubs got safeties. Auburn blocked a Florida punt and Auburn's Star Passer, Travis Tidwell, was downed in his end zone.

Vince DiMaggio led the National League in strikng out during six seasons.

TALLULAH WILL FEATURE AUTO RACES AT FAIR

Dirt Track Speedsters Will Run At Delta Event Next Sunday

TALLULAH, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—One of the first drivers to mail in his signed entry blank for the national dirt track championship auto races at the Louisiana Delta Fair in Tallulah on October 17 was Bert Hellmueller, Louisville, Ky. Hellmueller has entered his brand-new 600 cubic-inch Maserati (Italian creation) number 49.

The seven-time southern dirt champion stated that he would be ready and eager to take on all comers in the championship contest and that his car would be in top shape for the day's events.

The Louisville speedway star was an expert pilot before the war and during the conflict was a fighter pilot with the Army Air Forces. He has a total of fourteen Jerry planes to his credit and was shot down twice, being forced to bail out over France. Bert's twin trips to earth failed to amount to as much as a single scratch.

An expert mechanical engineer on aircraft motors, of which the Maserati motor is very similar, it is only natural that Bert would have an airplane type motor in his racing creation. He has the know-how to produce the speeds from this type of power plant, and this, coupled with his driving skill allows him to ride well up in front with the high money winners.

The lanky racing flash has enjoyed more than just a Lion's share of the purses so far this season and ranks very high in point standings for the national title. During recent races in Iowa, Kansas, and Okla., he has hit the money bracket on every occasion.

Jim Gilfoil, secretary of the Louisiana Delta Fair, was quoted as saying that the races this year would be one of the speediest in the south due to the many new faces appearing on race courses.

Kings of the speedways from almost every section of the nation will first chance to cheer in the third period when the Rebels began to click with the fast-breaking, T-model offensive, which had carried the Rebels to victories over Florida and Kentucky.

But it was near the end of the period before a mass interception by Bob Wilson set up the Rebel's first touchdown play. Speedy Farley Salmon raced over the Vandy goal from the 33 yard marker. The kick went wide and Vandy held its 7-6 lead until Mississippi erupted late in the final period.

Vanderbilt missed a chance to regain the lead when Herb Rich took a punt on his own twelve and set off for pay dirt, but was forced out of bounds, on the Mississippi 37.

The race for the individual ground gaining championship in the National Football League should be one of the best in years. Steve Van Buren, defending champion, hampered by injuries, is meeting stern competition from Tony Canadeo, Green Bay; John Clement, Pittsburgh; his teammate, Bosh Pritchard; Walt Schlinkman, Green Bay; Charley Trippi, Cards; Jim Castiglia, Washington, and a number of others.

N. J. C. REDSKINS HAVE OPEN DATE ON SLATE BEFORE L. S. U. 'B' TILT

The Indians of Northeast Junior College, victims of a 14-2 defeat by Copiah-Lincoln in a hard fought football scramble here Friday night, rest through an open date this week before taking on the Louisiana State "B" team in their homecoming scramble here October 23.

"We haven't had a setup yet," Coach James L. Malone commented yesterday, "and the rest of the schedule looks just as rugged."

After the L. S. U. "B" scrap, with their big brothers from the state capital in the favored role, N. J. C. follows with successive meetings with the North Texas Aggies, John McNeese, Barksdale Field, and Alabama State Teachers.

but he had to alter his plans after watching Sain get his lumps today.

Potter it will be, and many of the experts were inclined tonight to the belief that the former American Leaguer might give the Indians a lot of trouble. He looked very good in two innings of relief in the second game at Boston, when he gave up one hit in two innings. His choice pitch is the screwball.

Gromek, who muzzled the Braves today, spent most of the past winter in bed resting an injured knee which had threatened to end his baseball career. Little was written of him in all the thousands of pre-series words. But he was a sharp customer against the Boston team.

He granted only one walk. Bearden gave the Braves none whatsoever yesterday, so it may be seen that the National Leaguers have had to score their runs—if any—the hard way.

Rickert, with his homer and a single, and Torgeson, with his two doubles, packed practically all the Boston punch today. The only other safe ones off Gromek were a lead-off single by Eddie Stanky in the third, on which he died at second, a single by Sain with two down in the fifth, and a looping hit to left by Mike McCormick immediately after Rickert opened the seventh with his 400-foot blast into the crowd.

Sain, who allowed the Indians four hits in winning the opener from Feller, would have matched that performance exactly but for an unaccountable fielding lapse on his part when Ed Robinson, Cleveland first-baseman, slapped a roller toward right in the fifth. Torgeson fumbled the pellet momentarily, but then came up with it in plenty of time for the putout—if only Sain had been there. But the pitcher was standing a dozen feet away, merely looking on, and there was nothing much for the Braves to do except look foolish.

For a change, both chukkers received the tightest support. The left side of the Boston infield pulled itself together after two miserable days and accorded Sain the backing he deserved. Alvin Dark, the rookie shortstop, who appeared to be coming down with the shakes, made a couple of fairly brilliant plays. In the fourth, with Robinson on second, he raced far into foul territory to maul down a high pop by Gromek. He handled five other chances alertly and with dispatch.

Doby's homer kept him out in front of all the series' hitters. The Negro speedster had poled five safeties in one of the greatest pitching series in history. Robinson of the Indians and Mike McCormick and Torgeson of the Braves each had delivered four wallops. Walt Judnich, Cleveland right-fielder, still had failed to connect, and he began to look like the low man on the totem pole when Sain struck him out twice today.

THREE LOCAL GRIDDERS ARE GUESTS OF TIGERS

Three Monroe football players were the guests of the Louisiana State L-Club at last night's meeting between L. S. U. and Texas A. and M. at Baton Rouge.

Joe Love, captain of the Neville High School Tigers, and Mark Boatright and E. J. Sievers, flashy halfbacks of Ouachita Parish High School, left here yesterday morning by plane for Shreveport and motored to Baton Rouge.

The local gridders, while in Baton Rouge, were being chaperoned by Ernest "Buster" King, former Ouachita halfback now at Ouachita. They were permitted to sit on the players' bench with the Bayo Bengals during the Aggie contest and spent last night in the Bengal players' quarters. They will return to Monroe today.

STRONG PANTHERS AWAITING BENGAL SCRAMBLE FRIDAY

East Carroll Eleven Promises Locals Taste Of Offensive Power

The Neville High School Tigers expect to be stepping into fast company next Friday night when they invade Lake Providence for a meeting with the high scoring Lake Providence High School Panthers, currently rated as one of the leading contenders for the state Class B championship.

The Panthers have been mowing down all opposition with impressive scores this year, and Neville, with two Class A conference wins under their belts, will probably get a better test of their own power against the Panthers than they have had in their "A" counters.

"Lake Providence is one of the really tough teams on our schedule this season," Coach Bill Ruple of Neville said yesterday. "The Panthers rank right along with Ruston, Lafayette, and Bastrop as the most likely stumbling blocks in our path, and we'll have to really put out Friday night to stop the powerful East Carroll combination."

The Panthers polished off Mangham's Dragons, 51 to 0, Friday night while Neville was beating Jonesboro-Hodge, 31 to 0. Among other Panther triumphs this season has been the 48-0 route of Eudora, Ark., and the 39-0 beating of Winnsboro.

"The Panthers have a team with both offense and defense," Ruple pointed out. "We're just going to be forced to put more into our own offensive work and devise means of stopping the power thrusts of such Lake Providence standouts as Lloyd Clements, Jack Brown, Charle Denny, and the Hopkins brothers, George and John."

Neville's defense, led by a hard fighting line in which Billy Corser, Wayne Moore, Joe Love, H. M. Butler, J. W. Richards, David Kahn, Bob Brummell, and Jack Parker have played major roles, has measured up so far this year, but the offense apparently didn't hit its stride until the Rayville game a week ago and continued last Friday at the expense of Jonesboro-Hodge.

Offensive blocking in the line while Vernon Sanders, Sam Shepard, Jerry Brooks, Ronald Gunter, Harold Bassett, and W. T. Brown are carrying out the assignments in the backfield will go a long way toward deciding the outcome of the scrap at Lake Providence.

After Lake Providence, Neville comes home for a clash with their arch-rivals, the Ruston Bearcats in a homecoming game slated for October 22. They follow with a home battle against Farmerville on October 29 before invading Winnsboro for another conference scrap on November 5.

ODDS MOUNT IN FAVOR OF TRIBE FOR 5TH TILT

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians with Bob Feller pitching are 7 to 20 favorites to take tomorrow's World Series game. Betting Commissioner James J. Carroll posted 11 to 5 odds on the Boston Braves with either Nelson Potter or Warren Spahn on the mound.

That means that a bettor risks $20 to win $7 on the Indians, but needs only $5 to win $11 on the Braves.

Army tackles Bert Aton and Frank Barnes are from Kentucky. Aton resides in Louisville and Barnes in Hopkinsville.

PRO-AMATEUR GOLFERS AT BASTROP TOMORROW

BASTROP, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—The state professional golfers and many of the outstanding amateurs of Louisiana move into Bastrop Monday for the monthly Pro-Amateur tournament conducted by the Louisiana pros.

Johnny Meyers, Morehouse Country Club pro, said the list of professionals to compete here include Frank Champ, present Louisiana Open champion; Collins Gaines, now unattached but formerly of McGuire Club of West Monroe; C. J. Shirah, pro at Municipal Club, Monroe; and Jack Joiner, the ex-Ruston pro now in charge at McGuire.

Myers said the event is open to all amateurs desiring to compete, and is open to the public as spectators.

FLORIDA WINS 1ST S. E. C. FOOTBALL TILT SINCE '45

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Florida fought to its first Southeastern Conference football victory since 1945 by outlasting Auburn 16-9 here tonight.

A capacity Phillips Field crowd of 18,000 saw Florida drive to two touchdowns early in the first and third quarters for its hard-fought win.

The victory gave the Gators a one win, one loss record in conference competition this season. Auburn, making its first conference start, was pushed to the bottom of the 12-team league by the loss.

Shifty Little Hal Griffin scored the first Florida touchdown on an 18-yard run in the opening quarter. His bigger partner Chunk Hunsinger, tallied in the third on a 23-yard dash through a whole swarm of Auburn players.

Both clubs got safeties. Auburn blocked a Florida punt and Auburn's Star Passer, Travis Tidwell, was downed in his end zone.

Vince DiMaggio led the National League in strikng out during six seasons.

Dirt Track Speedsters Will Run At Delta Event Next Sunday

TALLULAH, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—One of the first drivers to mail in his signed entry blank for the national dirt track championship auto races at the Louisiana Delta Fair in Tallulah on October 17 was Bert Hellmueller, Louisville, Ky. Hellmueller has entered his brand-new 600 cubic-inch Maserati (Italian creation) number 43.

The seven-time southern dirt champion stated that he would be ready and eager to take on all comers in the championship contest and that his car would be in top shape for the day's events.

The Louisville speedway star was an expert pilot before the war and during the conflict was a fighter pilot with the Army Air Forces. He has a total of fourteen Jerry planes to his credit and was shot down twice, being forced to bail out over France. Bert's twin trips to earth failed to amount to as much as a single scratch.

An expert mechanical engineer on aircraft motors, of which the Maserati motor is very similar, it is only natural that Bert would have an airplane type motor in his racing creation. He has the know-how to produce the speeds from this type of power plant, and this, coupled with his driving skill allows him to ride well up in front with the high money winners.

The lanky racing flash has enjoyed more than just a Lion's share of the purses so far this season and ranks very high in point standings for the national title. During recent races in Iowa, Kansas, and Okla., he has hit the money bracket on every occasion.

Jim Gilfoil, secretary of the Louisiana Delta Fair, was quoted as saying that the races this year would be one of the speediest in the south due to the many new faces appearing on race courses.

L. S. U. SQUEEZES PAST TEXAS AGGIES, 14-13

A. AND M. HANDS BAYOU BENGALS HARDY SKIRMISH

Tigers' Pass Interceptions Stop Threats Of Ags' To Take Game

By Warren Rogers Jr.

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 9. —(AP)— Louisiana State squirmed past a surprisingly tough Texas A. and M. football team tonight, 14-13, but not before the Aggies flashed a hard-running attack headed by Bobby Goof and Bob Goode.

The estimated crowd of 35,000 who witnessed L. S. U.'s first home game was kept on edge by the Texans' sustained drives. The slim one-point margin looked hardly enough in the closing minutes as the Aggies' Jim Cashion filled the air with passes.

The Tigers' inability to get anything like a sustained drive going kept them in hot water most of the time. Only the superb punting of Harrel Rip Collins saved them from serious danger. In the last period however, a blocked Collins boot—the fourth or fifth in the eight years he's been playing—put A and M deep in Tiger territory. A recovered fumble and a 56-yard punt took them out of the hole.

Ken Konz took off like a scared Jack rabbit on the freak play that proved the clinched. After the ball squirted from Van Buren's arms in the second it bounced around in the Aggie back field. Konz got three first, took it on the run and left the whole ...ondary grasping thin air.

Texas A. and M. struck first and last, with the Tiger scores sandwiched in between. Both Aggie tallies came on sustained drives that started around middlefield in the first and third periods. It was Goff and Goode

MICHIGAN PUTS CRUSHER ON BOILERMAKERS, 40-0

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Michigan smashed Purdue 40 to 0 today for the Wolverines' first victory in defense of its Western Conference championship.

The Wolverines smashed the lines, ran the ends and passed to pile up the imposing score. The Boilermakers threatened but once, in the second period, when they drove 82 yards and then failed to score from the one foot line.

STEWART SAYS PLAY 'WASN'T EVEN CLOSE'

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9. —(AP)— Umpire Bill Stewart declared after the game today that the play "wasn't even close" when he called Manager Lou Boudreau out at third and drew a lusty booing from the big pro-Cleveland crowd at the fourth World Series game.

"Ask Elliott about the play" was Stewart's first words on reaching the dressing room.

"Sure he was out. I got a perfect throw from Al Dark and tagged him right on the left shoe as he slid in."

Boudreau's version was:

"As I ran towards second base I looked up and saw the balll hitting the right field fence and that Tommy Holmes was after it. After passing second I looked at Bill (Coach McKechnie) and he had his hands up. (a signal to hold up at second). But it was too late."

Boudreau's hit scored Dale Mitchell with the first run of the game.

The close play was a result of a perfect relay. Holmes to Alvin Dark to Elliott, after Boudreau doubled down the right field line.

Seven big events will feature the afternoon of action packed, thrill-streaked motor madness opening with the time trials at 2 p. m. and the first of six races to follow this at 3 p. m.

Gilfoil announced that the Racing Corporation of America would present the races. The R. C. A. is headed by John A. Sloan who will personally direct the coming speed-duels. Dominating the world of speed since it was founded in 1905, the R. C. A. is the largest race promotional body in the country.

Races will carry the official sanction, and will be run under the rules and regulations of the International Motor Contest Association which is the major sanctioning body for all auto races west of the Mississippi river. With the official sanction of the I. M. C. A. fans can be assured of only the highest type of speed contests.

Gilfoil also stated that no effort would be spared to provide fans with the best races ever run on a half-mile track. Track experts will have the course in it's fastest condition and with the many new faces rising over the horizon, speed records are expected to be shattered.

IRISH MAKE RUN OF 21 STRAIGHT GRID TRIUMPHS

Spartans Score First, But South Benders Power Way Through

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Notre Dame put on another victory march today 26-7—against a tough Michigan State team.

A crowd of 58,126 saw the Irish score in every period on parades of power that went 70, 96, 80 and 20 yards. Notre Dame thus ran its remarkable record to 21 games in a row without a loss.

Michigan State landed the first punch in the opening quarter. Horace Smith set up the opportunity when he intercepted a pass on the Irish 21. Lynn Chandnois went around his left end to the six, and Leroy Crane crashed over for a touchdown. Smith kicked the extra point.

Notre Dame rallied and drove 70 yards on running and passing plays. Frank Tripucka tossed four yards to Leon Hart for the score.

Notre Dame, from that point on, made efficient use of its bigger and better line. The Irish put on a 96-yard attack that put them out in front. The drive was sparked by a 32-yard dash by Gill Gay. Mike Swistowicz scurried the final 12 yards for the decisive score.

The Irish put together 80 yards through the Spartan line and off the end and tackles to score for the third time. Terry Brennan made the touchdown on a one yard plunge.

The last trip to the goal was short and quick. Bill Gay snagged George Guerre's pass on the Michigan State 35 and brought it to the Sparton 20. Brennan went through for six yards. Then Emil Sitko bulled his way for 14 yards to a touchdown.

MAJOR UPSETS

score of 20 to 14. Doak Walker, all-America back for S. M. U., counted both of S. M. U.'s touchdowns but the Mustang's bowed to a rugged ground attack.

Two clubs representing tiny upstate New York schools, Canisius and St. Bonaventure, stepped into the big time and did very well. Canisius dunked Fordham, one-time Rose Bowl contender, and St. Bonaventure, coached by Hugh Devore, who tutored Notre Dame during the war years, drew with Boston College, always in the market for a bowl bid.

Minnesota's early handling of Northwestern was a shocker. Once the Wildcats, now the No. 1 contender for the Rose Bowl trip from the midwest, switched to the air the Gophers were done.

In games that had a semblance of form, Southern California held off Rice, 7 to 0, although the Texas Frogs got inside the Trojan five-yard line three times in the final minutes; Kansas belted Iowa State, 20 to 7; Penn punished Princeton 29 to 7, and Duke finally found a scoring punch with Navy the victim, 28 to 7.

North Carolina proved it wasn't a one-man team as four players scored against a rugged Wake Forest outfit, 28 to 6. However, the famed Charles Justice did register once.

The equally famed Clyde Scott also counted once but that wasn't enough as Arkansas was dumped by Baylor 23 to 7. Scott sat out the second and third periods after taking a blow in the stomach during the first.

Georgia Tech, another of the nation's unbeaten clubs, crushed Washington and Lee, 27 to 0, with Halfback Bob McCoy leading the offense. In an all-southern conference affair, Georgia uncovered a new fullback in Johnny Tillitski and bopped Kentucky 35 to 12.

California became the first coast team to score against a Big Nine team and polished off up-and-down Wisconsin, 40 to 14. It was 40 to 0 with three minutes to go. Tennessee also found a new punch and smeared Chattanooga 26 to 0.

Only six seniors are listed on the University of Alabama's 46-man football squad. Twenty-six are sophomores and 14 are juniors.

CURTIS WILL BATTLE THOMAS IN 'GRUDGE MATCH' TUESDAY

Light-Heavy Champ After Revenge For 'Knucks Incident' Last Week

Jack Curtis and George Thomas, paired to fight it out to settle a squabble that developed in a tag team match here last week, are carded for the main event on Tuesday night's wrestling card at Gus Kallio's Arena.

The Curtis-Thomas meeting developed after ring officials discovered some "homemade knucks" in the alley outside Thomas' dressing room window following the tag team victory by Thomas and "Flash" Clifford over Curtis and Jack Carter last Tuesday.

It was charged that the knucks had proved the deciding factor in the outcome with Thomas, standing outside the ropes, supposed to have slugged Curtis with the weapon, knocking him out and making him an easy pin victim for Clifford in the deciding fall of the match.

The referee didn't see the flash of the knucks as Thomas swung on Curtis, but a police officer did and it was chiefly on the word of the officer that ring officials made a search of Thomas' dressing room and later found the improvised adhesive tape and metal weapon in the alley just outside his window.

Curtis, claiming the blow was the "hardest I've ever felt," immediately asked for a settlement with Thomas.

Referee Pat Cronin, upon discovering the knucks, immediately claimed possession of the weapon and then ordered the purses for the tag team affair held up by Promoter Kallio.

"I'm holding on to the knucks in order to support my order in holding the purses in the event the district or state commissioners question my actions," Cronin declared.

District Commissioner Dave Silverstein has already backed Cronin in his decision, and added that the match next Tuesday would be on a "winner-take-all" basis if Curtis desired.

Kallio pointed out, however, that since the end of the purses for Clifford and Carter are also affected, that the outcome of Tuesday's match determines how much they get for last week's work. The winner Tuesday gets the full share for that night's work, and the share of the purse held over from last Tuesday will be decided between Clifford and Carter, according to whether Curtis or Thomas is the winner. A win for Curtis would mean a bigger share of last week's take for Carter, while Thomas could get the winner's cut for Clifford by stopping Curtis in their non-title scramble.

"If we go Texas style," declared Thomas, a product of Marshall, Tex., "I'll take Curtis on a winner-take-all basis, and I'll show your Monroe fans that I'm the toughest they have ever seen. Curtis claims he wants me bad. Well, he can have me, but I don't promise he will like it.

Curtis only comment was: "I want that man in the ring alone with me where there won't be anyone else to interfere except the referee."

Promotr Kallio said that Pat Cronin would again officiate.

The semi-final attraction will pit Carter, claimant to the New Zealand championship, against Henry Harrell, the roughhouse battler from Memphis, Tenn.

The Harrell-Carter scrap will open the night's card at 8 o'clock and travel over an hour time limit distance with two falls to win.

The Curtis-Thomas main event will have a 90-minute time limit, also two falls to win.

NORTHWESTERN AERIALS CATCH MINNESOTA, 19-16

Undefeated Wildcats Come From Behind 16-0 Count To Beat Gophers

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 9. —(AP)—Northwestern's undefeated Wildcats, roaring back from a 16-0 deficit in the first nine minutes of play, passed over Minnesota's brawny line for a 19-16 triumph today.

They played before a capacity crowd of 47,000 in Dyche Stadium.

The victory was Northwestern's third consecutive and its second Big Nine triumph. The defeat was Minnesota's first after non-conference wins over Washington and Nebraska.

All of the scoring was concentrated in the first half.

Minnesota hammered across a safety and two touchtowns for a 16-0 lead before the careless Wildcats realized they had a tough assignment against the hulking Gopher line.

But the Wildcats rallied courageously for a touchdown late in the first period, and two more in the second.

When Northwestern's heralded running attack ran into serious trouble, quarterback Burson took to the air effectively. His sharpshooting sparked a 73-yard march for Northwestern's first touchdown. This came on a one-yard sprint around end by Frank Aschenbrenner.

In the second period, Burson rifled a 26-yard pay-off pass to End Charles Hagmann. A few minutes later he sewed up the game with a nine-yard touchdown shot to Tom Worthington.

Thereafter the Wildcats waged a terrific defensive battle to protect their slim lead.

The Gophers started as though they were geared to hand the Wildcats a sound trimming. Harry Elliott, a fine punter for Minnesota all day, dumped a kick on Northwestern's one yard line almost before the crowd was seated. Two plays later Worthington fell on a Northwestern fumble in the end zone for a safety.

Elliott, a few minutes later, booted one out of bounds on Northwestern's ten. Aschenbrenner fumbled on a punt try, and the Gophers took over on the Northwestern eight. Ev Faunce whipped a touchdown pass to Dale Warner and Minnesota led, 9-0.

The second Minnesota touchdown followed a fumble by Aschenbrenner which the Gophers recovered on Northwestern's 27. Three plays later Ken Beiersdorf battered across for a touchdown.

NORTH CAROLINA BEATS WAKE FOREST, 28 TO 6

WAKE FOREST, N. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Unbeaten North Carolina whipped Wake Forest, 28-6, today for its third straight victory as the Tar Heels rolled to a pair of touchdowns in the first quarter and added two more in the final period.

Four backs had a hand in the Tar Heel scoring, flashy Tailback Charlie Justice and a tremendous fullback, Hosea Rodgers, were joined in the point making by Sub Backs Bob Kennedy and Billy Maceyko.

The victory, only the third in the last eight games against the Deacons, extended North Carolina's two-year string to 10 straight.

CADETS' POWER TOO STRONG FOR ILLINOIS ELEVEN

Army Steamrollers Through Rallying Illini For 26-21 Triumph

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 9. —(AP)—Army's brute force, generated by a two-unit substitution system, ground out four long touchdown drives today as the unbeaten Cadets defeated a rallying Illinois team 26-21 before a sell-out throng of 71,119.

The great Army outfit, rolling to its third straight triumph, scored in every quarter but the last and piled up a 26-0 margin before the Illini caught fire in the third period.

Illinois was pitifully outmanned and completely overwhelmed until Bernie Krueger finally began making his passes count. But by that time it was too late.

Here's how Army scored:

1. Bobby Stuart smashed 14 yards in the first 3 1/2 minutes of action to cap a 33 yard push.

2. Stuart romped 58 yards before Jack Pierce tackled him from behind on the Illinois 12. In two more plays, Gil Stephenson rammed over.

3. Winfield Scott streaked 71 yards to the Illinois 7 before Trackman Pierce pushed him out of bounds. Karl Kuckhahn jarred across.

4. Army marched 80 yards in 15 plays, Galiffa topping it off with a one yard smash.

Midway in the third period, Illinois scored after Lyle Button recovered Galiffa's fumble on the Army 33. Krueger hit Kersulis for 10 and 18 yards before going over himself.

Pierce ran back a punt 42 yards to set up Illinois second marker in the final quarter. Paul Patterson knifed over from the one. Ten minutes later Krueger made three passes cover 46 yards. The payoff was Krueger's 16 yard toss to Kersulis.

DUKE FINDS WAY PAST NAVY, 28-7

Blue Devils Finally Find Scoring Punch For First Grid Triumph

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Duke found the scoring punch it has been looking for all season and rolled over Navy, 28-7, today for its first football victory.

The spark that set the Blue Devils off to victory after ties in their first two games from the heels of a pair of speedsters who kept the Middies in confusion most of the day.

Fred Folger, Jr., the old reliable of the Duke backfield for the past two seasons, pulled the crowd of 25,000 to its feet when the game was less than two minutes old by intercepting a pass and dashing 50 yards to set up Duke's first score. Paul Stephanz rammed the ball over from the five.

In the third period, Sophomore Billy Cox faked a punt that completely fooled the Middies and sped 61 yards to a touchdown.

After Navy stopped another Duke thrust in the same quarter, End Bill Duncan blocked a punt by Bill Earl in the end zone and fell on it for Duke's third score.

The Middies marched back with the ensuing kickoff for their lone touchdown on a 65-yard drive. Bill Hawkins zooned over from one yard out.

Duke retaliated by starting a drive of 80 yards from the kickoff that paid off in the fourth period. Jack Friedlund covered the final 20 yards on a reverse.

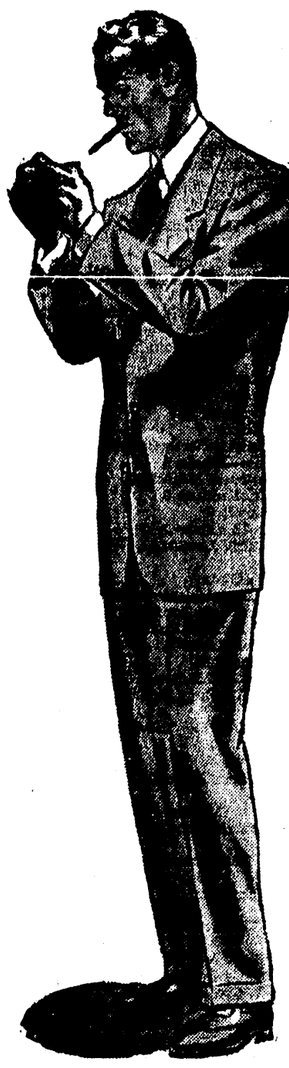

Eastern intercollegiate football official Len Dobbins (Fordham) demonstrates this season's changes in hand signals. (1) Clipping. (2) Roughing the kicker. (3) Ineligible receiver down field on forward pass. (4) Official marker to indicate point of infraction, erroneously called a handkerchief. (5) Illegal use of hands and arms on offense, or any other form of unnecessary roughness, an expression that has been dropped from the code. All of the signs indicate major violations calling for 15-yard penalties.

L. S. U. SQUEEZES PAST TEXAS AGGIES, 14-13

A. AND M. HANDS BAYOU BENGALS HARDY SKIRMISH

By Warren Rogers Jr.

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 9. —(AP)— Louisiana State squirmed past a surprisingly tough Texas A. and M. football team tonight, 14-13, but not before the Aggies flashed a hard-running attack headed by Bobby Goof and Bob Goode.

The estimated crowd of 35,000 who witnessed L. S. U.'s first home game was kept on edge by the Texans' sustained drives. The slim one-point margin looked hardly enough in the closing minutes as the Aggies' Jim Cashion filled the air with passes.

The Tigers' inability to get anything like a sustained drive going kept them in hot water most of the time. Only the superb punting of Harrel Rip Collins saved them from serious danger. In the last period however, a blocked Collins boot—the fourth or fifth in the eight years he's been playing—put A and M deep in Tiger territory. A recovered fumble and a 36-yard punt took them out of the hole.

Ken Konz took off like a scared Jack rabbit on the freak play that proved the clinched. After the ball squirted from Van Buren's arms in the second it bounced around in the Aggie back field. Konz got three first, took it on the run and left the whole ...ondary grasping thin air.

Texas A. and M. struck first and last, with the Tiger scores sandwiched in between. Both Aggie tallies came on sustained drives that started around middlefield in the first and third periods. It was Goff and Goode

MICHIGAN PUTS CRUSHER ON BOILERMAKERS, 40-0

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Michigan smashed Purdue 40 to 0 today for the Wolverines' first victory in defense of its Western Conference championship.

The Wolverines smashed the lines, ran the ends and passed to pile up the imposing score. The Boilermakers threatened but once, in the second period, when they drove 82 yards and then failed to score from the one foot line.

STEWART SAYS PLAY 'WASN'T EVEN CLOSE'

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9. —(AP)— Umpire Bill Stewart declared after the game today that the play "wasn't even close" when he called Manager Lou Boudreau out at third and drew a lusty booing from the big pro-Cleveland crowd at the fourth World Series game.

"Ask Elliott about the play" was Stewart's first words on reaching the dressing room.

"Sure he was out. I got a perfect throw from Al Dark and tagged him right on the left shoe as he slid in."

Boudreau's version was:

"As I ran towards second base I looked up and saw the balll hitting the right field fence and that Tommy Holmes was after it. After passing second I looked at Bill (Coach McKechnie) and he had his hands up. (a signal to hold up at second). But it was too late."

Boudreau's hit scored Dale Mitchell with the first run of the game.

The close play was a result of a perfect relay, Holmes to Alvin Dark to Elliott, after Boudreau doubled down the right field line.

Spartans Score First, But South Benders Power Way Through

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Notre Dame put on another victory march today 26-7—against a tough Michigan State team.

A crowd of 58,126 saw the Irish score in every period on parades of power that went 70, 96, 80 and 20 yards. Notre Dame thus ran its remarkable record to 21 games in a row without a loss.

Michigan State landed the first punch in the opening quarter. Horace Smith set up the opportunity when he intercepted a pass on the Irish 21. Lynn Chandnois went around his left end to the six, and Leroy Crane crashed over for a touchdown. Smith kicked the extra point.

Notre Dame rallied and drove 70 yards on running and passing plays. Frank Tripucka tossed four yards to Leon Hart for the score.

Notre Dame, from that point on, made efficient use of its bigger and better line. The Irish put on a 96-yard attack that put them out in front. The drive was sparked by a 32-yard dash by Gill Gay. Mike Swistowicz scurried the final 12 yards for the decisive score.

The Irish put together 80 yards through the Spartan line and off the end and tackles to score for the third time. Terry Brennan made the touchdown on a one yard plunge.

The last trip to the goal was short and quick. Bill Gay snagged George Guerre's pass on the Michigan State 35 and brought it to the Sparton 20. Brennan went through for six yards. Then Emil Sitko bulled his way for 14 yards to a touchdown.

score of 20 to 14. Doak Walker, all-America back for S. M. U., counted both of S. M. U.'s touchdowns but the Mustang's bowed to a rugged ground attack.

Two clubs representing tiny upstate New York schools, Canisius and St. Bonaventure, stepped into the big time and did very well. Canisius dunked Fordham, one-time Rose Bowl contender, and St. Bonaventure, coached by Hugh Devore, who tutored Notre Dame during the war years, drew with Boston College, always in the market for a bowl bid.

Minnesota's early handling of Northwestern was a shocker. Once the Wildcats, now the No. 1 contender for the Rose Bowl trip from the midwest, switched to the air the Gophers were done.

In games that had a semblance of form, Southern California held off Rice, 7 to 0, although the Texas Frogs got inside the Trojan five-yard line three times in the final minutes; Kansas belted Iowa State, 20 to 7; Penn punished Princeton 29 to 7, and Duke finally found a scoring punch with Navy the victim, 28 to 7.

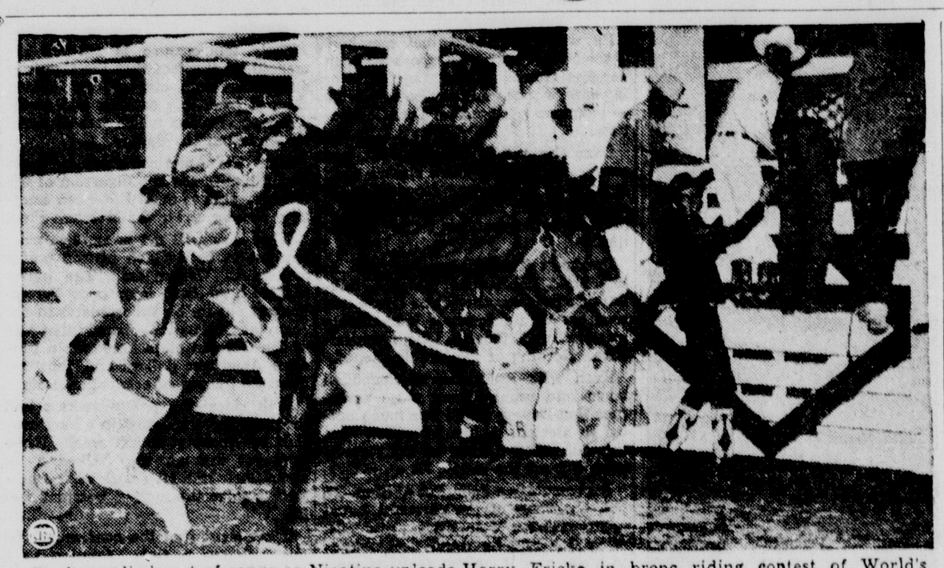

North Carolina proved it wasn't a one-man team as four players scored against a rugged Wake Forest outfit, 28 to 6. However, the famed Charles Justice did register once.

The equally famed Clyde Scott also counted once but that wasn't enough as Arkansas was dumped by Baylor 23 to 7. Scott sat out the second and third periods after taking a blow in the stomach during the first.

Georgia Tech, another of the nation's unbeaten clubs, crushed Washington and Lee, 27 to 0, with Halfback Bob McCoy leading the offense. In an all-southern conference affair, Georgia uncovered a new fullback in Johnny Tillitski and bopped Kentucky 35 to 12.

California became the first coast team to score against a Big Nine team and polished off up-and-down Wisconsin, 40 to 14. It was 40 to 0 with three minutes to go. Tennessee also found a new punch and smeared Chattanooga 26 to 0.

Only six seniors are listed on the University of Alabama's 46-man football squad. Twenty-six are sophomores and 14 are juniors.

CURTIS WILL BATTLE THOMAS IN 'GRUDGE MATCH' TUESDAY

Light-Heavy Champ After Revenge For 'Knucks Incident' Last Week

Jack Curtis and George Thomas, paired to fight it out to settle a squabble that developed in a tag team match here last week, are carded for the main event on Tuesday night's wrestling card at Gus Kallio's Arena.

The Curtis-Thomas meeting developed after ring officials discovered some "homemade knucks" in the alley outside Thomas' dressing room window following the tag team victory by Thomas and "Flash" Clifford over Curtis and Jack Carter last Tuesday.

It was charged that the knucks had proved the deciding factor in the outcome with Thomas, standing outside the ropes, supposed to have slugged Curtis with the weapon, knocking him out and making him an easy pin victim for Clifford in the deciding fall of the match.

The referee didn't see the flash of the knucks as Thomas swung on Curtis, but a police officer did and it was chiefly on the word of the officer that ring officials made a search of Thomas' dressing room and later found the improvised adhesive tape and metal weapon in the alley just outside his window.

Curtis, claiming the blow was the "hardest I've ever felt," immediately asked for a settlement with Thomas.

Referee Pat Cronin, upon discovering the knucks, immediately claimed possession of the weapon and then ordered the purses for the tag team affair held up by Promoter Kallio.

"I'm holding on to the knucks in order to support my order in holding the purses in the event the district or state commissioners question my actions," Cronin declared.

District Commissioner Dave Silverstein has already backed Cronin in his decision, and added that the match next Tuesday would be on a "winner-take-all" basis if Curtis desired.

Kallio pointed out, however, that since the end of the purses for Clifford and Carter are also affected, that the outcome of Tuesday's match determines how much they get for last week's work. The winner Tuesday gets the full share for that night's work, and the share of the purse held over from last Tuesday will be decided between Clifford and Carter, according to whether Curtis or Thomas is the winner. A win for Curtis would mean a bigger share of last week's take for Carter, while Thomas could get the winner's cut for Clifford by stopping Curtis in their non-title scramble.

"If we go Texas style," declared Thomas, a product of Marshall, Tex., "I'll take Curtis on a winner-take-all basis, and I'll show your Monroe fans that I'm the toughest they have ever seen. Curtis claims he wants me bad. Well, he can have me, but I don't promise he will like it.

Curtis only comment was: "I want that man in the ring alone with me where there won't be anyone else to interfere except the referee."

IN HOLLYWOOD

By Erskine Johnson
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Jimmy Stewart will keep his P-51 Mustang plane and enter it in next year's Bendix air race. Joe De Bona, who flew the plane for Jimmy this year, ran out of gas only 25 miles from the finish line in Cleveland . . . Spencer Tracy is headed for a check-up at the Mayo Clinic . . . Warner Brothers just hired a gal named Ginger Gray, changed her name to Nita Talbot and are holding her as a threat to Lauren Bacall in case Mrs. Bogie becomes too difficult to handle.

John Garfield is considering "Adam and the Atom" as his next picture. The story was written by band leader Charley Barnett. . . It was Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan again, holding hands under the table at the Sportsmen's Lodge.

Sporting Eh?

Mimic Arthur Blake already has a writer working on a satire of the new radio series that Mrs. Roosevelt and her daughter, Anna Boettinger, will bring to the air. He has Mrs. R's approval too.

Steve Allen says the Hollywood economy wave is so serious that Atwater Kent is serving caviar hash at his parties.

Anne "Mom" Lehr is calling on friends in the film industry to save her famous Hollywood Guild. Lease on the building is running out and no other structure has been found to continue the program of help to needy vets and recreation for the wounded.

Aside to Miss Turner and Garbo: Canning companies are glamorizing their products with movie star name labels. A new sliced pineapple is on the market under the label of "Lana," and a fancy new dog food is being sold under the name of "Greta."

Eddie Green's 15-month-old daughter will be screen tested at M-G-M. He's the waiter on Duffy's Tavern . . . Richard Crane's daughter, Susan, will make her film debut in the Barbara Stanwyck picture, "Gambling Lady." Mrs. Crane is Kay Morley, the actress.

Looking Ahead In Washington

Even if Governor Dewey is elected in November(there is no assurance that all will run smoothly in his relations with congress after the initial honeymoon period is over.

He will likely find that members of the house and senate who have been hanging around Washington for 15 or 20 years or more will not be as pliable as members of the New York legislature.

Over the years, the president and congress have had more clashes than periods of simon-pure cooperation. It seems to make little difference who is president or what his party affiliation.

President Truman took an oath in 1945 amid predictions that the relationship between the White House and congress would improve immediately because of Truman's senate experience. Nothing of the like developed.

Even with a Republican-controlled house and senate, there is no assurance that Dewey would fare much better if elected. Already, there are signs of independence on the Republican side of the aisle.

Representative John Taber (Rep., N. Y.), chairman of the powerful house appropriations committee, said the other day that he would feel obliged to make cuts if budget requests were "loaded with fat."

Taber is considered a good bit more conservative than his home-state governor. Being a man with a mind of his own, he may not always go along with a White House request, as he clearly indicated.

Earlier in the campaign—during the special session of congress, Senator Chapman Revercomb (Rep., W. Va.), refused to accede to Dewey's request to amend the displaced persons act.

Revercomb is listed among the conservative-isolationist members of the Republican congress. If re-elected he may differ with Dewey if he gets into the White House.

The fact is that the less conservative, anti-isolationist elements in the Republican party, represented by Dewey and the New Englanders, seem destined to have run-ins with the ultra-conservatives with isolationist tendencies.

Perhaps if the two wings of the party did see eye to eye on everything, it would be too much to expect of a government that normally sees its executive and legislative branches in conflict.

American cotton textile manufacturers are concerned over the import of German-made textiles manufactured under U. S. Army supervision.

Seven million yards of the German cloth is ready to offer to New York buyers—an amount which would substantially increase the present amount of textile imports.

American manufacturers are worried about the price. They say privately that the price of the German cloth is set so low that it is difficult for them to compete.

Their temperature is further increased by the fact that the Germans made the cloth out of raw cotton shipped from this country and under Army supervision which was financed by American tax dollars.

What the American manufacturers would like to see is a diversion of the German cloth to other European countries coming under the Marshall Plan.

What they will get is another matter, yet to be decided by top policy makers in Washington. The policy makers here listen intently to the argument put up by subordinates in the Army of Occupation—namely that sale of the German cloth here would produce American dollars and thus reduce the burden of occupation costs.

Both sides—the policy makers and the manufacturers—met in a long conflab in Washington last week. When they got through they talked a lot about their mutual desire to "cooperate" to solve the matter, but that was all.

It appeared that the conference did not produce a final solution to a ticklish problem that is sure to arise time and again as the occupied nations of Japan and Germany begin to recover and offer their products for American sale.

Democrats in the District of Columbia are taking the party's financial plight seriously. So threadbare is the party's treasury that the other day the party dressed up one of its workers in a costume garb with a donkey head and sent him out on the street with sandwich signs fore and aft proclaiming "it takes 1,000 Democratic contributors at $1 each to equal just one Republican contributor. Give your dollars to keep America safe from big business."

The diligent "donkey" passed out fund-appealing literature to all passersby at the busy intersection of New York and Pennsylvania Avenues, just one block from the White House.

The appeal probably didn't turn up many dollars in direct contributions, but it may have served as a pointed reminder to thousands of officeholders that they'd better contribute to the Democratic cause if they hope to have jobs after November. There's nothing in the Hatch Act which would prevent them from contributing to the party under whose administration they have worked for years.

A. AND M.

all the way, with a few Cashion passes mixed in.

L. S. U.'s first quarter touchdown was on a pass from Quarterback Charlie Pevey to Al Heroman who went over upright. Just before halftime, Evert Van Buren hit the line hard but fumbled. Speedy Ken Konz picked up the ball and scampered 36 yards to score. Carroll Griffith place kicked both L. S. U. extra points.

Herb Turley of A. and M. place kicked the Aggies' lone extra point. The one he missed was costly and was his first failure in seven tries this year.

The Aggies' threatening pass attack fizzled in the final period when two heaves were intercepted.

Charlie Pevey's ball handling from the Bengal T-attack was reminiscent of Y. A. Tittle's operations there last season. His feinting was quick and deceptive. But for the hard-charging Aggie line, his passing may have shown to more effect, too.

The first Aggie drive went from midfield, starting with a recovered fumble. The other march traveled 56 yards, again beginning with a fumble recovery, and was sparked by the machine-like wedges plowed open by the Aggie line.

Looks Like His Job Is Permanent

Wes Reardon: In 76 years, he "sort of" got the habit.

By NEA Service

GRANITEVILLE, S. C.—(NEA)—James Wesley Reardon is 87, and he's in a rut. He's been working for the same company for 76 years now, and he can't shake loose.

"When you have worked for 76 years," he says, "you have sort of gotten the habit."

Most other people switch around a bit in their jobs, or get itchy feet and move someplace else. And then they retire. Not Wes Reardon. The Graniteville cotton mill can't get him to stop, and they've dubbed him the "grand old man of Horse Creek Valley" because they're convinced he's set some kind of record.

Wes doesn't agree with them. It's just that he'd "feel lost without something to do," he says.

He started as a "tack boy" in the mill founded by William Gregg, who is called the father of the textile industry in the south. Since then he's had a variety of responsible jobs, including plant supervisor. For many years he was paymaster for the company and worked in the shipping department at the same time.

Wes started from as near scratch as any man.

"Sure," he says, "I went to school to learn reading, writing and 'rithmetic. A fellow can learn anything after he learns to read and write, but he needs a little help on 'rithmetic."

After he decided his job with the mill looked permanent, Wes Reardon thought he'd better do something about his Sundays. He became a Sunday School teacher at St. John's Methodist Church and joined the choir. That was sort of recent—only 70 years ago.

Wes Reardon's portrait hangs in the office of the mill company president, along with the portraits of the six former presidents of the company including William Gregg.

All the others are dead or retired. Except Reardon. He got the habit of working, and he can't stop.

The bureau figured that only around 2,000,000 of the 95,000,000 would be disqualified from voting for lack of American citizenship.

An uncounted number of others will be ineligible because of non-registration, non-payment of poll taxes, lack of residence qualifications—and confinement in penitentiaries, mental hospitals or "kindred institutions." Legal residents in Washington, D. C., also have no vote.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Stocks: Steady, price changes small. Bonds: Narrow, specialties improve. Cotton: Mixed, quiet dealings.

CHICAGO—Wheat: Firm, Italy buys flour. Corn: Easy; cash price lower. Oats: Mixed; little trade. Cattle: Nominally steady. Hogs: Nominally steady.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The stock market found a steady price footing today after a wobbly start.

Trading was unusually slow even for a Saturday session. Several large blocks of stock changed hands but most of the time the ticker tape loafed. Many issues failed to open at all.

Turnover for the two hour day was in the neighborhood of 200,000 shares, which would compare with 320,000 a week ago.

Corporate bonds moved narrowly. The U. S. government over-the-counter market was shut down for the week end.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 9. —(AP)— Wheat showed an underlying firm tone in a grain market which otherwise slipped a little lower today. Mills bought a little wheat and it was announced that six cargoes of 80 per cent extraction flour were sold to Italy overnight. Trade was rather light in all pits.

Wheat closed 1/8 lower to 3/4 higher, December $2.25 1/8, corn was 1/4-3/4 lower, December $1.42 1/8-$1.42, oats were 3/8 lower to 1/8 higher, December .74 3/4, and soybeans were 3 1/2-4 3/4 lower, November $2.47-$2.46 1/4.

The first great mechanical advance in farming was the evolution of the plow from the hoe.

SATIRA WELCOMED HOME BY FATHER

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Patricia (Satira) Schmidt, exotic dancer pardoned after serving a year and a half in jail for slaying her lover in Havana harbor, was back home today to "rest and recuperate."

"Oh, Daddy, Daddy! I'm so glad to be home—so glad!" She told her father, John Schmidt, a druggist, as she arrived here by plane last night.

She was granted a pardon by Cuban President Ramon Grau San Martin in the fatal shooting of John Lester Mee, Chicago naval veteran, aboard the victim's yacht. A judge had sentenced her to 15 years.

"All I want to do for a while is just rest and recuperate," she told reporters. She said she had scarcely slept since Sept. 30 when she learned she was to be freed.

Still wearing her hair coiled high on her head, the dancer declared she had been offered a "number of contracts," but had no immediate plans.

"I only pray that some day I might be able to help others as I have been helped and I say that sincerely," she added.

IN HOLLYWOOD

By Erskine Johnson
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Jimmy Stewart will keep his P-51 Mustang plane and enter it in next year's Bendix air race. Joe De Bona, who flew the plane for Jimmy this year, ran out of gas only 25 miles from the finish line in Cleveland . . . Spencer Tracy is headed for a check-up at the Mayo Clinic . . . Warner Brothers just hired a gal named Ginger Gray, changed her name to Nita Talbot and are holding her as a threat to Lauren Bacall in case Mrs. Bogie becomes too difficult to handle.

John Garfield is considering "Adam and the Atom" as his next picture. The story was written by band leader Charley Barnett. . . It was Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan again, holding hands under the table at the Sportsmen's Lodge.

Sporting Eh?

Mimic Arthur Blake already has a writer working on a satire of the new radio series that Mrs. Roosevelt and her daughter, Anna Boettinger, will bring to the air. He has Mrs. R's approval too.

Steve Allen says the Hollywood economy wave is so serious that Atwater Kent is serving caviar hash at his parties.

Anne "Mom" Lehr is calling on friends in the film industry to save her famous Hollywood Guild. Lease on the building is running out and no other structure has been found to continue the program of help to needy vets and recreation for the wounded.

Aside to Miss Turner and Garbo: Canning companies are glamorizing their products with movie star name labels. A new sliced pineapple is on the market under the label of "Lana," and a fancy new dog food is being sold under the name of "Greta."

Eddie Green's 15-month-old daughter will be screen tested at M-G-M. He's the waiter on Duffy's Tavern . . . Richard Crane's daughter, Susan, will make her film debut in the Barbara Stanwyck picture, 'Gambling Lady." Mrs. Crane is Kay Morley, the actress.

Looking Ahead In Washington

Even if Governor Dewey is elected in November(there is no assurance that all will run smoothly in his relations with congress after the initial honeymoon period is over.

He will likely find that members of the house and senate who have been hanging around Washington for 15 or 20 years or more will not be as pliable as members of the New York legislature.

Over the years, the president and congress have had more clashes than periods of simon-pure cooperation. It seems to make little difference who is president or what his party affiliation.

President Truman took an oath in 1945 amid predictions that the relationship between the White House and congress would improve immediately because of Truman's senate experience. Nothing of the like developed.

Even with a Republican-controlled house and senate, there is no assurance that Dewey would fare much better if elected. Already, there are signs of independence on the Republican side of the aisle.

Representative John Taber (Rep., N. Y.), chairman of the powerful house appropriations committee, said the other day that he would feel obliged to make cuts if budget requests were "loaded with fat."

Taber is considered a good bit more conservative than his home-state governor. Being a man with a mind of his own, he may not always go along with a White House request, as he clearly indicated.

Earlier in the campaign—during the special session of congress, Senator Chapman Revercomb (Rep., W. Va.), refused to accede to Dewey's request to amend the displaced persons act.

Revercomb is listed among the conservative-isolationist members of the Republican congress. If re-elected he may differ with Dewey if he gets into the White House.

The fact is that the less conservative, anti-isolationist elements in the Republican party, represented by Dewey and the New Englanders, seem destined to have run-ins with the ultra-conservatives with isolationist tendencies.

Perhaps if the two wings of the party did see eye to eye on everything, it would be too much to expect of a government that normally sees its executive and legislative branches in conflict.

American cotton textile manufacturers are concerned over the import of German-made textiles manufactured under U. S. Army supervision.

Seven million yards of the German cloth is ready to offer to New York buyers—an amount which would substantially increase the present amount of textile imports.

American manufacturers are worried about the price. They say privately that the price of the German cloth is set so low that it is difficult for them to compete.

Their temperature is further increased by the fact that the Germans made the cloth out of raw cotton shipped from this country and under Army supervision which was financed by American tax dollars.

What the American manufacturers would like to see is a diversion of the German cloth to other European countries coming under the Marshall Plan.

What they will get is another matter, yet to be decided by top policy makers in Washington. The policy makers here listen intently to the argument put up by subordinates in the Army of Occupation—namely that sale of the German cloth here would produce American dollars and thus reduce the burden of occupation costs.

Both sides—the policy makers and the manufacturers—met in a long conflab in Washington last week. When they got through they talked a lot about their mutual desire to "cooperate" to solve the matter, but that was all.

It appeared that the conference did not produce a final solution to a ticklish problem that is sure to arise time and again as the occupied nations of Japan and Germany begin to recover and offer their products for American sale.

Democrats in the District of Columbia are taking the party's financial plight seriously. So threadbare is the party's treasury that the other day the party dressed up one of its workers in a costume garb with a donkey head and sent him out on the street with sandwich signs fore and aft proclaiming "it takes 1,000 Democratic contributors at $1 each to equal just one Republican contributor. Give your dollars to keep America safe from big business."

The diligent "donkey" passed out fund-appealing literature to all passersby at the busy intersection of New York and Pennsylvania Avenues, just one block from the White House.

The appeal probably didn't turn up many dollars in direct contributions, but it may have served as a pointed reminder to thousands of officeholders that they'd better contribute to the Democratic cause if they hope to have jobs after November. There's nothing in the Hatch Act which would prevent them from contributing to the party under whose administration they have worked for years.

A. AND M.

all the way, with a few Cashion passes mixed in.

L. S. U.'s first quarter touchdown was on a pass from Quarterback Charlie Pevey to Al Heroman who went over upright. Just before halftime, Evert Van Buren hit the line hard but fumbled. Speedy Ken Konz picked up the ball and scampered 36 yards to score. Carroll Griffith place kicked both L. S. U. extra points.

Herb Turley of A. and M. place kicked the Aggies' lone extra point. The one he missed was costly and was his first failure in seven tries this year.

The Aggies' threatening pass attack fizzled in the final period when two heaves were intercepted.

Charlie Pevey's ball handling from the Bengal T-attack was reminiscent of Y. A. Tittle's operations there last season. His feinting was quick and deceptive. But for the hard-charging Aggie line, his passing may have shown to more effect, too.

The first Aggie drive went from midfield, starting with a recovered fumble. The other march traveled 56 yards, again beginning with a fumble recovery, and was sparked by the machine-like wedges plowed open by the Aggie line.

Looks Like His Job Is Permanent

Wes Reardon: In 76 years, he "sort of" got the habit.

By NEA Service

GRANITEVILLE, S. C.—(NEA)—James Wesley Reardon is 87, and he's in a rut. He's been working for the same company for 76 years now, and he can't shake loose.

"When you have worked for 76 years," he says, "you have sort of gotten the habit."

Most other people switch around a bit in their jobs, or get itchy feet and move someplace else. And then they retire. Not Wes Reardon. The Graniteville cotton mill can't get him to stop, and they've dubbed him the "grand old man of Horse Creek Valley" because they're convinced he's set some kind of record.

Wes doesn't agree with them. It's just that he'd "feel lost without something to do," he says.

He started as a "tack boy" in the mill founded by William Gregg, who is called the father of the textile industry in the south. Since then he's had a variety of responsible jobs, including plant supervisor. For many years he was paymaster for the company and worked in the shipping department at the same time.

Wes started from as near scratch as any man.

"Sure," he says, "I went to school to learn reading, writing and 'rithmetic. A fellow can learn anything after he learns to read and write, but he needs a little help on 'rithmetic."

After he decided his job with the mill looked permanent, Wes Reardon thought he'd better do something about his Sundays. He became a Sunday School teacher at St. John's Methodist Church and joined the choir. That was sort of recent—only 70 years ago.

Wes Reardon's portrait hangs in the office of the mill company president, along with the portraits of the six former presidents of the company including William Gregg.

All the others are dead or retired. Except Reardon. He got the habit of working, and he can't stop.

MARKETS TO CLOSE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Major security markets in this country will be closed next Tuesday in observance of Columbus Day. The closing include the big markets in New York. Several livestock exchanges will function as usual and markets will remain open in Canada and London.

The bureau figured that only around 2,000,000 of the 95,000,000 would be disqualified from voting for lack of American citizenship.

An uncounted number of others will be ineligible because of non-registration, non-payment of poll taxes, lack of residence qualifications—and confinement in penitentiaries, mental hospitals or "kindred institutions." Legal residents in Washington, D. C., also have no vote.

Akeley told the educators he was dismissed because a new college administration objected to what it termed the Akeleys' "ultra-liberalism."

Also introduced were Dr. George Parker, who was dismissed as professor of philosophy at Evansville, (Ind.) college after he presided over a Henry Wallace meeting; and Eleanor R. Dushane, Buffalo, N. Y., high school teacher discharged in a dispute over a proposed speech by Columnist Max Lerner.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Stocks: Steady, price changes small. Bonds: Narrow, specialties improve. Cotton: Mixed, quiet dealings.

CHICAGO—Wheat: Firm, Italy buys flour. Corn: Easy; cash price lower. Oats: Mixed; little trade. Cattle: Nominally steady. Hogs: Nominally steady.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The stock market found a steady price footing today after a wobbly start.

Trading was unusually slow even for a Saturday session. Several large blocks of stock changed hands but most of the time the ticker tape loafed. Many issues failed to open at all.

Turnover for the two hour day was in the neighborhood of 200,000 shares, which would compare with 320,000 a week ago.

Corporate bonds moved narrowly. The U. S. government over-the-counter market was shut down for the week end.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 9. —(AP)— Wheat showed an underlying firm tone in a grain market which otherwise slipped a little lower today. Mills bought a little wheat and it was announced that six cargoes of 80 per cent extraction flour were sold to Italy overnight. Trade was rather light in all pits.

Wheat closed 1/8 lower to 3/4 higher, December $2.25 1/8, corn was 1/4-3/4 lower, December $1.42 1/8-$1.42, oats were 3/8 lower to 1/8 higher, December .74 3/4, and soybeans were 3 1/2-4 3/4 lower, November $2.47-$2.46 1/4.

The first great mechanical advance in farming was the evolution of the plow from the hoe.

SATIRA WELCOMED HOME BY FATHER

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Patricia (Satira) Schmidt, exotic dancer pardoned after serving a year and a half in jail for slaying her lover in Havana harbor, was back home today to "rest and recuperate."

"Oh, Daddy, Daddy! I'm so glad to be home—so glad!" She told her father, John Schmidt, a druggist, as she arrived here by plane last night.

She was granted a pardon by Cuban President Ramon Grau San Martin in the fatal shooting of John Lester Mee, Chicago naval veteran, aboard the victim's yacht. A judge had sentenced her to 15 years.

"All I want to do for a while is just rest and recuperate," she told reporters. She said she had scarcely slept since Sept. 30 when she learned she was to be freed.

Still wearing her hair coiled high on her head, the dancer declared she had been offered a "number of contracts," but had no immediate plans.

"I only pray that some day I might be able to help others as I have been helped and I say that sincerely," she added.

Board's Attorneys Move To Get Construction Industry Under Taft-Hartley Law

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Attorneys for the national labor relations board today announced legal action aimed at applying the Taft-Hartley act to the construction industry.

The moves came in a case involving secondary boycott charges against the Denver Building and Construction Council (A. F. L.).

Federal District Judge J. Foster Symes at Denver had refused to grant N. L. R. B. General Counsel Robert N. Denham an injunction against a strike by A. F. L. pipefitters of a soda fountain installation job in a Denver suburb.

Denham's office said the strike was called by the Trades Council to force the soda fountain owner, H. T. Quigley, to cease doing business with the manufacturer of the soda fountain equipment manufacturer, the Grauman Company. The Grauman firm is non-union.

Judge Symes ruled that the dispute did not affect interstate commerce as Denham contended.

Because of the court ruling an N. L. R. B. trial examiner, Howard Myers, dismissed the secondary boycott charges against the council.

In today's actions Denham's office appealed the court decision to the 10th U. S. circuit court of appeals and asked the N. L. R. B. to reverse Examiner Myers' dismissal, reinstating the charges against the council.

At the root of the case is the question of how far the Taft-Hartley act goes in applying to disputes having a minimum affect on interstate commerce. The Grauman firm sold $100,000 worth of soda fountain fixtures outside Colorado in 1947 and purchased $100,000 worth of materials from outside the state. However, there was no contention Quigley was engaged in interstate commerce.

There has been some disagreement, too, between Denham and the N. L. R. B. itself on how far the Taft-Hartley act should be applied. The board has said it desired only to handle cases with a rather substantial effect on interstate commerce to prevent a flood of small cases to Washington. Denham has disagreed with this position.

RUDOLPH GANZ

RUDOLPH GANZ GUEST ARTIST

Noted Pianist, Composer, Conductor Will Appear Here October 22

Music lovers of the Twin Cities are looking forward with great interest to the visit of Rudolph Ganz, famed pianist, conductor and composer. Mr. Ganz is to appear in recital on Friday, October 22, at 8:15 p. m. in the Northeast Junior College auditorium. Admission will be $1.50 for adults and 75c for students, and tickets may be obtained at Hewitt-Dew Music Company.

Sponsored by the Musical Coterie, Mr. Ganz's visit will include a master class on Saturday, October 23, at 9:30 a. m. at the local college. The Musical Coterie is urging piano students in this area to take advantage of this unusual opportunity to receive individual attention and advice from so renowned a pianist as Mr. Ganz. For those desiring to attend the master class as auditors, not to perform but merely to listen and observe, there will be a fee of $3.00.

Ganz, Swiss-born American, who is just as simple and natural as his appearance and manners indicate, made his first public appearance as a cellist at the age of 12. At 17, he was for the first time presented as pianist, but his real professional debut followed only in December 1899, after intensive study with Busoni, when playing three concertos in one evening with the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra.

In September 1900, Ganz began his glamorous career in the U. S., glamorous because for 45 years he has never moved out of the limelight. He became head of the piano department of Chicago Musical College in 1900 and barring some interruptions, has ever been associated with this institution of which today he is president. He has made tours and has played with practically all major symphonic organizations and is known world wide.

Part of the reputation earned with the younger generation, stems from popularity acquired in his capacity as conductor of the Young People's concerts in different parts of the U. S. This activity has become one of his major activities in the last six years, for in 1939 he assumed the post of permanent conductor of concerts with the New York Philharmonic and with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra. As successor of his late friend, Ernest Schelling, he at once sought new vistas of presenting music to the children, old and modern.

His genial manner at once assured him cordial reception by the parents and children alike, so that other cities like Pittsburgh and Chicago felt that he was a "natural" for conducting similar series. As an educator he is regarded as entitled to his enviable position with all age groups.

Only six years after the first commercial oil well was drilled in 1859, oil men developed and placed in operation the first oil pipeline. It was of wood construction, five miles long, and had a capacity of 800 barrels daily. Today, modern steel pipelines, totaling 150,000 miles, carry 13 per cent of all freight moved in the United States.

OUACHITA FAIR GREAT SUCCESS

Management States That Public Support Enabled Favorable Outcome

Before the official opening hour of the Ouachita Valley Fair on Saturday, the school children had already begun to arrive, and by noon, they were swarming. All of the carnival attractions, with reduced fares for school children were being liberally patronized, and the more popular ones, like the merry-go-round, tilt-a-whirl, flying scooter, etc., were carrying capacity loads, and the enjoyment of the youngsters was evidenced by squeals of delight, and the closing day will no doubt reveal when a check-up is possible, to be the biggest day of the fair.

As the various carnival shows were taken down at midnight, and the doors of the buildings closed, the 1948 Ouachita Valley Fair became a memory, which to a large number of the younger generation will prove one that will not be soon forgotten. The liberality of the fair association in giving everything free to those two very worthy institutitions in our midst, the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home, and the Louisiana Training Institute, following with a special school children's day on Saturday, made it possible for a great many children otherwise to do so, and for this generous gesture alone, the public at large should be grateful.

The incessant labors of the good men and women, who, with the interests of the community at heart, deserve their mead of praise, and the cooperation that the association has received at the hands of the press and radio, made a substantial contribution to the success of the fair, as well as the civic clubs and paid for advertising. To all of these, we should all say thank you, and we hope that with the coming of another year, what you have done this year will make it possible for us to give you a still bigger and better fair.

The management is pleased to announce that financially, the fair was a satisfactory success, mainly due to the fact that no salaries were paid to any of the officials, and the expenses as a whole were held to the lowest possible minimum.

Lists of names of winners in the contests in the various categories will be published as soon as the figures are available for compilation.

Did you read that speech by Assistant Secretary of State Charles E. Saltzman at the University of New Hampshire in which he employed the language of shirt-sleeve diplomacy in dealing with Russia?

If you didn't read it you missed an important development. Saltzman declared that "the eyes of the American people should now be fully opened." He said the real aim of the Russians "is world domination through the instrumentality of communism," and that "they will stoop to any stratagem of coercion, subterfuge, duplicity or double dealing that serves their purpose."

He maintained that the aims and methods of the Soviet rulers "are a direct threat to the national security of the United States." The United States seeks peace with Russia, and the state department will proceed "on the assumption that it is possible" to avoid war, although it "may not be possible."

John Hightower, A. P. diplomatic expert, cites this speech as one evidence that the United States appears to be casting aside the last restraint in its propaganda war with Russia. He also points out that Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett has revealed the receipt of orders from Paris (where the United Nations meeting is being held) to "debunk" the latest Russian proposal for dealing with atomic energy. These orders, says Hightower, presumably were given by Secretary of State Marshall himself.

Meantime General Marshall was making a two-fisted speech before the American Club of Paris. He said bluntly that the Russian blockade of Berlin "is a threat to the peace of the world if there ever was one short of shooting cannon."

So the kid gloves finally are off. Well, that's all to the good because, strange though it seem, there are many well-meaning folk in the United States and in the other democracies, who don't yet realize that the Bolshevists are out to destroy our way of life and substitute communism. In order to achieve this they will resort to any methods, as witness this quotation from the sayings of Lenin himself, repeated by Marshal Stalin:

"A Communist must be prepared to make every sacrifice and, if necessary, even resort to all sorts of schemes and stratagems, employ illegitimate methods, conceal the truth, in order to get into the trade unions, stay there, and conduct the revolutionary work within * * *." "We say that our morality is entirely subordinated to the interest of the class struggle of the proletariat."

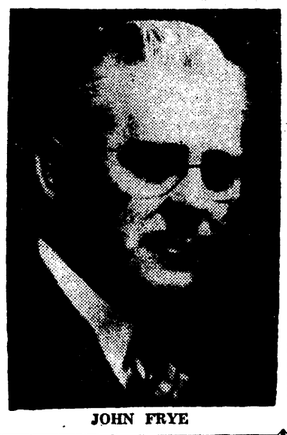

Every day this creed is typified by Communist activities in all countries. For example, the French Communists have given warning that they will oppose France's war effort in event of conflict with Russia. Said the party's political bureau:

"The French people will never wage war against the Soviet Union."

There we have the old, old story: A Communist, no matter what his birth-right, is a citizen of Red Russia. His orders come from the Kremlin. This is just as true of the United States as it is, say, of France or Italy. The difference is that in those European states communism is more powerful and they lie within the forward areas of the cold war.

So a debunking policy would be rendering a vast service to democracy. An ounce of debunking now may be worth a ton of high explosive later on.

Noah Cross, Of Concordia, Does Not Discuss Charges Of Irregularities

FERRIDAY, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—Former Sheriff Noah W. Cross, of Concordia parish, said he had "no comment" to make on a Louisiana state auditor's report accusing him of irregularities during his term of office. When asked about the accusations, the former sheriff said: "I have nothing to say at the present time."

And neither did the attorney general's office in Baton Rouge, except for a remark by a spokesman who declared the office had not had time to study the report.

The report "has not gone through the mill yet," the spokesman said.

In it, former Sheriff Cross, who was defeated by Hartwell Love in January is accused of: (1) Selling a five-year-old Buick for $1. (2) Selling a six-month-old Chevrolet for $400. (3) Paying an $848 repair fee out of public funds for work on a private automobile, wrecked by a private individual. (4) Increasing deputies' salaries and hiring new personnel after he was defeated for re-election. The charges were made with Gov. Earl K. Long September 3.

The dollar automobile, the report said, was "equivalent to giving it away." The tenant who got the car was McAdee Harris Cross told the auditors. The Chevrolet was sold to J. D. Powers on March 12, and ex-Sheriff Cross was quoted by the audit as saying me made the deal to enable him to have an automobile to drive for personal reasons after going out of the sheriff's office.

On May 29, the report continued, a check in the amount of $848.49 was issued to the Ferriday Body and Radiator Works in payment for repairs to a new car purchased March 10.

CLERGYMEN, LIQUOR QUESTION ARGUED

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Do alcoholic beverages, like beer and whisky, have a bad effect on church members if used by clergymen?

That question popped up—very briefly—at the 16th biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church in America.

A few pros and cons swapped verbal blows yesterday but meal-time halted the discussion. It never reached the floor again.

Attorney Edward Rinderkneck of Toledo, Ohio, told the delegates he liked a glass of beer "in hot weather" and sometimes sipped the brew with ministers.

Dr. P. D. Brown, Salisbury, N. C., said the church should make a "strong" statement on the drinking (alcoholic, that is) problem.

P. George Grover, Arlington, Va., took no stand on the issue. He urged, however, that the topic be dropped.

Discussion started, incidentally, over a recommendation asking church members "to give consideration to the effects of their own use of alcoholic beverages, even in moderation, in their own lives and on those less disciplined than themselves."

It ended where it started—buried in a maze of resolutions.

The boy's mother is dead and his father, a locomotive fireman, was last heard from at Aklen, Calif. It is considered probable the boy intended going to his father. His grandmother, who is grief-stricken at his disappearance, described him as a good boy.

CLERGYMEN, LIQUOR QUESTION ARGUED

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Do alcoholic beverages, like beer and whisky, have a bad effect on church members if used by clergymen?

That question popped up—very briefly—at the 16th biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church in America.

A few pros and cons swapped verbal blows yesterday but meal-time halted the discussion. It never reached the floor again.

Attorney Edward Rinderkneck of Toledo, Ohio, told the delegates he liked a glass of beer "in hot weather" and sometimes sipped the brew with ministers.

Dr. P. D. Brown, Salisbury, N. C., said the church should make a "strong" statement on the drinking (alcoholic, that is) problem.

P. George Grover, Arlington, Va., took no stand on the issue. He urged, however, that the topic be dropped.

Discussion started, incidentally, over a recommendation asking church members "to give consideration to the effects of their own use of alcoholic beverages, even in moderation, in their own lives and on those less disciplined than themselves."

It ended where it started—buried in a maze of resolutions.

COMPLETELY FURRED

The polar bear is one of the most completely fur-clad animals in the world, with fur even on the soles of his feet. He cannot afford to slip on sloping icy ledges.

BOY DISAPPEARS

Shown above is Johnnie Ray Patton, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Patton of Clarks, who has been missing since September 6. The boy left home on that date on a borrowed bicycle, which was found four weeks later near a railroad water tank at Grayson, and the boy is believed to have caught a freight train. The boy's mother is dead and his father, a locomotive fireman, was last heard from at Aklen, Calif. It is considered probable the boy intended going to his father. His grandmother, who is grief-stricken at his disappearance, described him as a good boy.

CHILD IS LOST IN WYOMING MOUNTAINS

SUNDANCE, Wyo., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Three-year-old Mickey O'Connor was lost today in the heavily-wooded Bear Lodge country of the Black Hills today.

The boy was wearing only a shirt and overalls when he disappeared yesterday afternoon from a ranch between Alba and Aladdin in Crook county. The temperature dropped to 20 degrees above zero, 12 below freezing last night.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Joe O'Connor, notified Sheriff William Blakeman last night after she had to give up in her efforts to find him. The father was reported working in Washington state.

About 100 searchers tramped the brush in the hills near Divide through the night without success.

Russia consumes 500,000 frankfurters a day.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS ARE STUDIED BY 'WELCOME BRANCH'

"International Relations" was the subject of study when members of the Welcome Branch Book Club met in the home of Mrs. R. H. Dollar, with Mrs. A. C. Polk, co-hostess, last Wednesday.

This subject was discussed by Mrs. A. R. Doughty, when she reviewed "My Africa." The author, Mbonu Ojike, son of a local Nigerian statesman, who had ten wives, made his career by refusing to adhere to the traditions of the small village where he was born. Instead he broke away by going to mission school, and by refusing to marry. He later taught in a local high school."

"In 1939 Ojike came to the United States and earned a B. S. degree at Ohio State University, and a master's degree in education at the University of Chicago," she pointed out.

"The first part of his book, "My Africa," is autobiography, while the second part is a clear picture of Africa, her background, culture, customs, and people," it was stated.

Mrs. F. W. Dawson, read portions of an address delivered by Secretary Marshall at the national convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Portland, Ore.

The following delegates and alternates were elected to attend the state convention of Federated Clubs which will be held in Monroe November 11, 12 and 13: Mrs. F. H. Peterson, Mrs. Morris Miller, Mrs. F. E. Black. Alternates, Mrs. E. A. Porter, Mrs. J. D. Petty and Mrs. W. H. Giles.

Members present were: Mrs. Dean Selig, Mrs. J. W. Schonlau, Mrs. A. J. Speer, Mrs. C. S. Swain, Mrs. W. B. Wheelis, Mrs. J. R. White, Mrs. Cyril Yancey, Mrs. F. E. Black, Mrs. Henson Coon, Mrs. J. N. Dawson, Mrs. Morris Miller, Mrs. Harry Moore, Mrs. Leola Nixon, Mrs. J. D. Petty, Mrs. F. H. Peterson and Mrs. A. C. Polk.

Guest, Mrs. C. W. Dodgen. Two new members, Mrs. H. G. Anderson and Mrs. Dan Delvin, were received into the club.

Appetite Teasers

By Martha Logan

Lavish plates of intricate canapes are somewhat limited to the family without help. However, there are a number of simple appetizers that any homemaker can prepare even when a dinner requires attention. Some of the most striking arrangements take just a few minutes to prepare.

Franks can easily be made into clever appetizers by cutting them crosswise into 1-inch pieces and placing them on picks. The rosy color easily lends itself to colorful arrangement. And what could be tastier than the frank which is a combination of ground tender beef and juicy pork enhanced with a careful blend of seasoning? In one variety the franks are slit lengthwise and the cut edge spread with a creamed mixture of bleu cheese and mustard. When placed under the broiler the cheese mixture bubbles and browns into a tasty frosting." When finished they are cut into bite-sized pieces to be placed on tooth picks.

Because franks are cooked ready-to-eat when purchased, they also make excellent cold appetizers. One tasty trick is to cut pennywise slices about 1.2 inch thick and then spread them with smoked cheese which has been creamed with a bit of mayonnaise and chopped chives. These can be placed on a platter or used on tooth picks.

What to do with the tooth pick appetizers for serving? There are commercial gadgets with holes particularly for that purpose, but they are certainly not a necessity. Ordinary fruits and vegetables make attractive holders. Possibilities are: A bright yellow grapefruit with one side cut off for a flat base. A glossy purple egg plant fixed in the same way. A cucumber, washed and rubbed with a bit of salad oil to give it a sheen. Place whatever you have chosen on a bed of parsley, endive, or decorative leaves, and stick the tooth picks into it.

Following is a recipe for attractive appetizers. It is unique because the cocktail sauce not only tastes good but also gives to the franks a glossy coating which will not drip on party clothes.

Franks With Glazed Cocktail Sauce

Yield: 54 pieces.

1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
1/2 cup catsup
1/2 cup chili sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
4 drops Tobasco sauce

Soak gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes. Dissolve mixture over hot water. Then add catsup, chili sauce, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce and Tobasco sauce. Chill sauce until slightly thickened. Cut franks in 3/4 inch pieces. Stick a tooth pick in each piece. Then dip into sauce, allow it to drip, and stick picks into any desired holder.

A leave of absence was granted to Mrs. W. W. Watson, club reporter, with Mrs. B. B. Martin appointed as her successor.

The program for the afternoon was introduced by Mrs. E. E. Lawson, program chairman.

"Creole Songs and Folk Ballads of Louisiana" was discussed by Mrs. R. W. Cretney.

Mrs. A. R. Doughty rendered two vocal selections, songs from Creole lands. "O Mu' Sieu Banjo" and "En Avant, Grenadie," accompanied by Mrs. E. E. Lawson.

A piano solo "Serenade Triste" (Ferrato) was played by Mrs. Willys Hopkins.

Mrs. J. Norman Coon sang "Ah, Suzette, Chere" and "Pau Piti Momzelle Zizi."

AAUW INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS SEEK PRACTICAL TRAINING FOR PROBLEMS OF RECONSTRUCTION

Training to be directly applied to the most acute problems of their war-devastated homelands is sought by 55 women students who have received grants from the American Association of University Women for study in the United States in 1948-49. Nearly all of them are now enrolled in colleges and universities chosen by the A. A. U. W. to fit the special training for which each student has expressed a need.

Improvement of the physical and mental health of children is the objective of many of these A. A. U. Public health is also a subject of particular concern. AAUW INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS SEEK PRACTICAL TRAINING FOR PROBLEMS OF RECONSTRUCTION

Training to be directly applied to the most acute problems of their war-devastated homelands is sought by 55 women students who have received grants from the American Association of University Women for study in the United States in 1948-49. Nearly all of them are now enrolled in colleges and universities chosen by the A. A. U. W. to fit the special training for which each student has expressed a need.

Improvement of the physical and mental health of children is the objective of many of these A. A. U. W. international students; in the group are medical physicians, psychologists, social workers and teachers intent on specialized studies in various fields of pediatrics and child welfare. Public health is also a subject of particular concern. Other homeland problems which these women wish to help solve are indicated by such chosen courses of study as: Dairy production and poultry farming methods, nutrition, new methods in the biological sciences, civil engineering, methods of combating venereal diseases, modern economic planning and its application, American methods of teacher training.

The students receiving 1948-49 A. A. U. W. grants are from sixteen different countries where educational opportunities have been drastically reduced because of the war—Belgium, France, Italy, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, Finland, Norway, Denmark, Czechoslovakia, Germany, Greece, Japan, Burma, Siam, China, and the Philippines. Each year since the close of the war, the A. A. U. W. has contributed toward reconstruction by issuing grants to help finance advanced education or professional training for women of the devastated countries. Besides the A. A. U. W. study grants which cover expenses for an academic year in a college or university here, nine short-term grants have been issued this year for projects directly related to reconstruction. Monroe's unit of the Louisiana Association of Accredited Cosmetologists held its regular monthly meeting at the Ouachita Valley Health Unit.

Business sessions were held for the nomination of new officers.

Mrs. Pearl Hair, the newly appointed member of the Louisiana state board of cosmetic therapy, resigned as president of the Monroe unit, having served eight years.

Mrs. Myrtice Dodd was named president and other officers are Mrs. Eunice Lee, vice-president; Mrs. Laura Aucoin, second vice-president; Mrs. Virginia Budred, of Bastrop, third vice-president; Mrs. Mamie Kent, secretary; Mrs. Ruth Touchstone, treasurer, and Miss Hazel Parks, of Winnsboro, historian.

A social hour was enjoyed. Mrs. Jewell Doughty, of Winnsboro, a state inspector, was introduced.

The outstanding feature of the evening was the presentation of a lovely cosmetic make-up traveling bag to Mrs. Hair as a token of love and appreciation for her untiring efforts in the field of cosmetology in the state of Louisiana.

Mrs. Dodd, the newly elected president, and vice-president of the state association, invites all operators to join and attend the regular monthly meetings held each first Thursday of the month.

WILL DISCUSS TECH BUILDINGS

Committee Of State Board To Hold Session In Ruston Thursday

RUSTON, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—Members of the building committee of the state board of education will meet at Louisiana Tech on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock to consider new buildings for the college here, the Tech president, Dr. Claybrook, Cottinghom, has announced.

The building committee of the state board includes Parrish Fuller, Oakdale, chairman; Robert H. Curry, Shreveport; Morgan Walker, Alexandria, and Bronier Tribaut, Napoleonville.

The committee will be guests of the college at a luncheon in the Tech dining hall at noon Thursday.

At the business meeting it is expected that the committee will determine what building will be first to be erected in a $2,000,000 construction program approved by the state legislature last summer. The legislature voted to give Tech $1,000,000 a year during the next two years for buildings.

A Tech faculty committee appointed by President Cottingham to make recommendations regarding the use of the appropriated building funds includes H. C. Pyburn, E. J. Scheerer, Irene Tolliver, W. L. Mitchell, Joe Aillet, A. W. Ford, Dr. G. W. Bond, M. H. Folk, Jr.; Dr. H. L. Hughes, Mrs. Alice Millett Graham, Burton R. Risinger, Roy T. Sessums and Martha Condra.

A new women's dormitory is now under construction at Tech with funds appropriated prior to the legislature's $2,000,000 grant. Part of the latter appropriation will be used to add a dining hall to the new dormitory and to equip that building.

PLUMBING CODE IS BEING CONSIDERED

Promulgation of a new state plumbing code was discussed by master plumbers representing ten Louisiana cities at Lafayette September 25.

A representative of the Master Plumbers Association of Monroe and vicinity stated that "a minimum plumbing code is something that our state has needed for many years." In conclusion, the master plumbers of this association have pledged their entire cooperation to assist the Louisiana state board of health in the preparation of this code.

Mortuaries of Distinction

(Editor's Note: This is another of a monthly series of articles depicting in pictures and words Southwestern Mortuaries of Distinction . . . establishments of which the Southwest can be justly proud.)

It has remained for one of a traditionally great family of morticians, the Hixson Family of Louisiana to conceive and build one of the most beautiful and distinctive Funeral Homes in America at Monroe, Louisiana.

This publication is proud to present glimpses of that home herewith and to quote the firm's description of it in one of the most handsome brochures we have yet seen. The booklet says:

"This beautiful new funeral home in Monroe has been planned for the needs of its purpose without in any degree destroying the privacy which every home should possess.

"On the main floor and leading off the entrance hall and foyer is a spacious chapel which is arranged for the comfort of those attending services and can accommodate approximately two hundred people. On each side of the chapel are wide hallways which lead in to State Rooms where the deceased lies in state until the hour for the memorial service. Since the family is the first consideration private rooms for their use adjoin each State Room, each with a private entrance. This affords privacy for even the largest family before and during the funeral service. Adjoining the chapel is the Music Room where the music for the service is provided by a Hammond organ. Other accommodations on the first floor include a Ladies' Lounge, Men's Lounge, two business offices and a private arrangement office for use of the family in making plans for the services.

"A wide stairway leads from the foyer to the second floor and enters into a third State Room. Adjoining is a Guest Room which is provided for the family or relatives who wish to remain overnight. The large Casket Display Room offers a wide selection while the Infant Display Room is both unusual and important. Also on the second floor are rest rooms, a modern Operating Room, quarters for Ambulance drivers, and a four-room apartment provided for the Resident Embalmer.

"The garage, which is in the rear of the building can accommodate ten cars and houses the Air Conditioning Equipment and other supplies. Adjoining the garage is an elevator to the second floor.

"The building is of modern Colonial design and is constructed of steel, concrete and brick. It is completely Air Conditioned, summer and winter, and is truly one of the finest funeral homes in the South."

Truly a Southwestern Funeral Home of Distinction.

E. W. and J. W. Hixson head the firm of Hixson Bros. and today own and operate funeral homes in Monroe, Alexandria, Jena, Winnfield, Bunkie and Marksville. Associated with them are their two sons and daughter—E. W. Hixson, Jr., J. W. Hixson, Jr., and Marguerite Hixson—who have been trained to carry on the high traditions of service set in the past.

The Hixsons always have striven to provide the best—in surroundings, equipment and service—and this new home presents to the people of this section one of the most modern and complete funeral homes in the South, reflecting their confidence in the growth and development of Ouachita Parish and Northeast Louisiana.

Community Welfare Agencies Depend Upon Community Chest

COMMUNITY CHEST DRIVE IN TWIN CITIES OPENS TODAY

The Red Feather has become a nationally known symbol. Nearly a thousand cities and towns conduct their annual Community Chest campaign under the banner of the Red Feather. The Twin City Community Chest drive opens today, according to Ivy Jordan, general campaign chairman. Hundreds of volunteer workers tomorrow will begin their campaign of canvassing their fellow-workers and business associates to ask them to provide the necessary funds to keep all of the Red Feather services of Monroe and West Monroe in operation for another full year.

"Thousands of our citizens wear the Red Feather each year to show that they have made their pledge according to their income and ability to support our agencies. This year $51,000 must be raised in the Twin Cities to provide the essential neighborly services," said Ivy Jordan on the eve of the campaign drive.

The Community Chest theme—"Everybody Benefits, Everybody Gives"—indicates the scope of the Red Feather services. It expresses the idea that the man who gives and the man who receives may well be the same man. It requires the factor of enlightened self interest as a reason for supporting the Red Feather services. It is a realization that in the modern community, what is good for some people is good for all people. The tides of a community touch all shores circulating whatever forces of trouble or benefit that it may carry. Because Red Feather services deal with human needs; mental, physical, spiritual and emotional, there are no economical boundaries around thousans who need the services. Sociology is learning more and more that money only is not the answer to all problems but sometimes is the source of them. So it is, then, that these are the trusts behind the Community Chest slogan—"Everybody Benefits, Everybody Gives."

Nine agencies benefit from the funds of the Twin City Community Chest. This year, a tenth agency has been added, the USO.

Monroe Maternity Clinic

This is one of the most worth while of all the organizations sponsored by the Twin City Community Chest. The services include the post-natal care of the mother and instructions as to the proper clothing, feeding and handling of the newborn baby. In most needy cases, a complete layette is furnished. Nurses are assigned to each case after the birth to care for the mother and the child. Deliveries are made either in the home, the Charity Hospital, or in some cases, if the mother is able to pay a portion of the medical cost, at the St. Francis Sanitarium. Progress of the child is followed from the very day of birth through the various immunization periods until he enters school. When school days come, then another Chest agency steps into the picture.

P.-T. A. Child Welfare

This organization of parents and teachers is allotted funds from the Twin City Community Chest to handle cases where children in school require medical attention. Cases are referred to his organization and investigated and if the family is unable to provide the required funds, then the P.-T. A. child health and welfare provides the necessary means. The school luncheon program until the recent legislation made other provisions was also conducted through this organization.

Red Shield Boys' Club

The Red Shield Boys' Club is an organization under the guidance of the Salvation Army. Indoor recreational facilities for boys of the Twin Cities are provided. The club room is open all day seven days weekly. It is felt that this activity in the Twin Cities has largely reduced the juvenile delinquency in this locality. The Twin City Community Chest provides funds to this club for operating expenses.

Salvation Army

The work and accomplishments of the Salvation Army are wide and great. Everyone knows of the relief activities, of the providing of food and clothing to the needy and of how the Salvation Army comes to the rescue of the stricken in times of disaster. The Community Chest contributes to the operating expenses of the Salvation Army enabling much of their work to be accomplished.

Girl Scouts

The Girl Scouts of the Twin Cities, providing both for the Girl Scout troops and the junior scouts, or "Brownies," receive a portion of the Community Chest funds to help them in their operating costs. The Girl Scouts organization will this week will celebrate its 37th anniversary. This organization not only needs the help and support of the Community Chest but is also making an appeal to the women of the Twin Cities to act as Girl Scout leaders, counselors, or advisors. Contributions to the Community Chest and the offering of women's services will help the Girl Scouts of Monroe and West Monroe to a brighter future, better ideals, and to a fuller understanding of the world and their place in it.

Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. is another organization which receives funds for its operating expenses from the Twin Cities Community Chest drive. The Y. W. C. A. not only provides residence to young working girls amid Christian surroundings but also serves as a meeting place for youngsters in their teens as well as for many business and professional women's clubs.

Boy Scouts

Just as the Community Chest assists the Girl Scouts, so is a similar type of aid given the Boy Scouts.

West Monroe Recreation

The West Monroe Recreational Council is an organization which functions only during the summer months. It provides for supervised playgrounds for the children of West Monroe during the vacation days of the year. The cost of operating is contributed by the Twin City Community Chest.

Colored Welfare

The colored community of the Twin Cities conducts its own Community Chest drive under the guidance of the Twin City Chest organization. Their goal for this year is $3,000 which helps to defray most of their needs which consist of such work as the Boy and Girl Scouts, medical attention and the providing of food and clothing in needy cases. The Twin City Community Chest stands by to provide further funds when the money which the colored community has collected is exhausted.

These are the nine agencies sponsored and supported by the Twin City Community Chest. As previously stated, the USO has been added for a portion of the 1948-49 funds. Many Twin City boys and young men will be a part of the peacetime army soon to be drafted. Many of these boys will serve at stations far from their homes and even in foreign countries. To give these soldiers the proper mental, moral and spiritual benefits the USO which did such an outstanding job during the war years is now in the process of re-birth. Although no U. S. activities are planned in Monroe at the present time, you are urged to give and give enough so that the USO may benefit and so that some member of your family who may be called to the services will benefit in return.

It was the custom in pioneer days to share responsibilities—neighbor help neighbor—or neither one survives. The spirit hasn't changed—the need hasn't changed. Life still requires the stretching out of our hand to a neighbor and the neighbor's hand to ourselves. The only change has been the transition from pioneer ways to modern living. An individual can not know the needs and problems of his hundreds and thousands of neighbors so society has organized the Community Chest to find out their needs and for making provisions for aiding them.

The visiting nurses, the maternity clinics, the scouts, the Y's, the Salvation Army, and all of the Red Feather services of the Twin City Community Chest are carrying on the functions formerly assumed by the neighbors. It is still a neighbor's job.

LEGUME SEED FOR WINTER GIVEN OUT

FERRIDAY, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—The Concordia Parish Agricultural Conservation Association has distributed enough winter legume seed for about 8,000 acres, according to Miss Marie Saxe, parish administrative officer.

About 15,000 acres of winter legume should be planted in the parish, Miss Saxe said. The association has been issuing clover and seed for pastures, mostly for small pastures. Some fecue grass has been purchased for pastures this fall.

Miss Saxe states that the closing date for receiving prior approvals for seeding fall pastures is November 1. The closing date for issuing prior approvals for winter legume is November 30.

AUTOMATIC CAR WASHER FRANCHISE AVAILABLE

Minit-Man Automatic Car Washers in daily operation in many cities throughout the U. S. have proved profitable beyond original expectation. A franchise to own and operate a Minit-Man station in this city is now available.

The novel, efficient, time saving and automatic operation of the washer has captured the imagination of the motorist everywhere. Stations in various cities now wash upwards of 300 cars per day. Some report business averaging 500 cars per day, while one has recorded an 800 car day!. With no station charging less than $1.00 per car, (special polishing and other work extra) and with only a nominal amount of labor needed, the entire cost of the machine is soon written off.

Special experience in this field is not required; present successful owners include, among others, an accountant, restaurant owner, teacher, chemist, as well as a number of operators of automobile service establishments.

If you now have or are able to secure or erect a building with a minimum floor space of 20 x 100 feet on (or adjacent to) a well-traveled location and can arrange for the purchase of the machine on which financing is available the Minit-Man can prove very valuable to you. WHEN KIDNEYS Work Too Often

Are you embarrassed and bothered by too frequent elimination during the day and night? This symptom as well as irritating passages, Bladder Irritations, Backache, Strong Cloudy Urine, Pains in the Groin, Hips and Lower Stomach, may be due to temporary germ irritation in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. In such cases the very first dose of the scientifically compounded medicine called CYSTEX usually goes to work right now helping you these three ways: 1. Helps nature remove certain irritating germs in acid conditions. 2. Thus helps remove a frequent cause of many aches and pains. 3. By relieving and calming irritated tissues, it helps reduce frequent or smarting passages day and night. Get CYSTEX from your druggist. Give it a fair trial under satisfaction or money back guarantee.

Community Welfare Agencies Depend Upon Community Chest

COMMUNITY CHEST DRIVE IN TWIN CITIES OPENS TODAY

The Red Feather has become a nationally known symbol. Nearly a thousand cities and towns conduct their annual Community Chest campaign under the banner of the Red Feather. The Twin City Community Chest drive opens today, according to Ivy Jordan, general campaign chairman. Hundreds of volunteer workers tomorrow will begin their campaign of canvassing their fellow-workers and business associates to ask them to provide the necessary funds to keep all of the Red Feather services of Monroe and West Monroe in operation for another full year.

"Thousands of our citizens wear the Red Feather each year to show that they have made their pledge according to their income and ability to support our agencies. This year $51,000 must be raised in the Twin Cities to provide the essential neighborly services," said Ivy Jordan on the eve of the campaign drive.

The Community Chest theme—"Everybody Benefits, Everybody Gives"—indicates the scope of the Red Feather services. It expresses the idea that the man who gives and the man who receives may well be the same man. It requires the factor of enlightened self interest as a reason for supporting the Red Feather services. It is a realization that in the modern community, what is good for some people is good for all people. The tides of a community touch all shores circulating whatever forces of trouble or benefit that it may carry. Because Red Feather services deal with human needs; mental, physical, spiritual and emotional, there are no economical boundaries around thousans who need the services. Sociology is learning more and more that money only is not the answer to all problems but sometimes is the source of them. So it is, then, that these are the trusts behind the Community Chest slogan—"Everybody Benefits, Everybody Gives."

Nine agencies benefit from the funds of the Twin City Community Chest. This year, a tenth agency has been added, the USO.

Monroe Maternity Clinic

This is one of the most worth while of all the organizations sponsored by the Twin City Community Chest. The services include the post-natal care of the mother and instructions as to the proper clothing, feeding and handling of the newborn baby. In most needy cases, a complete layette is furnished. Nurses are assigned to each case after the birth to care for the mother and the child. Deliveries are made either in the home, the Charity Hospital, or in some cases, if the mother is able to pay a portion of the medical cost, at the St. Francis Sanitarium. Progress of the child is followed from the very day of birth through the various immunization periods until he enters school. When school days come, then another Chest agency steps into the picture.

P.-T. A. Child Welfare

This organization of parents and teachers is allotted funds from the Twin City Community Chest to handle cases where children in school require medical attention. Cases are referred to his organization and investigated and if the family is unable to provide the required funds, then the P.-T. A. child health and welfare provides the necessary means. The school luncheon program until the recent legislation made other provisions was also conducted through this organization.

Red Shield Boys' Club

The Red Shield Boys' Club is an organization under the guidance of the Salvation Army. Indoor recreational facilities for boys of the Twin Cities are provided. The club room is open all day seven days weekly. It is felt that this activity in the Twin Cities has largely reduced the juvenile delinquency in this locality. The Twin City Community Chest provides funds to this club for operating expenses.

Salvation Army

The work and accomplishments of the Salvation Army are wide and great. Everyone knows of the relief activities, of the providing of food and clothing to the needy and of how the Salvation Army comes to the rescue of the stricken in times of disaster. The Community Chest contributes to the operating expenses of the Salvation Army enabling much of their work to be accomplished.

Girl Scouts

The Girl Scouts of the Twin Cities, providing both for the Girl Scout troops and the junior scouts, or "Brownies," receive a portion of the Community Chest funds to help them in their operating costs. The Girl Scouts organization will this week will celebrate its 37th anniversary. This organization not only needs the help and support of the Community Chest but is also making an appeal to the women of the Twin Cities to act as Girl Scout leaders, counselors, or advisors. Contributions to the Community Chest and the offering of women's services will help the Girl Scouts of Monroe and West Monroe to a brighter future, better ideals, and to a fuller understanding of the world and their place in it.

Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. is another organization which receives funds for its operating expenses from the Twin Cities Community Chest drive. The Y. W. C. A. not only provides residence to young working girls amid Christian surroundings but also serves as a meeting place for youngsters in their teens as well as for many business and professional women's clubs.

Boy Scouts

Just as the Community Chest assists the Girl Scouts, so is a similar type of aid given the Boy Scouts.

West Monroe Recreation

The West Monroe Recreational Council is an organization which functions only during the summer months. It provides for supervised playgrounds for the children of West Monroe during the vacation days of the year. The cost of operating is contributed by the Twin City Community Chest.

Colored Welfare

The colored community of the Twin Cities conducts its own Community Chest drive under the guidance of the Twin City Chest organization. Their goal for this year is $3,000 which helps to defray most of their needs which consist of such work as the Boy and Girl Scouts, medical attention and the providing of food and clothing in needy cases. The Twin City Community Chest stands by to provide further funds when the money which the colored community has collected is exhausted.

These are the nine agencies sponsored and supported by the Twin City Community Chest. As previously stated, the USO has been added for a portion of the 1948-49 funds. Many Twin City boys and young men will be a part of the peacetime army soon to be drafted. Many of these boys will serve at stations far from their homes and even in foreign countries. To give these soldiers the proper mental, moral and spiritual benefits the USO which did such an outstanding job during the war years is now in the process of re-birth. Although no U. S. activities are planned in Monroe at the present time, you are urged to give and give enough so that the USO may benefit and so that some member of your family who may be called to the services will benefit in return.

It was the custom in pioneer days to share responsibilities—neighbor help neighbor—or neither one survives. The spirit hasn't changed—the need hasn't changed. Life still requires the stretching out of our hand to a neighbor and the neighbor's hand to ourselves. The only change has been the transition from pioneer ways to modern living. An individual can not know the needs and problems of his hundreds and thousands of neighbors so society has organized the Community Chest to find out their needs and for making provisions for aiding them.

The visiting nurses, the maternity clinics, the scouts, the Y's, the Salvation Army, and all of the Red Feather services of the Twin City Community Chest are carrying on the functions formerly assumed by the neighbors. It is still a neighbor's job.

Firearms Safety Film Will Be Shown At Meeting

A film on firearms safety, entitled "Trigger Happy Harry," will be shown at the central district Boy Scout court of honor to be held Tuesday night, October 12, 7:30, at the Central Grammar School, in Monroe. A large group of Scouts from all troops in Monroe and West Monroe are expected to attend this court of honor, which will be conducted by Judge Jesse Heard, chairman of the local advancement committee.

The film to be presented Tuesday night is a special National Rifle Association safety feature, and will show safe methods of handling rifles and shotguns. It is being presented by John Zufall, president of the Louisiana State Rifle and Pistol Association, and life member of the National Rifle Association. Mr. Zufall is also a member of the Boy Scout health and safety committee.

The court of honor was planned at the district Scoutmasters' roundtable held Thursday, October 7, at Camp Ki-Ro-Li. Other events of importance to Scouts in this area, to be staged during the next few months, were also discussed at the roundtable meeting, presided over by T. Mickel, district commissioner.

Leaders attending the roundtable meeting discussed a special fall activity to be held in conjunction with the fall round-up program. This affair, which will be presented by all Scouts and Cubs in the Twin Cities area, will climax several weeks of activity centering around the round-up theme. All Cub packs and Scout troops are expected to participate on the program.

A Scoutmasters' training course was also announced at the leaders meeting, to be held at Camp Ki-Ro-Li October 16 and 17. Attendance of all leaders and troop committeemen was urged. This training session will feature many new ideas for troop meetings though the means of new films and actual practice of Scouting skills. An expert faculty from all parts of the council has been lined up to assist in presenting this Scoutmasters' training course.

Many Cub Scout leaders from Monroe are expected to attend the October Cub leaders roundtable to be held at the Ouachita parish courthouse, October 11, 7:30 p.m. Cubmasters, assistant Cubmasters, pack committeemen, den mothers and den dads have been invited to attend this meeting, which will feature new methods and the exchange of ideas in cubbing.

A. C. Lea, central district cubbing commissioner, has announced that the program Monday night will include a new film on program planning, as well as an unusual dramatization to demonstrate the proper manner to plan Cub Scout programs.

The suggested program theme outlined in the current issue of Scouting magazine will be discussed at the meeting, and ideas in carrying out this theme will be given. The participation of Cub Scouts in a special fall district Scout activity will also be discussed at the meeting.

Leaders from the following packs are expected to attend: Pack 13, sponsored by the First Baptist Church, West Monroe; pack 31, sponsored by the Georgia-Tucker P.-T. A., Monroe: pack 32, sponsored by the Sherrouse P.-T. A., Monroe, and pack 34, sponsored by the First Methodist Church, Monroe.

HONOR COURT IS SLATED TUESDAY

Firearms Safety Film Will Be Shown At Meeting

A film on firearms safety, entitled "Trigger Happy Harry," will be shown at the central district Boy Scout court of honor to be held Tuesday night, October 12, 7:30, at the Central Grammar School, in Monroe. A large group of Scouts from all troops in Monroe and West Monroe are expected to attend this court of honor, which will be conducted by Judge Jesse Heard, chairman of the local advancement committee.

The film to be presented Tuesday night is a special National Rifle Association safety feature, and will show safe methods of handling rifles and shotguns. It is being presented by John Zufall, president of the Louisiana State Rifle and Pistol Association, and life member of the National Rifle Association. Mr. Zufall is also a member of the Boy Scout health and safety committee.

The court of honor was planned at the district Scoutmasters' roundtable held Thursday, October 7, at Camp Ki-Ro-Li. Other events of importance to Scouts in this area, to be staged during the next few months, were also discussed at the roundtable meeting, presided over by T. Mickel, district commissioner.

Leaders attending the roundtable meeting discussed a special fall activity to be held in conjunction with the fall round-up program. This affair, which will be presented by all Scouts and Cubs in the Twin Cities area, will climax several weeks of activity centering around the round-up theme. All Cub packs and Scout troops are expected to participate on the program.

A Scoutmasters' training course was also announced at the leaders meeting, to be held at Camp Ki-Ro-Li October 16 and 17. Attendance of all leaders and troop committeemen was urged. This training session will feature many new ideas for troop meetings though the means of new films and actual practice of Scouting skills. An expert faculty from all parts of the council has been lined up to assist in presenting this Scoutmasters' training course.

Many Cub Scout leaders from Monroe are expected to attend the October Cub leaders roundtable to be held at the Ouachita parish courthouse, October 11, 7:30 p.m. Cubmasters, assistant Cubmasters, pack committeemen, den mothers and den dads have been invited to attend this meeting, which will feature new methods and the exchange of ideas in cubbing.

A. C. Lea, central district cubbing commissioner, has announced that the program Monday night will include a new film on program planning, as well as an unusual dramatization to demonstrate the proper manner to plan Cub Scout programs.

The suggested program theme outlined in the current issue of Scouting magazine will be discussed at the meeting, and ideas in carrying out this theme will be given. The participation of Cub Scouts in a special fall district Scout activity will also be discussed at the meeting.

Leaders from the following packs are expected to attend: Pack 13, sponsored by the First Baptist Church, West Monroe; pack 31, sponsored by the Georgia-Tucker P.-T. A., Monroe; pack 32, sponsored by the Sherrouse P.-T. A., Monroe, and pack 34, sponsored by the First Methodist Church, Monroe.

CHEMISTRY NO. 5 TO BE N. J. C. STUDY

The local demand for a class in general chemistry will be disposed of in a meeting in T. O. Brown hall at the college Monday at 7 p. m., states Waldorf Smith, director of the night school at Northeast Junior College. All who are interested are urged to register.

The demand for this class in chemistry 5 is from petroleum engineering students and other technical students working in the expanding chemical industries in and around Monroe.

Mr. Smith states that the coming of these industries to Monroe is due not only to our natural resources but to the friendly cooperation of the authorities and the ambitious intelligence of our younger generation who insist on learning while they are earning.

The object of the meeting is to determine if there are eight or more students who can agree on the nights in which lecture and laboratory work will be given. At present the classes are scheduled to be held Tuesday and Friday nights but the exact schedule will be worked out between Emmet J. Foster, the professor of chemistry, and the students.

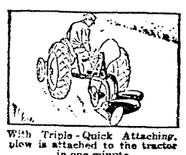

Mr. Smith reports that several classes have formed and are closed to further enrollment but that classes in commercial subjects are still open as are several offerings in English, art, mathematics and music appreciation.

CHEMISTRY NO. 5 TO BE N. J. C. STUDY

The local demand for a class in general chemistry will be disposed of in a meeting in T. O. Brown hall at the college Monday at 7 p. m., states Waldorf Smith, director of the night school at Northeast Junior College. All who are interested are urged to register.

The demand for this class in chemistry 5 is from petroleum engineering students and other technical students working in the expanding chemical industries in and around Monroe.

Mr. Smith states that the coming of these industries to Monroe is due not only to our natural resources but to the friendly cooperation of the authorities and the ambitious intelligence of our younger generation who insist on learning while they are earning.

The object of the meeting is to determine if there are eight or more students who can agree on the nights in which lecture and laboratory work will be given. At present the classes are scheduled to be held Tuesday and Friday nights but the exact schedule will be worked out between Emmet J. Foster, the professor of chemistry, and the students.

Mr. Smith reports that several classes have formed and are closed to further enrollment but that classes in commercial subjects are still open as are several offerings in English, art, mathematics and music appreciation.

PLEASANT HILL CHURCH IS OPEN

All-Day Celebration To Be Held Today In New Edifice

Efforts of five years directed toward the securing of a modern substantial home for Pleasant Hill Congregational Church, located 15 miles out on the Jonesboro highway, will be brought to a satisfactory conclusion today when the new edifice is thrown open to the public in all-day services, states the pastor, Rev. A. O. Wright.

There will be Sunday School at 10 a.m., a service of dedication at 11 a.m. with Dr. H. H. Lindeman preaching the sermon. Dinner on the grounds will be served at noon and Dr. Lindeman will preach at 7:30 p.m. He is district superintendent of churches. The public is invited to attend all services.

H. K. Lineback, missionary of the American Sunday School Union, has played a highly important role in the development of this church from its earliest origin. In all probability it would not be anywhere near the success that it is today were it nor for his persistent and consecrated efforts, the pastor assures.

Mr. Lineback tells the recent history of this church as follows:

"In April, 1917, I, H. K. Lineback, came to Monroe as a missionary of the American Sunday School Union to labor in the eight parishes around Monroe. World War I had caused many rural churches to be closed and hardly any Sunday Schools ex-

"July 10, 1948, I organized and conducted a Vacation Bible School again at Pleasant Hill Church having Misses Howell and James from the Los Angeles Bible Institute as principal workers. Local workers contributed much help to the school and evening classes were held for all and were well attended. Lapine Church and community joined with us in these services.

"The following year I organized and conducted a Vacation Bible School at Lapine Church and the Pleasant Hill Church and community joined with them in carrying this school to a successful completion.

"In October, 1939, the pastor, Rev. A. O. Wright, asked that I let the church take over the Sunday School since he and his family were coming to Pleasant Hill regularly to work with the Sunday School. To this request, I gave my most hearty consent.

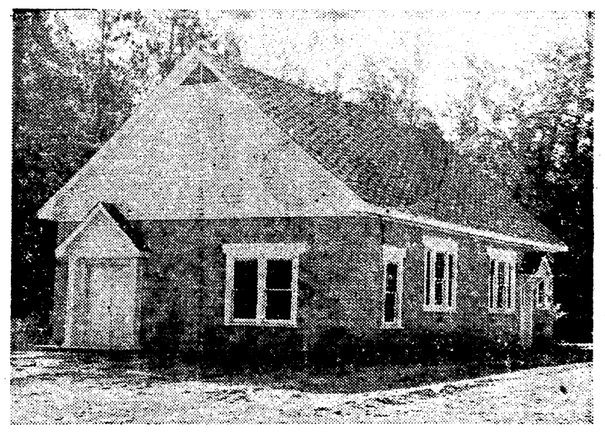

"In the summers of 1940, '41, '46, and '47 I assisted the pastor in conducting Vacation Bible Schools at Pleasant Hill Church.

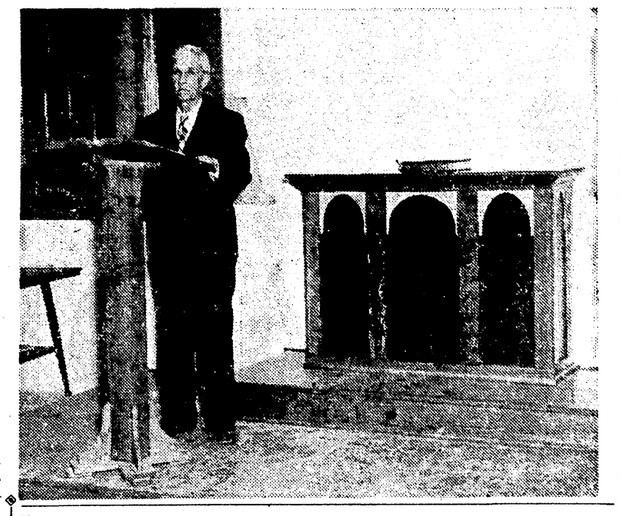

"I have had a part at different times in making and preparing equipment for the Sunday School and church. Also, at the request of the pastor, I have assisted the Sunday School at various times during his absence.

"Pleasant Hill Church with a modern building, good furnishings and equipment, a full-time pastor, and workers who are faithful to their task is doing some constructive Christion work. A new parsonage is being erected on the church lot to provide the pastor with living facilities among the folks of his community.

"I was requested to build the reading stand and alter now in use in the church to insure that I have some part in erecting this monument to those who have labored so faithfully. This task, I performed in my shop at home with much zest and thanksgiving."

Weak, Watery Blood Blamed for Making Men and Women Look and Feel Older

THAN THEIR YEARS

How do you feel at the end of a day? Is that old time pep and drive lacking? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Thousands now regaining glowing good looks and vitality through the release of vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a general run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Mickey Mouse draws more cash across the counter than he does through the box-office.

That's a strange economic fact in this land of strange economics. But Disneyites figure that the sales of products bearing the images of Mickey, Donald Duck and others of the cartoon family exceed what those characters earn on the screen.

This week the commercial services of Mick and his fellow merchants were assured for another seven years. Disney signed a new deal with Kay Kamen Company that will continue imprinting Walt's characters on more than 2,000 products. The list includes everything from wallpaper to umbrellas.

Mickey is also an international salesman. More than 500 firms in Europe and the rest of the world distribute the Disney-marked products.

A Disney cameraman, taking jungle films 1,500 miles up the Amazon, was surprised to encounter his fellow employe, Donald Duck. The explosive quacker was emblazoned on the drum of a village band.

You may recall a scene in "A Foreign Affair," in which a Russian soldier was bartering watches. He was apathetic until he saw the face of a certain watch. "Mickey Moose," he exclaimed joyously.

Disney sources tell me that Mickey Mouse watches are a high commodity on the black markets of both Germany and Italy.

Walt got into the merchandising market early—in 1932—and others have hopped on the bandwagon. Roy Rogers figures he earns about $200,000 yearly from products bearing his name.

Margaret O'Brien's name sponsors such things as dresses, paper dolls, cosmetics and hats.

Gene Autry's list is long and slightly fantastic. It includes jeans, guns, belts, hats, comic books, boots, shoes, shirts, ties, hat bands, suspenders, pencils, paper weights, tooth paste, hair oil and shoe laces.

Other stars and cartoon characters have products and there's hardly an American who can escape having a bit of Hollywood in his home. Why, we still have at home a cream pitcher on which smiles the cherubic face of a six-year-old Shirley Temple.

GOVERNMENT BOND SALES REPORTED

He states that sales are broken down as follows: E bonds, $53,318; F and G bonds, $10,126.

From only one producing oil well, in one state, in 1859, the oil industry, through progressive development, today has 428,522 producing wells scattered through 25 states. And the never-ending search in other areas and at deeper levels continues day and night to supply America's ever-increasing demands for oil products.

Boyle's Notebook

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—This is the city that is never through building.

Manhattan Island is like some nursery for baby giants, where the children are continuously rearing up strange new play houses—only to knock down the blocks and start all over again.

A man who spends his entire life in New York City never dies in the same city in which he was born. He has to search in his old age to find the remnants of the town of his boyhood.

It practically takes an act of parliament—or the German air force—to change the face of London. But here the pattern of change is a way of life. By the time a building is put up it is already old-fashioned.

They're tearing down the old New York every day. This saddens many an old-timer, but the same thing has been going on for more than 300 years.

When the famous Flatiron Building was erected on a triangular plot at 23rd and Broadway in 1902 to inaugurate the skyscraper era, it quickly became a tourist mecca. Visitors wondered uneasily if it was safe to go into a building 20 stories tall.

At that time its Madison Square site was the most fashionable in town. Gay blades hung out at the windy corner to ogle petticoats whipped into view by the breezes. Cops shooed them away, and there is a theory that this explains the phrase "twenty-three skiddoo," popular in grandpa's day.

Today the Flatiron Building is passed by unnoticed. It isn't even on the list of the 40 tallest structures here. And the 60-story terra cotta Woolworth Building, hailed as a cathedral of commerce in 1913, is topped by five other business towers.

Fifty years or more ago the glamor shopping lane stretched along Broadway from 14th to 23rd street. Then it moved over to Fifth avenue and began steadily marching up toward Central park, crowding out the mansions of the wealthy.

Today the red stone palace in which Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt entertained international society is gone—torn down to make way for an office building. The only holdout along Fifth avenue is the old Jay Gould home, and it's been turned into an antique shop.

The wrecker's ball has also smashed apart Charlie Schwab's imported French chateau on Riverside drive, and a modern apartment building will take its place. About the only landmark left intact on the drive is Grant's tomb—and who goes there now?

In Manhattan the past gets no such reverence as it does in the cities of Europe. On Washington Square, made famous by Henry James and other writers, they're knocking down "genius row," home of many well known artists and authors. In the park itself small children clamber about in a monkey gym over the bones of the unknown dead. The park once was a potter's field.

One change being made in the ever-changing face of Manhattan that will bring few tears from sentimentalists is the gradual destruction of the lower east side slums. They are being replaced by gigantic modern housing projects for lower and middle income people, giving these classes the benefits of skyscraper residential life.

No, "little old New York" just doesn't exist any more. And this year the city planning commission, created a decade ago to give some direction to the city's growth, has just proposed that the city spend $317,056,203 next year to modernize itself still more.

This is only one item in "little old New York's" billion-dollar budget. In 1890 Benjamin Harrison spent only $318,041,000 to run the entire United States.

PRESBYTERIAN MEN TO HAVE DINNER

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church will have the regular monthly meeting Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. with supper served.

Stewart Scott, president, urges all members to attend. O. Hutto, entertainment chairman, states that an educational picture will be shown.

COMMISSIONERS TRAVEL

FERRIDAY, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—The Mississippi River Commission, traveling aboard the steamer Mississippi on their annual low water trip down the Mississippi river passed here on Friday. No hearing was scheduled, but the commission stopped and made an inspection of levee mork below Vidalia, en route to Baton Rouge, where a hearing was held later on Friday. A hearing was also held at Vicksburg, Miss., en route down the river on Thursday afternoon.

PREVENTABLE FIRES

More than 825,000 preventable fires occurred in the United States during 1946. Sixty per cent were put out by fire extinguishesr when they were only small blazes.

In The Air

Over Monroe

By Margaret Gambrell

When H. C. King stopped over at Selman Field unexpectedly last week it was time for celebration! King found his former student, Ellis Dowdy, operating Service Aviation and within an hour several of his students of the early thirties turned out for a reunion with their former instructor.

King came to Monroe in 1929 to remove a mortgage from a plane he had build in his factory and which had stopped here on a demonstration tour. Its pilot had become financially stranded.

He liked Monroe and the result was he stayed here for several years.

He anchored the plane, which was one of the first aircraft in Monroe, in a barren field with a heavy chain, so that it would not topple over in the wind. It had been sent here on a demonstration tour when the pilot borrowed money on it and King came to Monroe in order to return it to Boulder, Colo.

King left here for that destination, but at Calhoun he made a forced landing in a cotton field and the plane tipped over on its nose, breaking the propeller.

He ordered a new propeller from a factory, but while it was en route souvenir hunters ripped pieces of fabric from the fuselage of the plane and carried away parts of the motor.

He decided considerable interest was manifest here in aviation and remained here and banded together a group of young men interested in aviation.

The Flying Dragons' Club was formed and the members worked under King's direction in rebuilding the plane.

When the plane was completely rebuilt the members of the club were taught to fly and the ship was anchored to a fence post at what later became known as Smoot Field.

After leaving Monroe, King engaged in numerous aviation enterprises and is now rebuilding planes for his own company at Uvalde, Texas. The airman who was largely responsible for building Smoot Field was quite surprised to find the interest in aviation had grown to such an extent in Monroe that four aviation companies operated here.

This was King's first visit to Monroe since he left in the middle thirties and a lot can happen in over 10 years, he said.

Air Park Activities

During the past week, fliers at Monroe Air Park didn't lose any time in getting their flying hours in. One commercial license and two private licenses were issued to fliers who completed courses and passed their examinations with flying colors.

R. J. Wildey is one of Monroe's latest commercial pilots and the new private pilots are C. L. Hanna and V. A. Netherland.

Seven cross-countries were made this week by A. J. Whitlock, R. D. Noble, J. D. Perkel, Curtis Cowan, E. F. Smith, Alex Winn and D. A. Shell.

The meeting of the Louisiana Trade Association in Opelousas Wednesday, drew airport operators from all over the state, and representing the Airpark, which is an active member of L. A. T. A., was Joe Joseph.

G. I. flight training was discussed at the meeting, Joseph said, and a motion was made to inaugurate a training program for young high school and college men, which would be a non-G. I. training program.

Reports are that James Smith, operator of a West Monroe skating rink, who recently purchased a Stinson, has soloed his ship and is making good progress toward building up time for his private license.

The Airpark was kept busy on chartered business and pleasure trips this week. Joe Joseph piloted Mr. V. Rivers and Mr. F. Pettit to Henryette, Okla., in the Airpark's twin Cessna on a business trip. When M. J. Carborn flew to Jackson, Miss., Sunday in his Beech Bonanza he was flown over by Joseph and returned Thursday by Pilot H. G. Prophit.

Andrew Pappas made a business trip to Huntsville, Ala., and was flown over by Instructor Davern Grayson.

AMERICAN SPY TO TELL TALE

Town Hall Will Hear Major Paul Cyr, Hero Of Recent War

"Adventures of an American Spy" will be the title of the address which will be given Town Hall by Mayor Paul Cyr, young American spy and hero on Monday at 8 p.m. The lecture will, like all others in the past, be given in the Ouachita Parish High School auditorium, it is announced by the president, Ivy Jordan.

Being one of General Wild Bill Donovan's cloak and dagger boys, Paul Cyr was given only one chance in a hundred to come back alive. The fearless young major was the first American to be dropped behind enemy lines in France where he implemented every trick known to espionage. He will tell with wit and humor of his hair-breadth escapes from the gestapo during his six months' work with the French Maquis. Cyr's skillful and daring feats of assistance to General Patton make him one of the outstanding heroes of the war. He has been awarded the Legion of Honor, Croix de Guerre and the Distinguished Service Cross. The citation on the latter reads: "For extraordinary heroism in combat behind enemy lines."

In May, 1945, young Cyr was sent into Jap-held territory where, with the help of the Chinese guerrillas, he was commissioned to blow up the Yellow River bridge, "the hottest target in China." Eighteen hundred Jap troops tumbled to their death through the 150-yard hole his men left in the bridge. For this work he was awarded the Bronze Star. His article, "We Blew the Yellow River Bridge," was featured in the Saturday Evening Post, March 23, 1946. Cyr was discharged on the fourth anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

Major Cyr will be brought to Monroe through the affiliation of Monroe Town Hall club with the national organization which enables the several groups to provide outstanding men and women as speakers for their dinners.

PLEASANT HILL CHURCH IS OPEN

All-Day Celebration To Be Held Today In New Edifice

Efforts of five years directed toward the securing of a modern substantial home for Pleasant Hill Congregational Church, located 15 miles out on the Jonesboro highway, will be brought to a satisfactory conclusion today when the new edifice is thrown open to the public in all-day services, states the pastor, Rev. A. O. Wright.

There will be Sunday School at 10 a.m., a service of dedication at 11 a.m. with Dr. H. H. Lindeman preaching the sermon. Dinner on the grounds will be served at noon and Dr. Lindeman will preach at 7:30 p.m. He is district superintendent of churches. The public is invited to attend all services.

H. K. Lineback, missionary of the American Sunday School Union, has played a highly important role in the development of this church from its earliest origin. In all probability it would not be anywhere near the success that it is today were it nor for his persistent and consecrated efforts, the pastor assures.

Mr. Lineback tells the recent history of this church as follows:

"In April, 1917, I, H. K. Lineback, came to Monroe as a missionary of the American Sunday School Union to labor in the eight parishes around Monroe. World War I had caused many rural churches to be closed and hardly any Sunday Schools ex-

"July 10, 1948, I organized and conducted a Vacation Bible School again at Pleasant Hill Church having Misses Howell and James from the Los Angeles Bible Institute as principal workers. Local workers contributed much help to the school and evening classes were held for all and were well attended. Lapine Church and community joined with us in these services.

"The following year I organized and conducted a Vacation Bible School at Lapine Church and the Pleasant Hill Church and community joined with them in carrying this school to a successful completion.

"In October, 1939, the pastor, Rev. A. O. Wright, asked that I let the church take over the Sunday School since he and his family were coming to Pleasant Hill regularly to work with the Sunday School. To this request, I gave my most hearty consent.

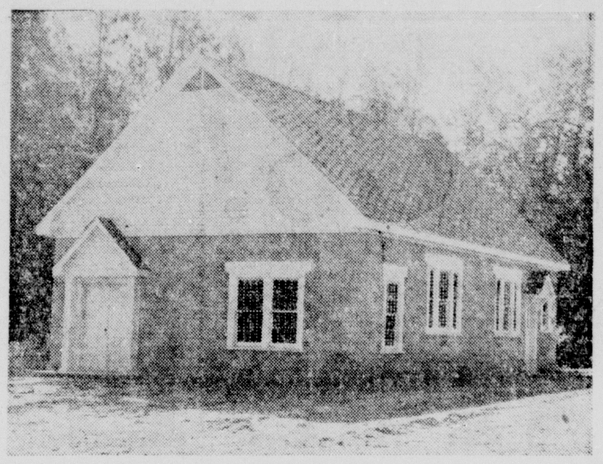

"In the summers of 1940, '41, '46, and '47 I assisted the pastor in conducting Vacation Bible Schools at Pleasant Hill Church.

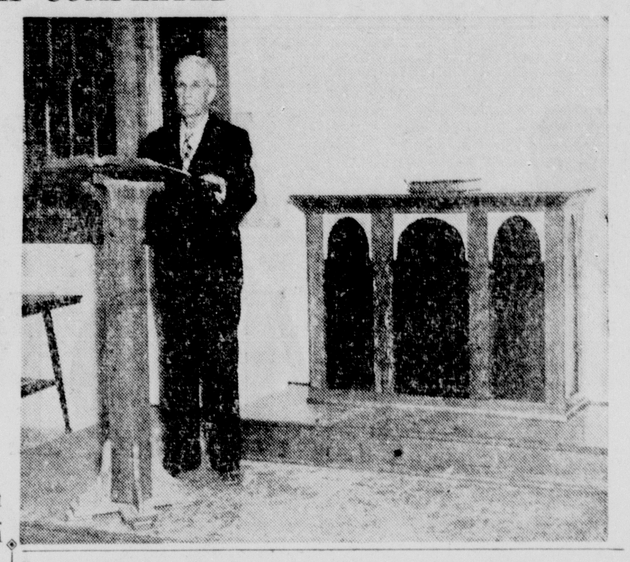

"I have had a part at different times in making and preparing equipment for the Sunday School and church. Also, at the request of the pastor, I have assisted the Sunday School at various times during his absence.

"Pleasant Hill Church with a modern building, good furnishings and equipment, a full-time pastor, and workers who are faithful to their task is doing some constructive Christion work. A new parsonage is being erected on the church lot to provide the pastor with living facilities among the folks of his community.

"I was requested to build the reading stand and alter now in use in the church to insure that I have some part in erecting this monument to those who have labored so faithfully. This task, I performed in my shop at home with much zest and thanksgiving."

IN MOVIELAND

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Mickey Mouse draws more cash across the counter than he does through the box-office.

That's a strange economic fact in this land of strange economics. But Disneyites figure that the sales of products bearing the images of Mickey, Donald Duck and others of the cartoon family exceed what those characters earn on the screen.

This week the commercial services of Mick and his fellow merchants were assured for another seven years. Disney signed a new deal with Kay Kamen Company that will continue imprinting Walt's characters on more than 2,000 products. The list includes everything from wallpaper to umbrellas.

Mickey is also an international salesman. More than 500 firms in Europe and the rest of the world distribute the Disney-marked products.

A Disney cameraman, taking jungle films 1,500 miles up the Amazon, was surprised to encounter his fellow employe, Donald Duck. The explosive quacker was emblazoned on the drum of a village band.

You may recall a scene in "A Foreign Affair," in which a Russian soldier was bartering watches. He was apathetic until he saw the face of a certain watch. "Mickey Moose," he exclaimed joyously.

Disney sources tell me that Mickey Mouse watches are a high commodity on the black markets of both Germany and Italy.

Walt got into the merchandising market early—in 1932—and others have hopped on the bandwagon. Roy Rogers figures he earns about $200,000 yearly from products bearing his name.

Margaret O'Brien's name sponsors such things as dresses, paper dolls, cosmetics and hats.

Gene Autry's list is long and slightly fantastic. It includes jeans, guns, belts, hats, comic books, boots, shoes, shirts, ties, hat bands, suspenders, pencils, paper weights, tooth paste, hair oil and shoe laces.

Other stars and cartoon characters have products and there's hardly an American who can escape having a bit of Hollywood in his home. Why, we still have at home a cream pitcher on which smiles the cherubic face of a six-year-old Shirley Temple.

GOVERNMENT BOND SALES REPORTED

There were sold in Ouachita parish during September a total of $73,444 worth of Series E, F and G bonds, states Thomas Hayes, Jr., chairman for Ouachita parish of a committee named to stimulate sales of these securities.

He states that sales are broken down as follows: E bonds, $53,318; F and G bonds, $10,126.

From only one producing oil well, in one state, in 1859, the oil industry, through progressive development, today has 428,522 producing wells scattered through 25 states. And the never-ending search in other areas and at deeper levels continues day and night to supply America's ever-increasing demands for oil products.

Boyle's Notebook

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP)—This is the city that is never through building.

Manhattan Island is like some nursery for baby giants, where the children are continuously rearing up strange new play houses—only to knock down the blocks and start all over again.

A man who spends his entire life in New York City never dies in the same city in which he was born. He has to search in his old age to find the remnants of the town of his boyhood.

It practically takes an act of parliament—or the German air force—to change the face of London. But here the pattern of change is a way of life. By the time a building is put up it is already old-fashioned.

They're tearing down the old New York every day. This saddens many an old-timer, but the same thing has been going on for more than 300 years.

When the famous Flatiron Building was erected on a triangular plot at 23rd and Broadway in 1902 to inaugurate the skyscraper era, it quickly became a tourist mecca. Visitors wondered uneasily if it was safe to go into a building 20 stories tall.

At that time its Madison Square site was the most fashionable in town. Gay blades hung out at the windy corner to ogle petticoats whipped into view by the breezes. Cops shooed them away, and there is a theory that this explains the phrase "twenty-three skiddoo," popular in grandpa's day.

Today the Flatiron Building is passed by unnoticed. It isn't even on the list of the 40 tallest structures here. And the 60-story terra cotta Woolworth Building, hailed as a cathedral of commerce in 1913, is topped by five other business towers.

Fifty years or more ago the glamor shopping lane stretched along Broadway from 14th to 23rd street. Then it moved over to Fifth avenue and began steadily marching up toward Central park, crowding out the mansions of the wealthy.

Today the red stone palace in which Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt entertained international society is gone—torn down to make way for an office building. The only holdout along Fifth avenue is the old Jay Gould home, and it's been turned into an antique shop.

The wrecker's ball has also smashed apart Charlie Schwab's imported French chateau on Riverside drive, and a modern apartment building will take its place. About the only landmark left intact on the drive is Grant's tomb—and who goes there now?

In Manhattan the past gets no such reverence as it does in the cities of Europe. On Washington Square, made famous by Henry James and other writers, they're knocking down "genius row," home of many well known artists and authors. In the park itself small children clamber about in a monkey gym over the bones of the unknown dead. The park once was a potter's field.

One change being made in the ever-changing face of Manhattan that will bring few tears from sentimentalists is the gradual destruction of the lower east side slums. They are being replaced by gigantic modern housing projects for lower and middle income people, giving these classes the benefits of skyscraper residential life.

No, "little old New York" just doesn't exist any more. And this year the city planning commission, created a decade ago to give some direction to the city's growth, has just proposed that the city spend $317,056,203 next year to modernize itself still more.

This is only one item in "little old New York's" billion-dollar budget. In 1890 Benjamin Harrison spent only $318,041,000 to run the entire United States.

PRESBYTERIAN MEN TO HAVE DINNER

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church will have the regular monthly meeting Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. with supper served.

Stewart Scott, president, urges all members to attend. O. Hutto, entertainment chairman, states that an educational picture will be shown.

COMMISSIONERS TRAVEL

FERRIDAY, La., Oct. 9.—(Special)—The Mississippi River Commission, traveling aboard the steamer Mississippi on their annual low water trip down the Mississippi river passed here on Friday. No hearing was scheduled, but the commission stopped and made an inspection of levee mork below Vidalia, en route to Baton Rouge, where a hearing was held later on Friday. A hearing was also held at Vicksburg, Miss., en route down the river on Thursday afternoon.

In The Air Over Monroe

By Margaret Gambrell

When H. C. King stopped over at Selman Field unexpectedly last week it was time for celebration! King found his former student, Ellis Dowdy, operating Service Aviation and within an hour several of his students of the early thirties turned out for a reunion with their former instructor.

King came to Monroe in 1929 to remove a mortgage from a plane he had build in his factory and which had stopped here on a demonstration tour. Its pilot had become financially stranded.

He liked Monroe and the result was he stayed here for several years.

He anchored the plane, which was one of the first aircraft in Monroe, in a barren field with a heavy chain, so that it would not topple over in the wind. It had been sent here on a demonstration tour when the pilot borrowed money on it and King came to Monroe in order to return it to Boulder, Colo.

King left here for that destination, but at Calhoun he made a forced landing in a cotton field and the plane tipped over on its nose, breaking the propeller.

He ordered a new propeller from a factory, but while it was en route souvenir hunters ripped pieces of fabric from the fuselage of the plane and carried away parts of the motor.

He decided considerable interest was manifest here in aviation and remained here and banded together a group of young men interested in aviation.

The Flying Dragons' Club was formed and the members worked under King's direction in rebuilding the plane.

When the plane was completely rebuilt the members of the club were taught to fly and the ship was anchored to a fence post at what later became known as Smoot Field.

After leaving Monroe, King engaged in numerous aviation enterprises and is now rebuilding planes for his own company at Uvalde, Texas. The airman who was largely responsible for building Smoot Field was quite surprised to find the interest in aviation had grown to such an extent in Monroe that four aviation companies operated here.

This was King's first visit to Monroe since he left in the middle thirties and a lot can happen in over 10 years, he said.

Air Park Activities

During the past week, fliers at Monroe Air Park didn't lose any time in getting their flying hours in. One commercial license and two private licenses were issued to fliers who completed courses and passed their examinations with flying colors.

R. J. Wildey is one of Monroe's latest commercial pilots and the new private pilots are C. L. Hanna and V. A. Netherland.

Seven cross-countries were made this week by A. J. Whitlock, R. D. Noble, J. D. Perkel, Curtis Cowan, E. F. Smith, Alex Winn and D. A. Shell.

The meeting of the Louisiana Trade Association in Opelousas Wednesday, drew airport operators from all over the state, and representing the Airpark, which is an active member of L. A. T. A., was Joe Joseph.

G. I. flight training was discussed at the meeting, Joseph said, and a motion was made to inaugurate a training program for young high school and college men, which would be a non-G. I. training program.

Reports are that James Smith, operator of a West Monroe skating rink, who recently purchased a Stinson, has soloed his ship and is making good progress toward building up time for his private license.

The Airpark was kept busy on chartered business and pleasure trips this week. Joe Joseph piloted Mr. V. Rivers and Mr. F. Pettit to Henryette, Okla., in the Airpark's twin Cessna on a business trip. When M. J. Carborn flew to Jackson, Miss., Sunday in his Beech Bonanza he was flown over by Joseph and returned Thursday by Pilot H. G. Prophit.

Andrew Pappas made a business trip to Huntsville, Ala., and was flown over by Instructor Davern Grayson.

E. Warner was flown to Marshall, Tex., in a Cessna 140, piloted by Instructor M. T. Hines. Mr. Warner remained in Marshall and was very much pleased with the fast and cheap transportation.

Weak, Watery Blood Blamed for Making Men and Women Look and Feel Older THAN THEIR YEARS

How do you feel at the end of a day? Is that old time pep and drive lacking? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Thousands now regaining glowing good looks and vitality through the release of vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a general run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. TERRY AND THE PIRATES

by GEORGE WUNDER

Copyright, 1948, by News Syndicate Co. Inc.

YESSIR, TERRY, WE THOUGHT THERE WASN'T A CHANCE OF FINDING THAT SNATCHED SMALL FRY...SPRAY THOUGHT THERE WAS — SO HERE WE ARE, TRACKING DOWN LEADS ON HIM... I THINK WE'VE BEEN OUTVOTED.

WHEN CHOPS GANGED UP WITH HER AND MADE A DEAL WITH THE CHINESE RED CROSS FOR US TO HAUL SUPPLIES UP TO THE FIGHTER OUTFIT WHOSE PATROL HAD SIGHTED THE KIDNAP PLANE, THE DEBATE WAS OVER.

IT'S A LONG CHANCE, CHAZZ, BUT MAYBE THESE CHINESE FLY JOCKEYS MIGHT BE ABLE TO GIVE US A LEAD, AT THAT.

WONDER HOW OUR CHAIRBORNE CHIEF LIKED HIS FIRST SKY RIDE.

HEY! WHERE ARE THEY?

T. LEE

IT SEEMS MR. CHOPS LIKES TO SELL AIRBORNE SPACE — .NOT OCCUPY IT!

♪ AAAAAAAH ♪

LATER, IN THE FIGHTER GROUP'S READY ROOM.

THIS IS LIEUTENANT YAN. IT WAS HE WHO SAW THE UNMARKED SHIP CROSS INTO ENEMY COUNTRY.

WILL YOU ASK HIM IF ITS COURSE AND POSITION SUGGEST WHERE IT MAY HAVE BEEN HEADING?

HE SAYS THERE IS ONLY ONE TOWN WITH A LANDING PLACE IN THAT PART OF REBEL TERRITORY. IT IS STRONGLY GUARDED BY MOST FEROCIOUS PARTISANS.

AND IN THE AFOREMENTIONED TOWN.

PLEASE, SMALL ONE, DELEGATION OF PRISON GUARDS MAKES HUMBLE PLEA — NO MORE HOT FOOTSIES.

DICK TRACY

IS THERE ANYTHING ELSE?

CHESTER GOULD

YES, YOU MAY TELL THE BOYS THEY HAVE FAILED, AND I WILL NOW TAKE MATTERS INTO MY OWN HANDS.

IS THAT ALL, BIG FROST?

YES. NOW GET OUT OF HERE!

BARRY, BRING ME MY BOX OF STARS AND CREDENTIALS.

YES, BIG FROST.

I HAD ONE IN HERE FROM ILTON, OKLAHOMA. IT OUGHT TO DO.

CHANGE THE YEAR ON THAT CREDENTIAL CARD TO READ 1948.

NOTHING TO IT, BIG FROST.

WE WERE TRICKED INTO STEALING PHONY PLANS OF THE TELEVISION BURGLAR ALARM, AND THE BOYS FAILED TO RUB OUT THE INVENTOR. IT'S UP TO ME TO ELIMINATE THAT MENACE TO OUR TRADE NOW!

MEANWHILE, OVER 150 POLICE CHIEFS FROM EVERY STATE HAVE GATHERED AT HEADQUARTERS TO WITNESS DEMONSTRATIONS OF THE NEW WEAPON, TELEVISION.

GENTLEMEN, IT CAN STOP SAFECRACKING AND STORE BURGLARY.

THE UNDERWORLD HAS ALREADY MADE ONE ATTEMPT TO PREVENT ITS PRODUCTION. THE HANDWRITING IS ON THE WALL FOR THEM.

YES, I'M FROM ILTON. I'M CHIEF NESTOR. I'M VERY INTERESTED IN THIS NEW MACHINE.

BUT YOUR LETTER FROM TRACY WAS TO BE YOUR ADMITTANCE PASS TO THIS MEETING.

—BUT MR. TRACY DIDN'T WRITE ME. HE HAD TO MISS SOME OF US, I SUPPOSE, BUT I CAME UP ANYWAY—PAID MY OWN FARE.

H'M? CARD LOOKS OKAY.

GO RIGHT IN, CHIEF, AND SIT DOWN—GLAD TO HAVE YOU.

AND IN MAKING THESE DEMONSTRATIONS WE WILL NEED A COUPLE OF VOLUNTEERS. WHO WOULD LIKE TO COME FORWARD?

ONE OF THE ROCKET'S CREW THROWS BACK A DISGUISING HOOD-- AND DALE SMILES, "YOU CAN'T LEAVE ME BEHIND." FLASH GRINS, "SO I SEE... I'M GLAD WE'RE TOGETHER-- WIN OR LOSE."

IN MAD HASTE THEY ERECT ANTIGRAVITATORS ON THE MOON. THE RAY-POWER CAUSES MOONQUAKES. BUT ZARKOV SIGNALS FROM MONGO: "YOU DID IT! THE COMET'S ORBIT IS TURNING AWAY!"

"THIS MOON IS BREAKING UP!" FLASH WARNS. HE TRIES TO SAVE DALE AND HIS MEN IN THE SPACE-ROCKET--

JUNGLE JIM

MISS BLANE DEMANDS HER BROTHER'S "BODY". JIM SHRUGS: "KOLU, UNCOVER OUR FRIEND THE DOCTOR."

THE SUPPOSED CORPSE SITS UP, DEMANDING STERNLY: "SISTER, WHY DID YOU TRY TO MURDER ME?" MISS BLANE SHRIEKS.

"GHOST! DEVIL! WHATEVER YOU ARE, TAKE THIS," MISS BLANE FIRES WILDLY. JUDY TRIES TO PROTECT DOC WITH HER OWN BODY.

FLASH GORDON

FLASH WON'T LET DALE FLY WITH HIM: "TOO RISKY. BUT WE'LL DRIVE OFF THE RED COMET-- THEN I'LL HURRY BACK TO YOU."

FLASH HEADS THE GIANT SPACE-SHIP TOWARD THE OUTER MOON, TO SET UP AN ANTI-GRAVITY REFLECTOR, THE LAST CHANCE TO SAVE MONGO FROM THE COMET-PLANET.

IN MAD HASTE THEY ERECT ANTIGRAVITATORS ON THE MOON. THE RAY-POWER CAUSES MOONQUAKES. BUT ZARKOV SIGNALS FROM MONGO: "YOU DID IT! THE COMET'S ORBIT IS TURNING AWAY!"

"THIS MOON IS BREAKING UP!" FLASH WARNS. HE TRIES TO SAVE DALE AND HIS MEN IN THE SPACE-ROCKET--

BUT IT IS TOO LATE. THE ROCKET'S POWER IS TOO WEAK-- THE COMET'S TERRIFIC GRAVITY PULLS THEM TOWARD ITS UNKNOWN DOOM!

NEXT WEEK: WEIRD WORLD.
